nong the lonely hills they played, No other bairns they ever knew, little lad, a little maid, In sweet companionship they grew.

They played amid the ferns and rocks
A childish comedy of life—
Kept house and milked the crimson dock
And called each other man and wife.

They went to school, they used to go With arms about each other laid; Their flaxen heads, in rain or snow, Were sheltered by a single plaid.

And so—and so it came to pass
They loved each other ere they
His heart was like a blade o' grass,
And hers was like its drop o' dew,

The years went by, the changeful years
Brought larger life and toil for life;
They parted in the dusk with tears—
They called each other man and wite.

They married—she another man, And he in time another maid; The story ends as it began— Among the lonely hills—they played!

good one. There are several things that go to make a local paper, but the principal feature is its local news. When we pick up a paper from another town and the local columns are dull and the news scanty, we are apt to think that the town is dull, and that there is scarcity of business; that there is nothing going on there or else somebody would be travelling, getting married or getting killed; that accidents, episodes, new features in busi-ness, and all the incidents to a lively people would be enacted, and conse quently get into the local paper. When the local paper fails of recording such events, then its readers gain the impress-ion that the town is dull and the people listless, and that it is no place for a ma to look for the purpose of investing his

As to what would be of general interest, each must judge for himself; think of what he if he knew about, or that he would relate to his neighbor, or what he would be in terested in himself, the newspaper, of course, must make allowance for the variety of tastes, and for his own idea of proriety .- Dexter Gazette.

This question is often asked at this season by persons keeping hens; and the answer is too often, "No! and suppose they won't lay util eggs get cheap next spring, just my duck." It ought not to be your luck. Pullets hatched in April last should have commenced laying a month ago; while May and June hatches should be laying this month. It is not too late even now, to force the early pullets to laying in a few weeks. The late ones, late as July and August can be even as late as July and August can be brought forward, so as to pay well, while eggs bring good prices. Strictly fresh, pullets eggs will probably retail as high as 50 to 60 cents per dozen, in Boston and New York markets, before March 1st, 1889. Mrs L. J. Wilson of Northboro, Mass., says: "In past years, I have noticed when my pullets laid at all, they would lay a litter and then, either want to set, or mone around for ten, days of to set, or mope around for ten days, of-ten for weeks doing no laying. Last fall best I ever saw in an experience of eight- previous year, een years. My thirty pullets were all just six months old, when they commenced laying. I never saw such return of eggs. In just eight weeks after they just aix months old, when they commenced laying. I never saw such return of eggs. In just eight weeks after they commenced to lay, the thirty pullets laid 1437 eggs; which I ascribed to the use of Sheridan's Condition Powder, to make Sheridan's Condition Powder, to make hens lay," The new and enlarged edition of the Farmer's Poultry Guide contains much information upon the above subject. I. S. Johnson & Co., 22 Custom House Street, Boston, Mass., (the only manufacturers of Sheridan's Powder, to make hens lay) will send a Guide postpaid, to any address for 25 cents in stamps; or two 25 cents packs of Sheridan's Powder and the book for 60 cents five packs $1. In England the hare is often called a puss. The ori-gin of the application of the name to so different an animal from that to which it legitimately belonged dates back nearly legitimately belonged dates back nearly to the Norman conquest. At that time and for two or three generations afterward, the fashonable language among the upper classes in England was a mixture of Latin and Norman—French, Among those who spoke pure Latin, the hare was called by its Latin name, lepus, which was perfectly correct. Others probably, who spoke a jumble of both languages, took the word to be Norman, and, supposing the first syllable to be the article le, converted lepus into lepuss.
