

Distribution of Samples of Grain From the Experimental Farm at Ottawa.

To the Editor of the ACADIAN. During the past eight years samples of these varieties of grain which have succeeded best on the Experimental Farms have been distributed on application in 3-4 bushels to farmers in all parts of the Dominion free through the mail.

Last year I was instructed by the Honorable Minister of Agriculture to forward, as far as practicable, two samples to each applicant, but the applications received were so numerous that on this basis of distribution all the available stock had been promised by the middle of February, and all later applicants could not be supplied.

This year my instructions are to send one sample only to each applicant, with the hope that with this limitation every farmer in the Dominion who so desires may share in the benefits of this useful branch of the work of the Experimental Farms.

The distribution now in progress consists of some of the most promising sorts of Oats, Barley, Spring Wheat, Fescue, Field Corn and Potatoes.

All farmers desiring to participate in this distribution should send in their applications early, and state which of the above named samples they would prefer, and their wishes will be met as far as practicable, until the available stock is exhausted. The grain can be sent early, but the potatoes will not be distributed until the danger of being injured in transit by frost is over.

WM. SAUNDERS, Director Experimental Farms, Ottawa, March 11th, 1895.

The Care of the Stove.

Once a month, says a good authority, is as often as a stove will require blacking. If it is properly cared in the meantime, and this monthly rejuvenating will be made much easier and more effective if conducted in a systematic and understanding manner.

Uses for Salt.

There are a number of persons who do not know in how many ways common table salt may be used or of what practical value it is aside from cooking purposes.

One pint of fine salt mixed with two pints of wood ashes will mend cracks in stoves. When cinders accumulate in the grate, throw in a handful of salt, let stand a few minutes and they will be easily removed.

A teaspoonful added to the water in which cut flowers are placed, will preserve them for time indefinite.

A little rubbed on the griddles before greasing, will prevent the cakes from sticking.

Damp salt will remove the discoloration caused by tea on cups and saucers; if sprinkled immediately over any spot where something has spilled over on the stove, there will be no odor and the spot will be easily cleaned.

Theory Exploded.

The Belief that Bright's Disease is Incurable No Longer Holds Good.

Somerset, Mass., March 15.—The old time theory of medical men that Bright's disease was incurable has been exploded to the satisfaction of all the people in this part of Canada.

But to-day he is alive and hearty and working like a mule to make up for the time he lost while sick. The happy change is due to Dodd's Kidney Pills, the only sure cure for any kidney disease.

Although he did not like being told he was not a gentleman, George IV had once, at least, while regent, forgotten he was one.

The insulted officer could not return the compliment without committing something like treason—it was out of the question to challenge the prince, while to let the insult pass unnoticed was equally impossible.

The counsel filed his glass and threw the contents in the face of his neighbor, saying, "His majesty's toast! pass it on."

"His majesty," cried the regent, "you're a capital fellow! Here's your health!" And they were fast friends from that evening.

Local Veto in Great Britain. The British Parliament, just opened, is expected to give special attention to the question of the local veto of the liquor traffic.

The Queen, in her speech from the throne, stated that a bill would be laid before them "having for its object, popular control of the liquor traffic."

Lord Roseberry, the Liberal leader, in a public address, speaking at Cardiff, said, "I put first—not in order, but for convenience—the question of the control of the liquor traffic, which is so burning a question all over the country."

Sir William Harcourt, another Liberal leader, in a letter to the Temperance Reformers, said "that the promotion of the temperance cause is among the first duties of the Liberal Party," and pledged himself to do all in his power to promote the passage of the "Local Veto Bill."

This bill allows two-thirds of the electors to vote the granting of licenses in a given area. We are glad to see that all shades of real temperance reformers are united for this bill.

As usual, when anything which looks like prohibition of the liquor traffic, even by local option, seems likely to be carried, all the lovers and defenders of the drink, especially moderate drinkers, strive in every way to defeat it.

The Gothenburg or Norwegian system is put forward to defeat local option in Great Britain and also in this country. The friends of the cause in America will conflict with the progress of the liquor traffic in the old country.

—National Temperance Advocate. The Bombay Guardian of last November says: The recent annual gatherings of the United Kingdom Alliance for the abolition of the liquor trade in Great Britain, are spoken of as rising to the high water mark of enthusiasm.

Mr Gladstone's recent proposals, re the Gothenburg system, came in for a fair share of criticism, but seemed rather to serve as a stimulus to press for prohibition than any tendency to draw aside the attention of the leaders of the temperance movement.

Sir Wilfred Lawson, who presided, spoke hopefully of the situation with regard to the liquor retail election the liquor trade did its worst, fired its last shot; he defied the trade ever to do more against them.

As it was only eighteen months since the Direct Veto became a Government question there was no reason for despair. It agreed that it should have passed by this time; "But," said he, "what is eighteen months in the history of our struggle? Why, we have been at it now for more than thirty years, and are we going to sit down crying and mourning because we cannot get the Bill passed in eighteen months? There was once an Irishman who made a wager that he would swim across a broad river for $100. He swam away, and when he got within two yards of the other side he said his strength failed him, and he must turn back. We are not going to copy that Irishman."

The Lewiston Journal, in a recent editorial, referring to the prohibitory law and the attacks recently made upon it, says: A law well enforced in three-fourths of Maine, and at least as well enforced in the rest of Maine as the Massachusetts laws against gambling and the social evil, obviously is objected to because it does execution. It is transparent nonsense for Massachusetts license papers to ask Maine to repeal prohibition for reasons which ought to lead them to advocate the repeal of the Massachusetts laws against houses of ill-fame and gambling-hells.

A bill providing for the re-submission of the prohibitory amendment to the Constitution of Maine, was recently defeated by the Legislature of that state by a majority of over a hundred votes.

Prohibition Not Tyranny. How we ought to hasten and exert ourselves to let all the people see that Prohibition is not tyranny, but protection against tyranny; that its aim and work is to save the citizen, not to restrict those who for law, selfish greed, want, induce to tax the citizen.

In truth it is the same love of freedom, the same sympathy with the suffering of others, the same impulses to serve one's kind, to do good to all men, that have made men agitate for, devote their time and life and money to the suppression of slavery, or the extension of freedom, that have made, and that make men so likewise for prohibition.
