Graphic Story of the Fight In Which Jack Hollands Was Killed and Phil Jensen Wounded.

2nd Southern General Hospital, New Southmead Infirmary, Bristol, May 1st, 1915. Dear Frank and Arthur—Well, boys, doubtless ere this, you have heard of the awful losses of the Canadians, but I doubt whether the real facts will be given out to the public for months. Last time I wrote, I was with the transport, on ammunition wagon, but my officer got me back in a company, and dear old Jack Hollands and I marched side by side, ves and nearly died together. I will tell you, I have been through a battle that Neuve Chapelle was not up to, one of the greatest of modern wars. Dear old Jack Hollands was killed like a hero, on the morning of the 23rd. Strange, a few nights before we went into the last battle, we were sleeping side by side; he said: "Phil, here is my uncle's London address, take it for I have a feeling I am not coming out of the trenches this time." I told him not to talk such nonsense, but he told me to wire his uncle so as he could wire his father, the Rev. C. W. Hollands, of Carbonear. I have done this. Now I know you are just waiting to hear about myself. Well, I had a very narrow shave, struck by a "Jack Johnson"; I have six shrapnel wounds in my back, but I am fine, not hurt in any vital spot. We went into the trenches on the 21st, just above Ypres in Belgium, and on our left were the French and on our right were the Germans, and a great attack was being prepared by the Germans, and on the 22nd, they started shelling us, hundreds of great shells pitching around in the trenches, with poisonous fumes. Well the French on the evening of the 22nd, left from their trenches, leaving our company, the 5th Highlanders, 200 men, in almost a death trap. To illustrate this I will draw you the shape of the attack, and the position of the trenches. Now when the French ran, the Huns came on in thousands, and took their trenches, but they never took ours. Now we were between two fires, in this way: Our front was high sandbags, but rear of our trenches were low, so they began shooting us in the back. Now we could have retired by our back trenches, but, no, Sir. Two hundred men of us held the line. Oh, boys, it was grand. Our reserves couldn't come up for some time, owing to such an awful fire. Our officers then put forty of us, and we held them, where I mark in the drawing. Then our losses began. It was awful, but boys our fellows died game, and it was grand to see them. Dear old Jack and I stood together doing our share, I can tell you; then my officer came for me and put me further up the trench, and after a while, some of us were ordered out on sentinal post we were open to machine gun fire, and they have lights, which make it just like day. Then my officer was told to form rear guard, so about twenty-five of us held them, while the rest retreated. We would fire five rounds, reload, retire, forty yards, down and give it to them again. I saw fellows die that night in the same position as when alive. Well, then all the regiment started to dig itself in, with more British and Canadians supporting us. I went with a party to bring in wounded, and to carry water, and next morning we had dug ourselves in, after having been fighting four days, with no food and no water till then. As soon as daylight they started shelling us, and then it was suffered most, as we had no artillery to support us. Oh, it was awful, men dying poisoned; aeroplanes humming overhead, giving the range, and they just pitched these big "Jack Johnsons" in our trenches. When we would hear them coming, we would all lie down and jump up again, as soon as they would pass. At last came one it seemed right on top of me; it blew a hole in my greatest nearly as big as a plate; it paralyzed me first, and my wounds looked so bad that several fellows left "the part of the trench where I was. I felt I was dying, and I remember thinking of Jack and saying to my officer, "I am done, Sir; write and tell my mother I died alright." I remember seeing I gazed in his eyes. Then there came another shell and buried me right in. I stayed there till I heard the order to retire, so I determined I wouldn't be taken prisoner if I could possibly help it. Our regiment retired nearly two miles with German guns playing on them. I would run, get tired, fall down crawl, get up and go it again. At last two fellows got me to a dressing station, after nearly four hours after I was wounded. I was at last put on a stretcher and taken in an ambulance and sent by train to Boulogne, thence here. Out of 1,100 men, they say only forty was left. English praise us up as they say our regiment bore the brunt. Hope my wounds will soon heal. I will keep you informed of my condition. Your loving brother, PHIL.

Shooting Accident Proves Fatal.

The third shooting accident within the past couple of weeks has ended fatally. The last is Thomas J. Rogers, the eleven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Rogers, Southside, who, while on a visit countrywards in company with his father on Sunday last, had a load of shot from a gun put through his body and who succumbed to the injuries received at the General Hospital yesterday afternoon. The sympathy of the community will be offered to the grief-stricken parents in their sad hours of bereavement, and in which the Telegram joins. The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon.

WELL KNOWN NEW BRUNSWICK MAN FELL IN A FAINT. Suffered for Years Afterwards but Finally Found Relief and Permanent Cure in Dodd's Kidney Pills. Melrose, Westmoreland Co., N.B.—June 4th. (Special).—R. S. Clarke-Lewis, a member of a well known New Brunswick family, has made a statement for publication which deals with his cure of a very complicated case of Kidney Disease by Dodd's Kidney Pills. "The first intimation I had of Kidney trouble occurred while on board the steamship on my return from England fourteen years ago when I fell in a faint on the floor. "After my arrival at St. John my health became poor and I lost 30 pounds in weight. Year after year I became weaker. I suffered from heart trouble and nervousness and I became irritable and dyspeptic. My sight troubled me and my walk was unsteady as I suffered from dizziness. "Reading a circular led me to use Dodd's Kidney Pills and Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets about June, 1913, and my improvement began at once. My strength came back in my legs, the dizziness left me, my bowels became regular, and by New Year's, 1915, I claimed I was cured of Diabetes. "I would not be without the Dodd's Medicines on any account."

Dazzling the Helper.

By RUTH CAMERON. Dazzling the helper might be the title of a sport which is extremely popular among a certain class of women. I once had a woman who worked the day before for a woman emphatically of this type. She came to me crammed so chock full of facts and figures with which her yesterday's employer had sought to dazzle her and establish a sense of her own importance that some of them simply had to spill over. "I ironed Mrs. Martin's best tablecloth yesterday, and what do you think she said it cost? Eighteen dollars. Yes'm, eighteen dollars. Her sister gave it to her when she was married. Her sister has lots of money, she says. Keeps two girls and a man. The napkins to go with that tablecloth cost two dollars apiece. I guess Mrs. Martin must have had a grand wedding. She said there were four hundred people there, and the silk in her wedding dress cost five dollars a yard."

Part of Their Business.

I once knew a little seamstress who came of a wealthy family and who had had far more luxuries in her youth than any of us who employed her. Some of her never patrons did not know this and it was half pathetic, half humorous to me to hear one of them trying to impress her with her own humble splendors. To my surprise, however, she seemed deeply impressed. I asked her about it afterwards. "It's part of my business," she said, "to give them pleasure that way. I don't grudge it." I've been wondering since if a good many others do not, like her, pretend to be impressed because they realize that that is a part of their business. Not a flattering thought if one is addicted to the habit, is it?

Council Meetings of W.C.T.U.

Of England and Wales, April 28th and 29th. A great work is being done by our members in providing Recreation Rooms for Soldiers and also for the wives and mothers of soldiers and sailors. Lady Jellicoe and Lady French have opened some of these rooms, also Mrs. Parker (Lord Kitchener's sister). Thirty rooms have been opened by White Ribbons. The National Executive Committee met in London on February 26th. In the absence of Lady Carlisle, Miss Agnes Slack presided. The following Resolution was adopted:—"That this Executive heartily congratulates the Grand Duke Constantine and the Russian Christian Temperance Society on the enormous increase in the resources of their country as the result of the suppression of all alcoholic liquors."

SCOTLAND.

Reading, recreation, and refreshment rooms were opened in December under the auspices of the Glasgow District White Ribbons. There are two rooms upstairs for games and writing, and the large show downstairs is dainty with tea-tables, and flowers. Visitors are mostly English youths, lately enlisted. Saturdays and Sundays are the busiest days, as the men get out of barracks at 2 o'clock, instead of 6 p.m. Gifts of games, tea, bread, and illustrated papers are appreciated. The Aldrie Union recently gave a tea to 600 soldiers' wives and mothers. Flowers and patriotic emblems were used in an elaborate scheme of decoration. After tea a most effective tableau, representative of the British Empire, was given. Grouped round a pedestal, on which stood Britannia holding in each outstretched hand the Union Jack, were girls in costume representing Scotland, England, Ireland, Wales, Canada, South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, India, Egypt.

IRELAND.

The Y. W. C. A. and White Ribbon Dinner Hour Rest Room in Dublin is a great success. One month's work showed 107 attendances, and numbers are steadily increasing. Friends sent quantities of flowers and fruit during the summer months. The quietness of the rest room seems to be its chief attraction, coupled with its moderate charges. The girls are allowed to bring their own sandwiches, which can be supplemented with a cup of tea, coffee, cocoa, or milk; many of them prefer to have lunch provided. Some girls bring needlework, others read or write. A good supply of magazines and writing materials is always at hand. It is hoped a library may be started. Miss Patten and our White Ribbons have organised petitions to the authorities to close drinking bars at earlier hours.—W. C. T. U.
