Half the Buildings in San Domingo Prostrated by a Cyclone.

The Chinese Imperial Council Completely Disorganized.

Japanese Troops Rapidly Marching on Moulken—The Chinese Government Removing Its Treasures.

A dispatch from St. Petersburg states that the Czar arrived at Laidava yesterday.

The latest report from the bedside of Prof. James Anthony Froude, the historian, is that he is sinking fast.

The Paris Debate publishes a dispatch from San Domingo stating that a cyclone has destroyed half of the buildings in that town.

The terrific storm which raged throughout the island of Cuba from early in the evening of Sept. 23 until the following night destroyed 47 houses in Santa Cruz del Sur.

Marry McClelland, owner of the famous horse Isinglass, will inherit on Oct. 9 property amounting to nearly $4,000,000. This legacy comes to him under the will of a grand uncle.

A dispatch from Berlin to the London Standard says that Prof. Leyden has returned to that city. His opinion regarding the Czar's condition is decidedly unfavorable to the imperial patient. Dr. Leyden thinks his Majesty may possibly recover if he is kept in good spirits and his strength maintained.

A dispatch from Shanghai to the Central News says the Japanese have occupied Wijn without meeting with any opposition on the part of the Chinese troops. The Imperial Council is completely disorganized, and the corruption which has prevailed in the commissary department for years has left the troops with no suitable clothing and a scanty supply of food. Cannons, rifles and other munitions of war which from time to time were alleged to have been bought and paid for cannot now be found, and presumably the money represented to have been expended for them was appropriated by the officials into whose hands it was entrusted.

The immense camp between Tien Tsin and Taku is filled with raw levies of troops who are without arms, and in many cases without sufficient clothing to cover them. Disorder in the camp is rampant, there being not the slightest degree of discipline. Executions take place daily, the merest infraction of rule or law being punishable by the loss of the offender's head. European residents of China are taking refuge in the treaty ports under the protection of the warships of their respective countries. A large number of Chinese merchants are also seeking safety in flight. The troops stationed at Canton have been ordered to Formosa.

The Pull Mail Gazette publishes a dispatch from Shanghai stating that the Japanese troops are reported to be rapidly nearing Moulken.

The Japanese invasion.

LONDON, Oct. 1.—The Times prints a dispatch from Shanghai stating that a report is in circulation there that 35,000 Japanese troops have been landed on the Shantung coast, between the Yellow River and Tien Tsin.

CHURCHES AT LAW.

Decision Involving Four Hundred and Sixty Preachers and Much Property.

READING, Pa., Oct. 1.—A victory for the Dominicans in the long Evangelical Church war was scored today by Bishop Fisher and Bowman in the Supreme Court. The decision cuts the Dubs faction, not only from the Reading church, which brought the test case, but from the 210 or more Evangelical churches in Eastern Pennsylvania. This is a final decision, and involves church property worth about $1,000,000 and more than 400 preachers. The decision was made today at Pittsburg.

The whole question, which has caused a split in the Evangelical Church all over the United States, hinged upon the legality of a conference held at Indianapolis, Ind.

LABOR MATTERS.

A SNUB FOR JUDGE JENKINS—Working Men Have a Right to Strike.

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—In the United States Court of Appeals today Judge Harlan, of the United States Supreme Court, reading the opinion, the famous strike injunction of Judge Jenkins was rather severely handled. Judge Harlan held that a body of men had a right to quit work in respect of the discomfort which might result. They had, however, no right to conspire to do damage or to embarrass.

He did not agree with Judge Jenkins' famous decision concerning any strike, "that it was necessarily illegal." Judge Harlan held there was such a thing as a legal strike. Judge Jenkins' injunction was modified. The opinion was rendered by Justice Harlan and Judges Wood and Bunn. Judge Jenkins appeared undisturbed by the decision.

THE BULL'S VICTORY.

Four Persons Killed at a Sunday Bull Fight in Mexico—A Panic.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—A Recorder special from Zacatecas, Mexico, says: Four persons were killed and many injured at a bull fight in Mezquite, State of Jalisco, on Sunday. A banderillo approached one of the bulls, waving a red cloth. The animal charged him, but he jumped aside, and as the maddened bull passed drove a pointed iron into his neck. Again the crowd began to applaud, but their "braves" were suddenly changed to a cry of warning. The animal caught him on his horns, tossed him over his back, and before assistance could come had charged again. This time the banderillo was down and the maddened brute gored him through. As others ran through to the rescue the bull raised his head with the banderillo impaled on his horns and charged his new foes. In the meantime the first bull had leaped over the barrier separating the ring from the spectators and dashed into the crowd. Several persons were gored and a panic ensued. Men, women, and children made a rush for the single entrance. The screams of those who saw the death of the banderillo added to the terror. In the effort to escape three persons were trampled to death and many others were injured, some fatally.

He Had Called Her Names—An Assault Case Ventilated at the Police Court.

—A Hotel-Keeper Fined $30 and Costs.

Police Magistrate Parke commenced to deal out justice a few minutes before the appointed hour this morning. Two or three cases were called, but the witnesses had not yet arrived. To fill in time Patrick Tynan was asked if he was drunk on Monday.

Mr. Tynan, who is a "bottle-scared" prisoner, admitted having two glasses of ale, but scoffed at the idea of that making him drunk. He was remanded for a week.

Mary Rogers, a widow, was also charged with drunkenness. She wanted to have a private word in the magistrate's ear, but was remanded for a week instead.

FOND OF TOBACCO. John Schultz is a young man who comes from the United States. He found favor with the Grand Trunk Company, and was given work at the G. T. R. freight house. On Thursday last a London grocery firm shipped among other things a small caddy of chewing tobacco to an out-of-town customer. The tobacco did not reach its destination and a search was made for it. It was found by the aid of a search warrant in Schultz's room in a south end boarding house. Mr. Dignan, the prisoner's lawyer, asked for time to prepare the defense and as the company was not prepared to proceed the case was enlarged until Friday.

ERNEST JEBB'S JOB. "That you did an assault on Annie Long by striking her with your fist and knocking her down," This was the indictment read out to Ernest Jebb, an intelligent looking and well dressed young Englishman.

"No, I can't say that I struck her with my fist," replied Jebb candidly. "It was a slap more than anything. In the first place, she came up and slapped me, and I rose in my chair and slapped her, and then she fell down."

"Well, that is an assault, you know," said the magistrate. "Call the witness."

The complainant, Annie Long, is a dining-room girl at the Western Hotel, where Jebb boards. From the story told by the girl it would appear that Jebb grew about his meals like a regular married man. He not only growled, but the witness swore that he threatened to take her across his knees and chastise her. Miss Long did not feel called upon to submit, and made art reference to his inability to do any such thing.

Although Miss Long is a brunette, she decidedly objected to being called a "black wench" and slapped Jebb when he said she was. Then Jebb arose and smote her and she fell. She afterwards went out to the hall and called Godfrey James, but Jebb

CHASED GODFREY DOWN STAIRS with a table knife.

"She has told the truth in a good many things and in others she has not," the prisoner said. She and Godfrey James both struck at him in the hall and others were waiting to take a hand in it, so he slipped a table knife into his pocket, more for fun than anything else. He knew the James boys would run if they saw a knife.

"Did you slap this man hard in the face?" the magistrate asked of the girl.

"Yes, quite hard."

The magistrate further asked if Jebb had cast any imputation upon her character. Miss Long replied that he had. In fact he had accused her of having "traveled through California," and been worse than that.

Godfrey James did not see the beginning of the quarrel, but saw the knife. "I did not stop to see what kind of a knife it was," he told the court, "but made tracks down stairs."

"I fine you $5," said the magistrate to Jebb.

"Well, then, I want to enter a complaint afterwards," was Jebb's reply.

A HOTEL-KEEPER FINED. "Good morning," said Inspector Henderson to Mr. Wm. Bernard, as he came into court, "you are dressed up this morning."

"I don't feel very much dressed up and I hope you are satisfied," rejoined Mr. Bernard. The latter was charged with a breach of the Liquor License Act on Sunday, Sept. 16. David McArthur, the bartender, was put in the box.

"Did you sell any liquor that day," asked Mr. Magee.

"Yes, sir."

"You sold the liquor there on Sunday?"

"Yes, sir."

"To people who were guests of the house?"

"Some of them."

The Magistrate—Twenty dollars and costs.
