AN EXILE CHARGES CRIMES TO CZAR

Bouritzell Says Russian Ruler Not Only Knows of Outrages But Instigates Many.

New York, Jan. 21.—Bouritzell, one man of the Russians whom Bouritzell police fear as they fear the black death, laughs a dry laugh, and shrugs his shoulders when he is asked why it is that the Czar's spies fear and hate him.

"It is because I am not good for their system," is the way Bouritzell answers. "Because I try to destroy that which gives them reason for being."

Vladimir Ilyich Bouritzell—as plain Bouritzell his fame has spread through cabinets and closets in Russia—sat on the edge of a shadowy operating chair in the office of Dr. Paul S. Kaplan at 29 East Broadway this afternoon, and received one after another men who like himself are refugees from the Czar's government and workers against it. He had not been off the ocean six hours before plans had been made for a big reception for him at the Grand Central Palace tomorrow night, and an outline of his work during the next three months in America had been gone over.

Bouritzell Well Educated.

Dr. Kaplan acted as interpreter to the interviewers. Bouritzell speaks French as well as he does his native tongue, for he is a man of education, and he has been editing papers in Paris for a good many years.

"I have come to America for various reasons," Bouritzell said to one of his questioners. "One of them is to save this country, as I have tried to do in Europe, the legend of the Czar's innocence. What do I mean by that? Why, the fact that Nicholas is clay in the hands of his ministers' enmity, and hence innocent of the outrages that are the shame of Russia."

"I have ample proof that the Czar is personally responsible for all of the outrages that have darkened the years in Russia, that he keeps in close touch with the doings of his secret police, and actually instigates some of the crimes which are committed in the name of government."

Will Tell Russia's Story.

"I come to America also as a revolutionist, to try to tell the people here who enjoy a degree of freedom, the real story of the revolution in Russia. I also come to see some of my friends here, to tell them of what is going on in the cause which has forced them to exile, and to confer with them as to ways and means for bringing all of the revolutionary parties together."

"I am a conservative revolutionist. I believe that a republic would be the ideal form of government for Russia, but Russia is not yet ready for a republic, and the best we can do is to secure a limited monarchy, with sure constitutional safeguards. Russia is stagnating under the present regime of autocratic despotism. It can never be progressive until it has thrown off the burden of the middle ages."

ROOSEVELT'S HUNTING.

"ELECTRIC SLEEP" NEW ANAESTHETIC

New Discovery Will Replace Ether—Removes Much of Danger.

Philadelphia, Jan. 21.—Years of investigation by noted surgeons for a perfect anaesthetic which would have no detrimental effect on the heart or other vital organs of the patient have apparently been rewarded. Electricity, and investigation going on here and abroad, just made public, shows that electricity is far superior to any of the drugs now used to produce anaesthesia.

This discovery, confirmed by future investigations, as is confidently expected, will mean a revolution of modern methods of surgery. Persons suffering from diseases that call for operations, but who cannot get relief through danger of death if put under ether or chloroform, can be cured, for electricity, when used as an anaesthetic, produces no bad effect on the heart.

It produces a state of insensibility, by acting on the nerve centres of the brain, that is called "electric sleep." The sleep is not fatal, and when the electric current is opened the patient becomes conscious without feeling any of the after effects common with drug anaesthetics.

Not only has electricity been found of service in surgical cases, but, according to preliminary communications recently submitted to medical journals by leading physicians, it has been used for resuscitating electrocuted animals.

The investigators are confident that if this idea is developed it will only be a short time before it will be possible to resuscitate human beings who have been electrocuted.

To Stéphane Leduc, of Naples, the medical profession is indebted for the comprehensive study of "electric sleep." He has conducted numerous experiments on animals, most of them being very successful, and other investigators are following in his footsteps.

DISTRICT CASES AT OSGOOD HALL

Clinton Action, Also One From Tillsonburg.

At Osgood Hall on Thursday in re Clinton Thresher Company, J. F. Bond, for liquidator, appeared from the report of the local master at Godrich, W. Proudfoot, K.C., for three directors who have been placed on list of contributors, stated that parties had agreed that this appeal, and the liquidator, as to these contributors, are to be enlarged two weeks, W. Brydson, for town of Clinton, and five contributors, for town of Clinton, Drummond, McCall & Co., lien holders, G. W. Mason, for the A. R. Williams Machinery Company, lien holders. The appeal the liquidators as to district for taxes by the town of Clinton, argued and disputed with costs. On application of liquidator, on the ground that all lien holders not served, the appeals as to lien holders are enlarged for two weeks, and the costs of the day, fixed at $20 for Mr. Garrow and $15 for Mr. Mason, to be paid previous to return of motion, and leave given, so far as it may be done to serve notice on the lien holders not already served, but without prejudice to any objections that time has elapsed for appealing.

NO NICKEL MONOPOLY

Member for Nipissing Contradicts the Statement of Expert Wilson.

Ottawa, Jan. 20.—Mr. Gordon (Nipissing) in the House today before the orders of the day, called attention to the recent statements made by Mr. Arthur Wilson, of Toronto, before the committee on mines and minerals, as reported in the daily press. They were to the effect that all the nickel deposits of Canada were owned by the International Company, which also controlled the nickel mines of New Caledonia and thus monopolized the world's entire output. Mr. Gordon said that there were millions of acres containing nickel deposits in Ontario which were not owned by this company. He asked if it were true, as reported that Mr. Wilson represented the British Government, and he desired to know what steps would be taken by the mines department to refute his statements.

TO ABOLISH COMMISSION

St. Thomas Council Will Ask to Run Street Railway Itself.

St. Thomas, Jan. 21.—At the meeting of the council, it was decided to abolish the street railway commission and to ask the Legislature at once to repeal the act passed several years ago establishing government of the road by commission. The electric road in St. Thomas is owned by the city, and has never paid its way, and to-day many of the ratepayers declare that they will enter a counter action that the council will not control the road, but that the commissioners will continue the work.

A couple of days ago the manager of the road, George Baldson, tendered his resignation on the plea that he could not please the public or the commission.

WARM BATTLE ON THE FAMOUS CASTLE

Princess Tells of Attack Made on Her by Servant With Hatchet—Roman Society Stirred.

Rome, Jan. 21.—The fight for possession of the famous Castle of Nemi, which as the link which binds the present to a long past has hardly an equal in Italy, is still the topic on every lip. The Ruspoli will suit of which the castle is the pivot has shaken Roman society to depths. On the one side in the contest is a great and noble family, on the other side the Roman prince's American widow, who says her money made the purchase of Nemi possible.

Princess Henry Ruspoli, who was Mrs. Jennie Brunson, nee a Berry, of Oak Hill, Ga., and a beauty of renown, has brought condemnation on herself by publishing sensational statements concerning her husband which his relatives pronounce malicious fabrications. But the bitterness engendered by the late prince's method of handling the great wealth which he brought has made it difficult to judge between the widow and the brother, Humbert, who claims the castle under his brother's will.

Says She Bought Castle.

The princess has stated that she bought Nemi from her husband. She publicly declares that the American wife tried to force her husband to grant her the castle on condition that she separate from him—something he ardently desired. Though dying when this offer was made, his brother-in-law, the prince steadily refused to eliminate the castle from his family, bequeathing it to Humbert.

To refute the charge that she paid for the castle Humbert has deposited with friends $41,000, which he promises to turn over to the princess if she proves she advanced any such sum for the purchase. This offer holds good till Jan. 30, when, failing response, Humbert gives notice he will consider himself unhampered to proceed according to law.

While the will of the dead prince directs that his body be examined by scientists to determine the cause and nature of the long and lingering illness which terminated in death, the princess has made public an extraordinary account of an attempt on her life on Jan. 7, when a servant, and a supposed maniacal impulse rushed to her apartments with a hatchet. She fled down the stairs and escaped to the road by jumping over a wall. The princess hints that her husband's brothers instigated the murderous attack. They claim that a footman, driven to frenzy by the prince's illness which terminated in death, rushed upon her, and add that all her servants complain of cruel treatment at her hands, and are overjoyed that Nemi will pass to her brother.

He has joined his brother in suing the newspapers for publishing the princess' letters.

History of the Castle.

Nemi is a mediaeval Italian fortress, standing on the brow of a cliff, some 400 feet above the sea, and some miles southwest of Rome. The battle-ment castle dates from the sixteenth century, when it was the chief stronghold of the House of Medici.

In the clear waters of the lake two galleys, supposed to have been built by Theophrastus or his nephew, Caligula, lie sunk there, and have been taken up and prepared to raise them. The prince, Prince Henry, who was only 32 at the time, married Mrs. Eugenia Enfield (widow of Henry Enfield) in Washington, March, 1902. Mr. Brown was a wealthy tobacco grower and left her a large fortune.

It is not at all improbable that the fair of 1910 will be held on new and more convenient grounds than at present, at least this was the consensus of opinion expressed by many of those present. The directors were empowered to appoint a committee to consider the advisability of securing more suitable grounds for the holding of the fair. ## NEW BATH INVENTED FOR LUNG TROUBLES

Compressed Air Used in London to Treat Pulmonary Diseases.

London, Jan. 20.—"Compressed air bath" comprise the latest medical wrinkle in treating sufferers from pulmonary troubles, and it has been found most efficacious in dealing with asthma, bronchitis and emphysema. The patients are merely locked up for a few hours at a time in a hermetically sealed boiler and required to breathe the compressed air, which is pumped into this chamber. The novel treatment already has attained constant usage in the Brompton Hospital for Consumption and Diseases of the Chest.

"We really cannot explain just why this treatment has yielded such splendid results," explained Frederick Wood (secretary of the Brompton Infirmary), "but it has been most valuable, and effected numerous cures. I believe, therefore, that the best thing I can do is to record you a personally conducted tour to this particular plant."

Machine Is Like Boiler.

After passing along a labyrinth of corridors a light flickered up, and the "machine" was in evidence. It resembled nothing so much as a large, old-fashioned boiler, studded with rivets, and standing on end. On nearer inspection, too, it seemed to have a nautical smack to it, reminding the observer of a diving bell of other days. Set around in the steel plates were portholes covered with heavy plate glass, while above a large pipe disappeared through the top of the chamber.

"Nothing very complicated about it, is there?" remarked Mr. Wood, "and there isn't much to excite you in the interior," he added, as an attendant swung open a door, which otherwise appeared as an integral part of this boiler—diving-bell affair. Certainly the interior of the chamber was plain enough. For furniture, just a little table and two or three chairs. For decoration of the steel walls there was little but the many rows of rivets, which, in default of better amusement might be counted backward or forward or upward or downward or half a dozen other ways.

No Talking Is Allowed.

One scarcely expected pictures in a compressed air bath; but something caught one's eye on the moment of entry. That was a notice, prominent, and curiously worded. "Talking strictly forbidden," it said. Here was matter for conjecture. Why should not bath-
