Meeting—Toronto Colt Cricketers in Annual Session—Trotting at The Humber—Spots of Sport.

Hurdle racing was initiated at the Gutten-burg winter track Saturday. The Toronto horse, Winslow, won over the jumps. But the race was a farce. None of the horses antered could jump over two feet, so they just pushed and struggled over the hurdles into the properties of Benefit. The latter's rider, Blakely, was in such deadly fear of falling off that he never let go of his horse's head. Judge Burke, not liking the "tight hold" that Blakely had on Benefit, called the Executive dinner cigars were lighted and a concert was inaugurated.

The only toast proposed was that of "The Queen," by Col. Sweny, which was received with acclamation. The leb was convulsed by the recitations of H. Melville Boddy, whose peculiar style of diction has to be heard to be appreciated. The following gentlemen also contributed to the following gentlemen also contributed Burke, not liking the "tight hold" that Blakely had on Benefit, called the Executive Committee together, who after taking evidence ruled the jockey off.

Betting on a horse race in Canada has seldom or never reached the amount that was when over $40,000 was put up by the local Grits, much of it finding its way to Toronto to be covered. It is said the Hymanites to be covered. It is said the Hymanites will be down here for the Queen's Plate to get even on Mr. T. D. Hodgins' nominations for that classic event.

Lord and Lady Stanley have both signified their intention of being here for the May meeting of the O.J.C., and will be the guests of the club at the Queen's Hotel. On former occasions Lord Stanley has been alone and has preferred the privacy of his own car at the Union Station, thus involving the O.J.C. in a most undeserved charge of inhospitality.

read his report, showing the club to be in a very satisfactory standing, playing 14 matches, winning sevon, losing five and drawing two.

A lengthy and spirited discussion took place as to whether the club should re-enter the Intermediate Association and if so should they do so as "colts." It was finally decided to enter this way, and Messrs. Casey Wood, W. R. Wadsworth and P. A. Manning were appointed to look after the club is interests at the association meetings.

The election of officers for the coming season resulted in the selection of the following:

Toronto will strive for aquatic honors at the World's Fair. Already the Argonauts are laying plans to secure prominence at Chicago in the senior fours. Messrs. H. Small, Frank Moss, Ed and Harry Senkler will train as juniors this year and row in the C.A.A.O. regatta. They are a likely lot of oarsmen and bid fair to capture junior honors, Should they win it is the intention of the Argonauts to send this quartet to the Windy City exhibition.

The East Toronto Cricket Club is about to be canvassed for the necessary amount to obtain the services of a first-class pro. If there is such a man in the country he should apply to Mr. Chandler, 326 Wellesley-street, Toronto.

"Too bad about that poor little Mrs. Simson," said Jones the other night as he ate his supper.

BATTLE FOR LEADERSHIP.

Scene That Almost Baffles Telling-Two Mature Bulls Fight Open-Mouthed, A PAIR OF JACKS. Roaring Victously, and Neck and Neck -The Pathetic End.

To the south and eastward of Lobengula's apital is situated Macalaca Land. It was conquered by that doughty monarch's father, Mosilikatze, and still remains subservient to the Matabeles. The approximate position of my camp at the time I witnessed the scene I will endeavor to de-ecribe was latitude 21° south, longitude 32° The country surrounding me was marvellously attractive, although only sand very sparsely covered with bush, therefore totally useless for agricultural or pastoral purposes, but through the flat veldt's surface, at irregular intervals, rose copies of im-neense blocks of stone, piled one upon the other, that resembled the debris that might triends that his wife was a woman without have been left after Titans had built a gigantic city or mammoth fortification. These eruptions from beneath the earth's surface were covered with parasitic plants, decorated with most attractive fruit or gor geous blossoms. A species of aloe, too, was imerous, the upright stem which bears its. flower having a very striking resem-blance to civilization's unsightly telegraph

> This country is not destitute of water, as This country is not destitute of water, as is attested by the numbers of baboons, mon-keys, and leopards that frequent the copies, and the antelopes, zebras, and guineu fowl that wander over the flats. Possibly the indigenous Bushmen know where to find this necessity of life, but these astute savages carefully concealed their secret from me and my people. I was riding slowly along admiring the beautiful colors of this distant landscape. In close attendance was my Massara guide. My reverie was broken by an unknown [sound, which echoed and reechoed from the surrounding crags. It was not the honest bark of the baboon, or the reverberating voice of the lion, or the hy-ena's discordant laugh, but a combination of all of them, uttered in quick, successive gasps. On inquiry from my follower, he informed me that kameels (giraffes) were the originators of the unknown sound. The Masara begged me to follow him. This I did, and so became witness of one of the most extraordinary sights in wild life that I had ever seen. Those who have dwelt in the distant East have doubtlessly seen male camels fight and noted with what obstinacy, power, and viciousness they try to maim or disable one another; how they shriek with rage over each advantage that they obtain, and yell with pain when they are severely hurt. A giraffe duel much resembles a camel's, as will be seen from what I proceed to state. The rivals were not well matched—the talthink because you have no nerves that no ler was out of condition and very old; the think because you have no nerves that no other woman has any. The majority of women are clinging, timid things, and such an experience frightens them out of all self-which would be the victor. They reared which would be the victor. Then Mr. Jones took his hat and went in unison, as if each were trying to drown the other's voice; sometimes this would down to the office, where he had some work to do, telling his wife to ring him up if any.

> Some people might call it fudicrous; it was far more, it was side splitting, and, but for my desire to see the end, greater its speed the more ungainly does it appear. But when two mature bulls begin to waltz and dance violently around each other, each endeavoring to outdo the other in agility, at the same time mumbling their jaws and emitting fearfully discordant roars, it is certainly one of the most absurd sights human eye ever looked upon. I have often seen a crane dance-s function common enough north of the Vaal River; it is more than funny—it is ridiculous-but cannot for an instant be compared to the antics of these two mammoth brutes. Their great height added to the grotesque ness of their behavior; but even if the within striking distance, simultaneously each dropped upon his knees and commenc ed to twist and twine his long neck about that of the other, with the evident purpose of seizing his adversary's throat. This lasted several minutes, but both were "skilled of fence," and ultimately relinquished this style of fighting and adopted other tactics. They began rearing as if to bear each other down, their mouths all the time open to grip if opportunity occurred. At length the violent exercise began to tell upon the elder beast; he made some mistake in a parry, and the younger seized with his teeth the foot of the veteran, who in return laid hold of his opponent's ear. For some moments there was a pause. It was very brief, With a gigantic effort the younger giraffe threw the old hero upon his haunches. He looked very much as if he had played his last card, but there was pluck in his aged heart yet, though the battle was not for him; years told against him, and victory lay with the youngster, who celebrated it by trying to drag the vanquished after him. This opera tion must have been painful, for the shrieks that the defeated warrior uttered were heartrending.
