BEAUTY ON THE BENCH.

Supreme Court.

A Pretty Girl Once Sat With California's Supreme Court.

"Few people are aware that a woman once sat on the Supreme bench in California."

It is a fact, nevertheless, continued Mr. Wallace, that in 1880, Judge Wallace was on the bench and was accompanied by his daughter, a very young, bright and handsome miss.

"One morning at the breakfast table in the Golden Eagle Hotel, Justice Wallace said: 'Miss Shafter, I feel quite delighted. Since you have been in Sacramento you have not neglected to visit me. Won't you come to my home this morning and sit with us in my parlor? My colleague, Judge Crocker, is absent, so you might as well occupy his seat.'"

"Oh, yes, I'll come," returned Miss Shafter, and the subject was dropped until she saw Judge Wallace never dreamed that the invitation would be accepted.

"An hour after arrival, Miss Shafter, accompanied by one of the officers of her father's staff, came to my office and said that she wanted to go to the Supreme Court. 'Would I take her? With pleasure. And away we went. A young attorney was arguing a case when we entered the court. He did not notice us as we quietly seated ourselves, and went on with most brilliant eloquence. Judge Wallace laid his hand on the arm of the empty chair and nodded to my companion to take it.

"'Shall I go up?' she asked of me. 'Why, certainly,' I responded. 'It would be discourteous to the bench not to do so.'"

"She hesitated a little, but as Judge Wallace regarded her with a smiling invitation and patted the chair provocatively, she arose and firmly with the grace of a queen, walked up the steps and sat down on the bench. The judge arose and gravely bowed. Wallace stepped forward, and extending his hand to her, said: 'Welcome to the bench. And justice was presented to her in word and deed. The miss had of their day, and she was the first woman to sit on the bench of the Supreme Court. The judge and justice was presented to her in word and deed.
