

The editor has only to add that any parties disposed to send money or books to aid in this grand enterprise may, if so disposed, call on him for any aid in carrying out their kind intentions. We cannot sufficiently emphasize the importance of this work, which has so impressed us that photographs have been made specially to accompany this editorial article.

We add a list of Oxford men already in the mission field,* and who are working under the Church Missionary Society, as taken from the C. M. S. Report of 1893-94 :

Before closing this paper, the editor ventures to appeal to friends of missions in America to furnish a moderate sum of money to erect in this country, say in New York City, a building for the use of student volunteers as a sort of rendezvous. If in New York City or Brooklyn, it would serve as a rallying-point for departing and returning missionary students, and might have, like the Henry Martyn Hall at Cambridge, the names of all who have gone abroad as such volunteers enrolled on its walls and tablets. What an inspiration would such a meeting-place be to all missionary service and sacrifice ! Let it be called the "Brainerd Memorial Hall," or the "Judson Memorial." We prefer the former, as a tribute to that great leader of all missions, whose life among our Indian tribes was the inspiration of Jonathan Edwards, S. J. Mills, Adoniram Judson, William Carey, and a host of others. Who will take the lead in providing this new nucleus for missions among our devoted young men and women ?

* Two or three others have sailed since this report was published. Nor are those who have sailed under undenominational societies here included.
