

Finally, Canada supports NATO's continuing stabilizing function in East-West relations and welcomes the manner in which the Alliance has promoted and managed change by encouraging those forces in the East which are working towards a transformation of their societies. NATO will continue to assert itself for many years to come as a useful and flexible political entity in the ongoing dialogue between East and West.