

The search for peace is not a one-person or one-nation crusade. It must be cooperative effort, only then will it succeed. Canada's peace movement is not simply important, it is vital and indispensable in the search for genuine global security.