TORONTO ROMANCE ENDS IN U.S. DIVORCE COURT

Met in This City, Wedded in Hamilton, Lived in Chatham and Then Separated.

BUFFALO, March 12.—(Special).—MRS. Minnie Dixon, formerly of Toronto, who is declared by her husband, Dr. William Dixon, to have been a writer on a Toronto newspaper when he met her in 1893, is defendant in a divorce action brought by her husband, who at present lives in Buffalo.

The correspondent named is Senator Patrick H. McCarren of Brooklyn, against whom Mrs. Dixon brought suit some months ago for breach of promise. Her whereabouts is unknown to Dr. Dixon.

Married in Hamilton. In the complaint Dr. Dixon says that he and the defendant were married in Hamilton, Ont., Dec. 23, 1893, by the Rev. C. E. Whitcombe. Dr. Dixon alleges misconduct on the part of his wife at various times in New York, Albany and Brooklyn with Patrick H. McCarren. It is alleged that since the consummation of the acts the defendant has borne a child, which is now (at the date of the action) three years and three months old, that the child bears the name of Patrick H. Neil McCarren, Jr., and that the said child is not the child of the plaintiff.

Dr. Dixon first met the woman, he declares, in Toronto, Ont., in 1893. She represented herself to him as Mrs. Minnie D. Laferte, the widow of a Dr. Donald T. Laferte. They went from Toronto to Detroit, where they lived two years.

Was Belleville Girl. 'She brought to me,' Dr. Dixon declares, 'a paper purporting to be her certificate of marriage to Dr. Laferte; also papers which purported to be the will of Dr. Laferte and another paper represented to be a copy of the inventory of his estate, showing that it amounted to $150,000. She also produced a baby, telling me that it was her child by Dr. Laferte. She subsequently confessed to me that the certificate of marriage, the copy of the will and of the property inventory were forgeries, and she also confessed to me that the said child was not her child, but that she was the daughter of Thomas and Emma Downs of Belleville, Ont.'

Lived at Chatham. 'After marriage we lived in Toronto, Detroit, Alpena, Mich., and then at Chatham, Ont. We separated at the latter place in 1895. After our separation I saw her in Montreal in July, 1897. In November, 1897, I went to New York City to reside and I did not see her again until I was called to appear as a witness for the defendant in the action brought by her against Patrick H. McCarren for alleged breach of promise of marriage.

'I saw her at that time just long enough to identify her as the woman I married at Hamilton, Ont.'

While the World representative was there a complete outfit for an expected tiny citizen and its mother was made up, sufficient to last three months.

The alarm was unexpectedly sounded in the Bartlett-avenue school this afternoon. With the front stairway barricaded and the children half-way down the passage they had to cut a retreat by another exit, which complicated them for a moment, but by a steady march the 250 pupils evacuated the building in 72 seconds. At a second trial with all the exits free the building was vacated in 58 seconds. Building operations have started in earnest around here. Four new buildings are being erected on Dovercourt-road and several on Delaware and Somerset-avenues.
