Mr. J. Lancaster, who spent five years upon the west coast of Florida in the study of the habits of aquatic birds, of which he has made a specialty asserts that he has seen frigate birds fly for seven consecutive days, night and day, without ever resting. According to his observations the fatigue of these birds is not excessive, even in such long continuances in the air. In fact the frigate bird can easily and almost without the flap of the wing, not only maintain herself, but also fly with a speed of nearly a hundred miles an hour. The spread of the wings extended varies between eleven and thirteen feet.
