F. W. Stringer Receives Gift From Halifax Theatre

F. W. Stringer, scenic artist at the Imperial Theatre, has returned from Halifax where for the last month or five weeks he had been redecorating the Orpheus Theatre, managed and leased by L. R. Acker. During the renovating and designing the theatre maintained its usual run of business, a false ceiling-platform being hung through small holes in the roof. This plan was first employed in Imperial Theatre here two years ago.

The Orpheus Theatre was formerly a church and during its long use as a place of entertainment retained the rehitted characteristics of such. In re-decorating the interior the St. John artist curtained and lambriquinned the tall windows and otherwise piled his transforming brush so that all trace of the old lines have disappeared. The essential scheme is in cream, Chinese blue and gold. Floral touches, old tapestries, etc. are worked into the rice ensemble. The proscenium arch is now a Venetian scene with Doge's Palace etc. and under new electrical lighting is the piece de resistance of the interior. Manager Acker is evidently greatly pleased with the work and the speed with which it was executed for, saide from a cash bonus, he has forwarded.

DEATHS NUMBER 12.

Mrs. Donnie Hartt was fined $200 in the police court this morning on a charge of having liquor in her premaises on Long Wharf. Her house was visited last night by Inspector Fred Killen, Detectives Saunders and Kilpatrick and several policemen. Ten bottles of gin were found in a hen house and a partly filled bottle in the house.

In the police court this morning William M. Ryan, for the prosecution, said the defendant had been before the court on other occasions and could be considered as a persistent violator. He said that representation was made that she was the mother of four children and that in event of her having to go to jail a questlon arose as to the disposal of them. He would take that into consideration, and would ask that the maximum fine be struck, but if she was convicted again she need expect no leniency.

Magistrate Henderson said that Mr. Ryan had stated the facts of the case He said the law was put in force in 1916 and since that time the defendant appeared at least once a year charged with violating the law. He said if he sentenced her to nine months in jail.

Jamaicans' Desire Expressed by St. John Man, Just Returned.

pleased with the work and the speed with which it was executed for, aside from a cash bonus, he has forwarded to Mr. Stringer yesterday a Waltham gold watch suitably engraved with appreciative phrases as a memento of the rejuvenation of his theatre at the St John man's hands. Naturally Mr. Stringer is especially pleased with this surprise token of appreciation.

The Halifax press and public have been quite lavish in their praise of the St. John artist's work and Mr. Acket has evidently sprung a complete surresponding to the control the entire yearly crop. Many residents of Jamaica to establish better trade relations with Canada, Mr. Mc-Bride said that at the present time the C. G. M. M. have a sailing every three weeks, but that the steamers are not equipped with refrigerators and that they are unable to ship fruit to this country. The United Fruit Company operate large steamers equipped to control the entire yearly crop. Many residents, he said, expressed a desire to deal independently with Canadian firms. Prior to his departure from arterio sclerosis, tubercular meningitis, pulmonary tuberculosis, myocarditis and mitral reguritation, one each. St. John artist's work and Mr. Acket has evidently sprung a complete surprise on the city. At the first there was naturally some resentment at the importation of an artist bút once the outstanding quality of his work was seen such criticism ceased. Furthermore Mr. Acker desired to keep his theatre going during the operation, which contractors said was impossible.

One pleaded guilty another said if he had not been drunk he would not have been there and the thirty said he had taken a couple of their trained there was a regular deluge to the control the entire yearly crop. Many residents, he said, expressed a desire to deal independently with Canadian firms. Prior to his departure from Jamaica Mr. McBride had or was contemplating sending to England for four steamers to operate in summer. They are expected to be placed on the Jamaica and Trinidad routes by the first of the year.

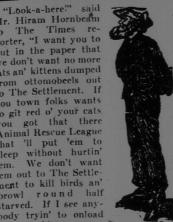

A little before he left Mr. McBride met eminent Canadian physicians who were attending an International Congress. Among them was Dr. Banting of Toronto, discoverer of insulin for the treatment of diabetes.
