also impressed with the importance of keeping our young men in the country. He would tell the government that if they wanted to keep the young men in the country they must keep down the taxation, and a mo-ter of fact the government, as far as this immigration question was concerned, were simply perverting the policy of the opposition. It seemed to be the desire of the government to pursue a vigorous policy for the promotion of the agricultural interest.
The proper way to do this was through the farmers' associations and agricultural societies, for they knew what the real interests of the farmer was. It was amusing to read the statement in the speech that it was gratifying to know how low the history of the province had its financial credit stood so high as at present. That was not true. How could the province be in a better position of credit for having rolled up a net debt of $2,500,000 than before it had a debt of $1,000,000? The low of interest at which money could be secured nowadays confined to the province of New Brunswick, or to the dominion of Canada? He hoped that in the very early stages of the session the provincial secretary would give some explanation as to how it was that a hitch had occurred in the attempt made by the government recently to float $1,000,000 of bonds.

Referring to the proposed exhibition by this province at the Sportsman's Exposition at Boston, Dr. Stockton thought this was a very low move in the right direction. The government should do all it possibly could to attract here tourists and sportsmen. It was estimated that the state of Maine derived annually from this class of visitors between $3,000,000 and $10,000,000. The game laws of the province were apparently about what was required, but the fishery laws needed amendment, or else hundreds of people who wished to come here would be turned away. The locking up of our fisheries was a great mistake.
The monopolists were a great mistake.
The visitor who wishes to fish with the fly for a few days on our salmon streams and trout waters should have the privilege of doing so without placing himself under an obligation to these wealthy lessees. Doubtless the government would say they had done something in this direction when they placed a number of trout in Loch Lomond, but this was a mere attempt to hoodwink the people, because Loch Lomond had always been open to anybody who wished to fish. If the question of providing trout was to attract sportsmen and tourists to this province, as they were now being attracted to Maine, was properly handled by the government a golden harvest would be realized compared with which the bonking of the wheat industry would seem insignificant.

All could sympathize with the language of the speech with reference to the development of the trade of St.
John. On this head there should be no jealousy on the part of any portion of the province, and that was because the development of that ocean carrying trade was a distinct and direct benefit to the whole country.
Our farmers have now a market in St. John for all their products, and there seems to be no limit to the demand. It was a matter of concrete realization not only for this province, but also for the whole dominion, that we were demonstrating our ability to do our own export trade through our own ports. In this connection Dr. Stockton read extracts from a letter that was sent to the American press by one Edward Farrer, in which he stated that because American fishermen could not purchase bait and other supplies at provincial ports they had a grievance.
A Canadian who went abroad and made a statement like that was a traitor to Canada and the empire.
Canada was simply standing on her treaty rights established three-quarters of a century ago.

With reference to the tenth paragraph in the address, Dr. Stockton said he would move a amendment by Mr. Pinder, that the following words be added: "We hail with pleasure all tendencies and efforts towards the unity and consolidation of the empire, and we desire to assure your honor that we think it would be a happy consummation, as well as directly to stimulate the agricultural and other interests of this country, if Canada, in common with other colonies, had preferential trade concessions in the markets of the mother country over foreign nations."

Dr. Stockton said it was easy to de-claim about the consolidation of the empire and about holding allegiance to a Queen ruling over three hundred and eighty-five millions of people, but if we really desire or expect to consolidate the empire we want more than a preferential arrangement in the markets of Canada for the British manufacturer. We want preferential arrangements in the markets of the mother country for the farmers of Canada. Why should we benefit the British manufacturer to the same time ignore the Canadian farmer? Why should we say we want no concessions in the markets of the mother country?
A colonial conference was held in Ottawa in 1894, at which there was a strong expression of opinion for some such concessions. In 1896, and what a conference held in London, and what did Mr. Chamberlain, the colonial secretary, say on that occasion? He said, Let the colonies come to us with a proposal or proposals, and it will not be treated by us in a huckstering spirit. The prime minister of Canada, in his Liverpool speech last June, did not voice the sentiments of the people of Canada when he said:
"We have done it because we owe a debt of gratitude to Great Britain." Hon. Mr. Emmerson is not that true?

Dr. Stockton certainly agreed with that statement. Certainly it was right and proper to give a preference to England, and it would have been base ingratitude if we had not done it, but we want also to feel that we are connected with a country that looks upon us more favorably than it does on foreign nations.

ada was able to raise were imported in 1896 by Great Britain, only $48,000, of this, or less than seven per cent, had come from Canada.

At six o'clock Dr. Stockton moved the adjournment of the debate, stating that he had not concluded his address.
Further, on motion of Hon. Mr. Emmerson, consideration of the proposed address was made the order of the day for tomorrow at 2.30 o'clock.
On motion of Hon. Mr. Emmerson an ordinance of agreement with Mr. Mc-Dade for reporting, telegraphing and publishing the debates, and on his motion, seconded by Hon. Mr. Emmerson, the official reporter was assigned a

a committee of five members, Hon.
Mr. Emmerson, Hon. Mr. Tweedie and Hon. Mr. White, Mr. Stockton and

HALIFAX.

The Gallia Experiences an Exceptionally Rough Trip Across the Atlantic.

Boats Carried Away and Saloons and Staterooms Flooded by the High Seas.

HALIFAX, Feb. 10.—The Beaver line steamer Gallia arrived from Liverpool at 10 o'clock this morning and sailed at three for St. John. The Gallia had the largest number of passengers brought by any steamer this season. Her list included 24 saloon, 47 intermediate and 110 steerage, of whom 18 saloon and 71 steerage and intermediate landed here.
Most of them were bound for British Columbia and many of them for the Klondyke. Thirty-seven packages and fifty-four bags of mails and eighty tons of freight were landed here. The Gallia had one of the most stormy voyages experienced by any trans-Atlantic steamer this season.
For twelve days she had been beating with hurricanes in the western ocean, tossed about by the boisterous and tempestuous seas, which time and again threatened to engulf her. Strong winds and heavy head seas beat upon the ship from the channel entrance to the banks. Sea mountains high rolled over the steamer, engulfing her fore and aft, carrying away boats and davits, smashing in the deck house, damaging the engine skylights and ventilators and flooding the saloons and state-rooms. The heavy onslaught of the seas pouring into the saloons terrified the passengers, but Capt.
Stewart repaired the damage and righted the ship as speedily as the weather would permit it. When the gale was at its height, it is said that the ship's carpenter and four seamen were struck by a heavy sea while attempting to effect temporary repairs.
They were thrown violently on the deck and narrowly escaped being washed overboard. The carpenter and seamen were disabled and severely bruised by the force of the fall, and two other men were considerably injured. The second engineer met with a fall during the voyage and was temporarily disabled, but all the injured men are now able to move around, and it is expected that they will soon recover. The Gallia encountered severe weather from the outset. She sailed from Liverpool at 4.45 o'clock on the afternoon of January 28th, and had to poke her way through the channel in the face of a heavy gale, during which she shipped water fore and aft. The steamer took on her mails and sailed from Moville at 11 a. m. on the 30th, but she had scarcely got outside when she ran into a strong gale, with heavy head seas. On February 1st the Gallia encountered a severe hurricane, which blew from the west with such terrific force that the captain was forced to heave the ship to, bowing the sea. At 1 p. m. the Gallia shipped a tremendous sea, which engulfed the ship fore and aft. The mighty force of the seas which boarded the ship swept away two boats, snapping off the massive iron davits like pipe stems, and carrying away the skids and rails, and inflicting sundry other damage. The sea smashed the deck house, the engine room skylights, ventilators, and flooded the cabins and saloons. The gale continued with lesser force until February 4th. The heavy seas played havoc with the ship's railings, twisting them in every direction. The water flooded the holds, damaging the cargo to a large extent. All the glass on one side of the engine room skylight was smashed to atoms, and davits and rails of solid iron, five inches thick, were whipped off like sticks.
On February 7th, in lat. 48, long. 48, the Gallia met field ice, and she was forced to steam back to the southwest for twelve hours, during which time she passed through fields of very heavy ice. After Capt. Stewart eval-ued the ice fields he crossed the banks in 49 W., 48 N., and enjoyed fine weather from there to this port, arriving off Chebucto Head at nine o'clock this morning. She steamed into port, ten o'clock and was docked at deep water fifteen minutes later.

A few days ago a law firm in this city received instructions from Macdonald Bros. of St. John to issue papers for the arrest of Mrs. Lizzy Hayden of Halifax, and for a time Mr.
John. The husband left recently for England on a business trip. The couple had been married but a short time. It is alleged that before the marriage the woman contracted a debt of $1,000, which she did not pay. The firm heard a report last week that the woman intended to leave for England to join her husband. They immediately wired instructions to have her arrested. The firm issued a capias, and the woman was placed under arrest.
The claim will be resisted in the courts.

Despatches received at Newcastle Tuesday announced the death at Med-of ex-Sheriff Mitchell, and nephew of Hon. Peter Mitchell. The deceased, who was about forty years of age, was a lawyer, and had resided in the west for ten years. He was the owner of a large cattle ranch. Mrs. Mitchell and child had been visiting friends in Newcastle for some time. On receipt of the sad tidings they started for deceased gentleman's brother, Charles Mitchell, who is Provincial Secretary Tweedie's law partner.

ticularly hard on women and chilreducing expenses might have been hit upon that would have been more business like. Who is responsible for the obvious error is not yet fully known. Some say it is the new official, Mr. Harris; others say it emanated from one of the principal district superintendents. Be that as it may, it is exceedingly unpopular, and the silly and unwise order should be rescinded."

COLD FRIDAY.

(Fredericton Gleaner.)

In view of the recent cold weather, when the thermometer has gone as low as 39 degrees below zero, and some of the days have been accompanied with "Cold Friday" of 1881, the following extract from the diary of Colonel Robinson will be of timely interest: What is spoken of throughout the province as the Cold Friday took place on Feb. 8th, 1881. On Feb. 7th, at 2 p. m., at Fredericton, the mercury stood at 14 degrees above zero; cloudy. Began to snow at 8 a. m., and continued until 2 p. m., when it turned to rain. At 5 p. m. the wind came northwest, with the thermometer at 42 degrees above zero. And at 12 o'clock midnight the thermometer registered 24 degrees below zero, the mercury falling 68 degrees in 7 hours.
On Cold Friday morning the wind was blowing a gale from the northwest. The mercury stood at 24 degrees below zero at 8 a. m., the firmament at that time being filled with fine driving snow. At 9 a. m. the mercury stood at 23 degrees below zero; at 2 p. m. it was 23 degrees below, and remained stationary until 10 p. m. A violent northwest wind prevailed all day.

RECENT DEATHS.

(Amherst Press.)

Word was received here Sunday 6th inst., at 4 o'clock of the death of Walter Hearty, son of the Rev. W. H.
Hearty, and brother of Mrs. T. C.
Campbell, at Guelph, Ont., while he was taking a course at the Agricultural college. The remains will pass through here tomorrow night by the Atlantic Express, accompanied by his sister, Dr. Jane Hearty. Remains left Halifax on Wednesday morning for Yarmouth for interment. Deceased was 20 years of age.

We regret to learn of the sudden death at Boston, Mass., Feb. 1st, of Louisa, aged 42, wife of Rev. S. C.
Wells (retired). She was the fifth and youngest daughter of the late Stephen Fulton of Wallace and granddaughter of the late Ashur Black of Amherst. Five children are left. An infant daughter's death preceded the mother's by a few days.
Fulton of Brockton, Mass., R. M. Fulton of Sackville, N. B., are brothers, and Mrs. (Dr.) Kempton of Wallace, N. S., the only surviving sister of deceased.

Very general regret was expressed on 8th inst., when it was learned that I. Chlip. Olive was dead. Mr. Olive was a genial, kindly man, whom everybody liked, and called him "Uncle". He enjoyed the respect and confidence of those business men for whom in his capacity of customs broker he has transacted much important business. He was born in Carleton just fifty years ago, and was one of a family of nine brothers.
The seven survivors are Isaac J. of this city, William H. of Montreal, John, Halifax; Albert, Moncton; George M., Frank, and Percy, Boston.
He served his apprenticeship in the hardware establishment of his brother, William H., and continued with him in the brokerage business, and after it over and managing for himself. Mr. Olive's death was very sad and very unexpected. About a week ago he underwent an operation that was not considered serious, but inflammation set in and he suffered greatly. Monday it was thought he was improving, but during the night he sank rapidly and died about seven o'clock that morning. Mrs.
Olive, who was a Miss Beattie of Carleton, and one son, Harold, employed with W. Parks & Sons, Ltd., survive.

The officials at the customs house, where Mr. Olive went daily in the transaction of business, mourn for him as one endeared to them all by close and genial companionship.
Mrs. James Williams, who died at Westfield on Tuesday at the age of 85 years, was the widow of a well known former merchant of St. John. James Williams years ago kept a general store on Simonds street, dealing in groceries, glass and paint, and later erected the Williams block, where the present north end post office is located.
He was a member of the first town council of old Portland. He has been dead for some fifteen years, and for nearly as many years Mrs.
Williams has lived with a relative at Nerepis. Her maiden name was Souther. Her husband had no children.
Both were of English birth. James Williams was a man of the highest character, even to eccentricity in matters of conscience, for he would never sell his soul to the devil. He was advanced in years, but his mind was as well as a straight-forward, honorable man.

LUCKNOW, Ont., Feb. 7.—The death is announced of Dr. Jean H.
Garnier, one of the leading naturalists of Canada. He was a specialist in reptiles and had just finished reading the proofs of a publication entitled "The Reptiles of Canada," which he was about to publish when death overtook him. The doctor was a graduate of Trinity college, Dublin, and came to Canada over fifty years ago, settling in this neighborhood, where he enjoyed a large practice until compelled by advancing age, to relinquish it. The doctor leaves an exceedingly large collection, although at the time of the fire of the Toronto university the university authority purchased enough of his collection to take the place of that destroyed. The doctor was a correspondent of several sporting papers, and enjoyed considerable celebrity as a writer on Canadian natural history.

The Australians, out of five test that it is impossible in the one match

PROVINCIAL NEWS.

JEMSEG, Queens Co., Feb. 2.—The

a deep gloom over the entire com-peacefully away. It is not often we are called to mourn the loss of one so universally beloved. He bore his suffering with patience. The sorrowing James Wiggins of Waterboro, who has carried the mail between the Narrows and Chipman for the last twelve years, finished his contract today, and will retire from the business. This ends the mail route between Norton and Chipman. Mr. Wiggins was an excellent mail carrier.

NORFOLK, Northumberland Co., Feb. 2.—Yesterday's storm has been the worst of the season. The banks of snow are mountains high. The highway roads will hardly be broken out, as they were in a very bad condition before the storm owing to the teams taking the board ice, which was good. The water in some places came above the snow, and the shores last night and is frozen, making very good travelling, which will be the only troughfare from now till spring opens, when the breaking up of the ice will compel the residents to break open the Queen's highway.

The lumbermen are hauling off the yards at present, and men are docking out of the woods, as the crews are reduced to about half.

William Matchett, an old and respected resident of this place, died January 26th aged seventy-five years.
The remains will be interred in the Presbyterian cemetery at Red Bank on Wednesday. His pastor, the Rev.
Mr. Murray, conducted the services.
Mr. Matchett leaves a sorrowing wife and a large family of children to mourn the loss of a kind husband and father.

HAVELOCK, Kings Co., Feb. 2.— As a result of the intensely cold weather of the last few days there is considerable sickness in the village. The advanced department of the superior school is closed because of the illness of Mr. Sterritt, the teacher, and a great many others are ill with a grippe.

The train did not attempt to run on Tuesday, and the mail was carried to Petitcodiac by Howard Garland, who made the trip on snowshoes. Tuesday's mail to Havelock did not arrive until Wednesday evening, and was carried by the train, which made the regular trip on Wednesday by aid of two engines and a snow plough.
A sewing circle has been organized at Havelock. The proceeds will be used to beautify the grounds of the village cemetery.

The Rev. Mr. Young has been holding meetings in Havelock and vicinity. He preached in the Baptist church of this village on Sunday morning and evening.

ELGIN, ALBERT CO., Feb. 4.—Mrs.
William Garland of Sherman Road upset a lighted lamp on her dress, which immediately took fire, burning all the clothes off her body before it could be extinguished. She is burned so badly that she cannot live but a very short time. Her mind became deranged a year or so ago, which was the cause of the sad accident.

During the recent cold snap the mercury registered 34 below zero on two different mornings. The snow is getting so deep in this locality that quite a number have had to quit the woods.

A few nights ago some parties broke into the store of Joseph Bennett and took a quantity of tobacco, cigars, overcoats, boots and about five dollars in cash. A young Hayward boy has been arrested and confessed to the crime, but his colleague, a Geldart boy, who he says was with him, has not yet been arrested.

A Farmers' Institute meeting is to be held on the afternoon and evening of the 11th.

Miss Ivy Dyazart has gone to Boston.
Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Goggin are receiving congratulations on the arrival of a daughter.
