A PAIR OF BOOTS

Just after the war broke out a Canadian bootmaking firm got an order from the Canadian Government to make 40,000 pairs of boots for the army. The manager of the company, making a speech to the employees, gave some good advice to show what every worker might do to make sure that every boot that went on a Canadian soldier's foot in Europe was as good as any other part of his equipment. He showed that a poorly filled sole, a rotten counter in the heel, a badly-sewn seam or a defective arch might spoil a soldier's efficiency in the field. In view of the fact that the war is teaching us all to be soldiers one way or another, suppose we apply a little of this bootmaking philosophy to the boots we wear in everyday life. A man is known by the boots he wears. Looking over the honor roll of your boots past and present—probably made in Canada—how do they compare for efficiency with the things you have bought from other countries?

The writer of this article has been looking over his. He has reviewed a few rotten boots, some middling, and some absolutely unimpeshable. At this moment he has a pair on which he bought eleven months ago and has worn every day since—accept a few Sundays and the day he took them to the cobiler to get new lifts on the under-off heels. In those boots of honor there is not a break in the sole, nor a ripped seam, nor a crack in the leather, nor a counter gone down in the heel. That pair of boos ctulin't have been better value for the money if they had been made under eath in a time of war for a Canadian soldier to wear maintaining the honor of his country abroad. The man who made them had the honor of his firm on his conscience. When he put them on the market he charged a good price because he knew they were worth it.

Those boots were made in Canade, from Canadian leather, by Canadian workmen, paid in Canadian money by a firm financed on Canadian capital. What is true of boots is equally true of the thousand and one other articles that Canadians buy. In the small proportion of cases where it is not

Trampled To Death

Suppose you were to read in the paper some morning that a disastrous fire had wiped the town of Amherst, or Galt or Lethbridge completely off the map. That would be a hard knock to Canada wouldn't it?

Yet, figuratively and literally, Canadians are ruthlessly trampling a town that size under their feet every year,--actually obliterating it.

Every year we Canadians import $4,000,000 worth of boots and shoes from the United States. On them we pay over $1,000,000 duty.

That $5,000,000, if spent for Canadian-made boots, would keep six big shoe factories busy the year round—employing altogether about 2,400 hands, paying out $1,500,000 in wages, supporting in all about 10,000 people.

Concentrate all these people in one place and you add to the map of Canada a good live town like Amherst or Galt or Lethbridge. Rather startling, isn't it.

When out of pure thoughtlessness, you buy an imported boot you crunch under your heel the opportunity to build up such a town.

In buying Canadian-made shoes you are paying for quality, not duty. Dollar for dollar they give you a value that is equal to, if not better than any others.

Next time be patriotic enough to refuse the pair the dealer offers you that is not
