

calleth them all by names of the greatness of his might; for that He is strong in power, not one faileth." "Hast thou not known? hast thou not heard, that the everlasting God the Lord, the Creator of the ends of the earth, fainteth not, neither is weary; there is no searching of His understanding." "The Heavens, even the Heavens, are the Lord's, but the earth hath he given to the children of men. O that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for His wonderful works to the children of men." "One generation shall praise thy works to another, and shall declare his mighty acts." Our time is short in this life to praise God, for every year, it is said that 25 millions of our fellow-creatures die and pass into eternity.

Our life is a dream,
Our time as a stream
Glides swiftly away,
And the fugitive moment refuses to stay.

Time like an ever rolling stream,
Bears all its sons away,
They fly forgotten, as a dream
Dies at the opening day.

Let us "Redeem the time, because the days are evil,"—"All thy works shall praise thee, O Lord, and thy saints shall bless Thee,"—"When I consider Thy heavens, the work of Thy fingers, the moon and the stars, which thou hast ordained, what is man that Thou art mindful of him." "Thou madest him to have dominion over the works of thy hands; Thou hast put all things under his feet." We may well say, "The lines are fallen unto us in pleasant places, yea, we have a goodly heritage,"—"Thine, O Lord, is the greatness and the power, and the glory, and the victory, and the Majesty, for all that is in the heaven and in the earth is Thine—Thine is the kingdom, O Lord, and Thou art exalted as head above all—both riches and honor come of Thee, and Thou reignest over all, and in Thy hand is power and might, and in Thine hand it is to make great, and to give strength unto all—now therefore, our God, we thank Thee and praise Thy glorious name." "For Thou hast created all things, and for Thy pleasure they are and were created." "For of Him, and through Him, and to Him, are all things, to whom be glory for ever. Amen."
