- Memoire (in French) unsigned, stating the promises of de Puisaye to the writer, which were not fulfilled and charging him with improper conduct. The tone of the letter is seen in the conclusion. The British Ambassador to the United States, it is said in it, heard so much respecting de Puisaye whilst in Upper Canada, that he sent to Quebec to obtain further information respecting his intrigues, "But General Hunter knew more about them than he did and answered 'I know the rascal.' Facts fitted to call for the vigilance of an ambassador and to cause the utterance of such an epithet from a General in command must certainly be very serious." 389
