THAT MARKET BUILDING.

So much has been said and written pro and con, on the new market building enterprise that the public is oming puzzled with the multiplicity of proposals, and there is a very general dissatisfaction at the manner in which the whole enterprise is being handled.

So far, The Planet has said nothing concerning the matter, except in its news columns, but this journal believes that the Council should very carefully and honestly look into all of the proposals, use the best judgment in passing upon them and proceed with the work.

The whole question in the minds of the members of our Council should be: What building will best serve the city's interests and will result in the minimum expenditure and maximum revenue?

Let the aldermen simply solve that problem justly and honestly and then proceed. Thus-and thus only-will they do justice to themselves and those they represent.

The proposal in the letter of Messrs. Wilson & Son, which appeared in Saturday's issue, to appoint experts and practical men engaged in the building trade to go over the plans, estimates and proposals with the Council, will meet with public favor. There has been manifest dissatisfaction with the procedure heretofore adopted, and the differences of opinion have occasioned much unfavorable discussion.

To thus secure experts, to obtain their decision and to abide by it, will surely solve the problem in the only proper way. It is a plan that is fair to all parties and one that will give Matisfaction and the best results to the people who foot the bills.

THE LIQUOR VOTE.

The claim that the result of the late election was largely due to the liquor vote is worth investigating. If true it would simply mean that one of the props on which the Government depended, was the liquor traffic, for it is clear that if the Government had not depended on such a prop the Government could not suffer from its withdrawal. The contention, therefore, whether true or otherwise, is practically an admission that while the Government was posing as the original and only genuine friend of temperance, it was depending for its existence in a large measure on the liquor traffic. It may be taken for granted that the liquor support was not given for nothing. There may the a good deal of liquor in politics, but there is very little politics in the liquor business. There, business is business, and politics is business; and if the liquor interests supported the Government it was, presumably, for cause. But what evidence is there that the liquor vote was transferred to Mr. Whitney? The Wine and Spirit Gazette, the organ of the liquor traffic, assured its readers in the last issue before the election that the interests of the traffic were equally safe in the hands of either political party for the next parliamentary term, and that the liquor people were free to vote as they wished. No doubt many men in the liquor business foresaw the result of the election, just as many others foresaw it, and made haste to get on the safe side: but that there was a general movement of the liquor forees in support of Mr. Whitney, or that there was any special reason for such a movement, other than the prospects of a Whitney victory, is open to dispute.

THE LITTLE FATHER AND HIS CHILDREN.

A fortnight ago the Russian workingmen were imploring the Czar to meet them and hear their grievances. He refused to see them. With child-like confidence in their "Little child-like confidence in their "Little Father" they marched to the palace and were shot down in heaps by the soldiers of the Czar. Like bad children who needed chastisement they got it.

On Tuesday last the Czar sent for a deputation of these workingmen to come to the palec at Tsarko-Selo. They immediately responded, were mildly scolded and told they had been bad, and must not do it any more. Then they were allowed to enjoy their Little Father's hosp tality, were served with a good dinner and went away cheering for the Czar. It was only after they were on their way back that they remembered that they had grievances to lay before the Little Father and demands to make for a measure of liberty Like children they had forgetten all about it. for a measure of liberty Like chil-dren they had forgotten all about it is the enjoyment of the Czar's Name

Perhaps the deputation was handpicked and the whole affair arranged for effect on the outside world, If that was the case it was an artistic effort for it demonstrated to the world that the Russian workingman at least, appears to fack the attri-butes of manhood and self-respect that characterize the liberty-loving peoples of other nations. One day themselves, their women and children ire being shot down like animals in the streets by order of the Czar. The next they are accepting his chiding, eating his bread and salt and cheering for the autocrat who trampled them under foot.

If that deputation is representative of the Russian masses, then Russian liberty is a long way off.-Ottawa Citizen.

A CHANGE OF HEART. Hamilton Spectator.

Before the election the Toronto Globe abused the Hossacks as if they were horse thieves. Now the Globe is on the knees begging them to re-turn to the Grit fold.

WHAT ALL DOCTORS KNOW. The Lancet.

The amount to which actual de terioration of the race exists among us has been much exaggerated, but undoubtedly the widespread evil of inattention to meals by the house wives of England is responsible for a good deal of their physical ill-health and that of their offspring. THERE'S MANY A SLIP Hamilton Spectator.

On the evening of the recent Dominion election a smart Aleck of the Grit persuasion was taking in the bulletins at the newspaper offices. He noticed that Laurier's majority was running up fast, and was then omewhere in the neighborhood of 60. He hurried to the Royal Hotel, fastened upon a good-natured Tory and offered to bet that Laurier would have 50 majority. The Tory did not have 50 majority. The Tory did not know how things were going, and took the bet, it being decided that, as usual, the first division in the house would settle the thing. Last night the first division came, and lo, it was 40! And there is a Grit in town whose language is very much like that of the Hamilton Times.

NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA

A CURE FOR ALL.

Not a Patent Cure-All, Nor a Modern Miracle, But Simply a Rational Cure for Dyspepsia.

In these days of humbuggery and deception, the manufacturers of patent medicines, as a rule, seem to think their medicines will not sell unless they claim that it will cure every disease under the sun. And they never think of leaving out dyspepsis and stomach troubles. They are sure to claim that their nostrum is absolutely certain to cure every dyspeptic and he need look no further.

In the face of these absurd claims In the face of these absurd claims it is refreshing to note that the proprietors of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have carefully refrained from making any undue claims or false representations regarding the merits of this most excellent remedy for dyspepsia and stomach troubles. They make but one claim for it, and that is, that for indigestion and various stomach troubles Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is a radical cure. They go no farther than this, and any man or woman suffering from indigestion, chronic or nervous dyspepsia, who will give the remedy a trial will find that nothing is claimed for it that the facts will not fully sustain. It is a modern discovery, composed of harmiess vegetable ingredients acceptable to the weakest or most delicate stomach. Its great success in curing stomach troubles is due to the fact that the medicinal properties are such that it will digest whatever wholesome food is taken into the stomach, is in good working order or not. KENNEDY PLAYERS TO-NIGHT.

The Octoroon is the bill to be presented by the Kennedy Players at the Grand to-night.

One of the notable features of the Kennedy Players, are the speeches each evening before the curtain by John J. Kennedy. They are so entertaining and original that he has become in each city where he has appeared aimost a household name. The active brain of this genial comedian is always on the alert, and the subjects of his curtain speeches: are often taken from some incident that has been noticed by hm while riding from the depot to his hotel, while hundreds of others may have passed it by unnoticed, until Mr. Kennedy explains it in his own inimitable way before the curtain and keeps the audience in a roar, of laughter.

Mr. Kennedy has written a number of very successful plays, among them "Sh Couldn't Marry Three," "The Ir sh Detective," and the phenomnal success, "The Monght Express," of which the latter two plays will be presented during the Kennedy Players engagement in this city next week.

ILLUSTRATE YOUR BOOKS. KEEP UP YOUR ENERGY.

Stand Erect and Walk as Though You Were Somebody.

Never allow your physical standard to drop. Keep up your energy. Walk as if you were somebody and were go-ing to do something worth while in the world, so that even a stranger will note your bearing and mark your superior-ity. If you have fallen into a habit of walking in a listless, indelent way, turn right about face at once and make waixing in a listless, inacient way, turn right about face at once and make a change. You don't want to shuffle along like the failures we often see sitting around on park benches or loiling about the streets, with their hands in their pockets, or haunting intelligence offices and wondering why fate has been so hard with them. You don't want to give people the impression that you are discouraged or that you are already failing to the rear. Straighten up, then! Stand erect! Be a man! You are a child of the Infinite King. You have royal blood in your veins. Emphasize it by your bearing. A man who is conscious of his kinship with God and of his power and who believes thoroughly in himself walks with a firm, vigorous step, with his head erect, arm, vigorous step, with his head erect, his chin in, his shoulders thrown back and down, and his chest well projected in order to give a large lung capacity. He is the man who does things. You cannot aspire or accomplish great or noble things so long as you assume the attitude and bearing of a coward or weaking. How to Add to Interest and Value of Your Library. You are all aware that there are coming from the presses all the time excellent pictures relating to everything under the sun and especially to the scenes and characters of well known books. The suggestions we would make is that you preserve such of these as may come in your way and then use them to illustrate your own books. It will be easy, for instance, to secure pertraits of the authors in whom you delight, and it often is not at all hard to find pictures of noted places referred to in the text of the book. Do not be in too great a hurry about pasting in what you find. It is wiser to keep an envelope—large enough to hold the pictures without bending them—and collect whatever comes rightfully to hand and is thought fit for the purpose. After you have a fair amount of material you can sort out the best and prepare it for the book. Some grownup people who give would make is that you preserve such out the best and prepare it for the book. Some grownup people who give a great deal of time, thought and money to this "extra illustrating," as it is called, are very finical about the work and have the pictures so prepared as to seem made for the volume. But this would not be worth your trouble. It is to be hoped that you all have something better worth your time and something better worth your time and effort. It will be best for you to mount your pictures on thin paper cut to the size of the book, and then fix these in their places with just a touch of pasts.—St. Nicholas.

Trees That Whistle. The musical or whistling tree is found in the West Indian islands, in Nubis and the Sudan. It has a pecullar shaped leaf and pods with a split or open edge. The wind passing through these sends out the sound which gives the tree its peculiar name. In Barbados there is a valley filled with these trees, and when the trade winds blow across the islands a constant meaning deep forced which is stant moaning, deep foned whistie is heard from it, which in the still hours of the night has a weird and unpleasof the night has a weird and unpleasant effect. A species of acacia which grows very abundantly in the Sudan is also called the whistling tree by the natives. Its shoots are frequently by the agency of the larvae of insects distorted in shape and swollen to a globular bladder from one to two inches in diameter. After the insect has merged from a circular hole in the side of this swelling, the opening, played upon by the wind, becomes a musical instrument equal in sound to a sweet toned flute.

The Feg Waron.

Did you ever hear of a wagon that could make fog? There is such a wagon, and it is used in California. Great fruit orchards there would be almost spolled by a heavy frost. So when the trees are in bloom and there is danger of a frost the fog wagon is driven through the orchards. The fog machine is a big wagon with a grate in the bottom, where tar is kept burning. Above this there is a tank of wet straw and water. The heat from the burning tar passes through the straw, and a great fog rises and protects the trees from frost.

To be told you look green mough to make one feel blue.
