

Annales
Très-Saint-Rosaire

1892
—
1916

LE REV. FRÈRE C. CHAMBERLAND, O. M. I.

"Religieux modeste, laborieux et intelligent, il organisa avec un talent extraordinaire les adresses et tout ce qu'il faut pour l'expédition des annales."
JOSEPH DOZOIS, O. M. I.

The illustration is a decorative page for the 'Annales Très-Saint-Rosaire'. It features a central portrait of a man in a dark turtleneck, identified as Rev. Frère C. Chamberland, O. M. I. The portrait is framed by a decorative border of roses and a string of beads. Above the portrait, the title 'Annales Très-Saint-Rosaire' is written in a stylized, gothic font. To the right of the portrait, there is a small circular emblem containing a religious scene, and below it, the years '1892' and '1916' are printed with a horizontal line between them. At the bottom, a quote in French describes the subject as a modest, diligent, and intelligent religious man who organized the addresses and the distribution of the annals. The quote is attributed to Joseph Dozois, O. M. I. The entire page is framed by a decorative border of roses and a string of beads.