NOVEMBER 22. 1918

try's foes. He will grant my prayer if He judge best, and thus I may in a measure atone for my son's sins."-John W. Harding, in New York

THE CATHOLIC TRUTH SOCIETY

MR. BELLOC ON THE CHURCH AND THE WORLD

The eleventh annual Conference of the Catholic Truth Society of Ire-land was held in the Round Room of the Dublin Mansion House on Wednesday in last week, Cardinal Logue presiding. The prelates pres-ent were the Archbishop of Tuam President of the Society, and the Bishops of Raphoe, Cloyne, Clonfert, Meath, Ross, Ossory, Elphin, Kil-laloe, Achonry, Kilmore, and Richmond, U. S. A. Cardinal Logue, in a brief intro ductory address, spoke of the good work which the Society was doing fellows.

work which the society was using, and of the great appreciation of it shown by people in the country. He wished that the leading laity would show more interest in the work. The gatherings of the Society were the only meetings they had in the country for the purpose of concert-ing and taking measures for the justification of religion and for the welfare of our Catholic people, and he assured them that they stood in bad need of Catholic action at the present day. "I do not," His Eminence explained, "mean offensive action or anything that would interfere with the rights of others. I would not even point a wooden gun at one of my own countrymen, no matter what his religion or his politics are. I do not mean aggressive action. I mean action taken for instructing our people, and helping them, and making them more comfortable and taking measures for improving their conditions, and especially for point-ing out to them and endeavoring to guard them against the many snare that are set for them at the present day. That is what I understand by Catholic action. There is a good deal of that action in other countries. Perhaps we might have more of it here in Ireland. We may not have felt the need of it more, but the need will be felt before long. We bishops and priests would be simply helpless without the active co opera tion of the laity. We could not carry on our works of charity, or build churches, or have our schools as they should be." His Eminence concluded by introducing Mr. Hilaire Belloc, who, he said, was one of the most distinguished literary men in England and the British Empire, be cause wherever the English tongue was spoken his writings were known and appreciated. A telegram conveying the blessing of the Pope was read in answer to message of loyalty to His Holiness.

MR. BELLOC'S ADDRESS Mr. Hilaire Belloc, who was given an enthusiastic reception, then livered the inaugural address of the Conference. He took for his subject "The Church and the Modern World," reports the Freeman's Journal, and in the course of an inquiry into what he said might be called European civilization, he distinguished the Catholic Church as an institut on differing altogether from anything around it, permeating the whole, yet by no manner of means identical with the whole-an institution commonly actually in antagonism with its environment precisely where that environment was one of high vigour." This said, could claim in its membership some of the citizens Irish nation, in so far as it remains of every nation, and yet not all the at home; the Bavarians since 1870, the other Catholic or partially Cathcitizens of any. Paradoxically enough this cosmopolitan thing car Paradoxically olic states of the Germanies, and in ried, in more than one society, the some measure the Catholic canton banner of nationality, and where it of Switzerland. With every Pole, and with most Irishmen, those two was in conflict with nationality and with patriotism, appeared to suffer. sentiments of nationality and of relig-Though spread throughout the world ion combine. The third category is it was an institution so amenable to that state of affairs peculiar to Pro-testant Germany, England, the United so strict a discipline that a short, open, and not minatory letter ad-States, and the English colonies. Oddly enough, this very partial, dressed from the Pope to the very wealthiest of its sections-the ephemeral state of affairs, only to be French Church-caused all the memfound in one section of the world is bers of that body at once to abandon often treated of in the English lanproperty worth many millions of guage-both in the New world and pounds, and yet on the other hand here-as though it included the whole intelligence was nowhere more acutely alive nor intellectual discusproblem of the Church and its future. That, of course, is nonsense. The future of Catholicism is being fought sion more spontaneous and logically ordered than within this apparently too obedient army. It possessed no power of physical constraint, and so far from relying upon the vulgar and ephemeral tricks of a secret society, all that was done was open. With-out police as without lodges, without armies as without initiation or pass words, it preserved a very strong, and surely majestic, unity. Turning to the history of the Church the impartial observer, Mr. Belloc would discover two things, the first of which might seem to ex plain its modern position, the second of which would prove as inexplicable and as arousing to his curiosity as the unique discipline and character to which reference had been made. He would learn that this institution was historically at the root of all that expanded civilization about him, but that there had broken out some centuries ago a successful revolt against it. This first point might help to explain its peculiar mission to day, though it would not wholly explain it. But he would next learn an inexplicable thing, to wit, that for century after century this association, this Catholic Church, had maintained a highly personal life, and that not after the fashion of a social tradition or as a

God to send me a soldier's death in that heat of battle against my coun-try's foes. He will grant my prayer if He judge best, and thus I may in a vividly possessed of which mark a person.

FUTURE OF THE CHURCH mining of every force opposed to the The future of the Catholic Church Church in France was more and more clear. Freemasonry had grown old and become ridiculous; Jewish fiin the modern world, judged upon temporal indices alone, seems to me, said Mr. Belloc, "to depend upon three factors—(a) the political factors nance, for many generations a secret enemy, had been dragged out into the of numbers and equality, (b) the inopen, and might remain an enemy or tellectual factor of recognition, and (c) what I may call the practical factor of culture." In this conneca friend as it chose. Protestantish was hopelessly dead, and had left nothing but a fossil difficult of digestion he discussed three types of tion, but still more incapable of propa Catholic society. There was first the type of Catholic society repregation. In the second category, that of the subject nationalities, it seemed to him still more certain that Catho sented by France, and what he found there he would find in any other licism would prevail in the near sovereign (i. e., wholly independent) country, the Catholic tradition of future. As to the third category, he saw very little immediate prospect of which was not broken in the six. their advance where they were not bound by a national bond. teenth century. There was next the type of Catholic nations which were There were, however, other con siderations besides the numerical nore or less subject to non-Catholic Governments. There was lastly the type of Catholic societies existing with-out any natural bond to cement them in the midst of their non-Catholic Church was proceeding at a very great pace amongst those whom anti-In some countries (and besides Cathclic obscurantism had till re-cently blinded. They had only to rance they had the Catholic Netherlands, now called Belgium; all Latin consider those who spoke and wrote to day and compared them with America, all Spain and Portugal, Italy, the nations of the Iberian Peninsula, those who spoke and wrote fifty years ago in Protestant counand to some extent the Catholic cantons of Switzerland) the Catholi tries, to know what he meant, and if they turned to the atheist or indiffer-Church and its atmosphere were the groundwork of the whole picture. ent middle classes in Catholic coun ocial memory extended to a time tries, they found just the same thing when an unreformed state of hier It was in the last factor, however-that of practical culture-that the archy, or the alliance of the hierarchy at some moment with some un heavy artillery of the Catholic posipopular party in the State, was patent to all. Therefore, in such tion was placed. countries, where they had no induce-We. Catholics." the speaker said ment of patriotism, no example are not only the heirs of all the what came in the absence of faith to arts, we are also the guardians of all make Catholics close their ranks. tradition ; and it is in the very nature they always had-even within the Catholic body—what was called "Anticlericalism." Again, in these countries the Catholic Church being of things that men setting out once again to solve upon their own ac count problems which are as old as the race will come to regard, next to everywhere morally predominant be moulded by, and, at last, to accept reaction against her was general the old solutions which alone can de clear cut, and the structure of it adtermine the permanent happiness of mitted and open. In such countries the Masonic organization, which was mankind-in so far as happiness is possible to the wasted procession of men. Of these solutions we, Cathostill, though declining in power, the great world-wide opponent of the Catholic Church, came out into the lics, are the possessors. To take two fundamental institutions upon which open, stated its programme, and re-ceived the active support of every all men's eyes are now turned— property and marriage. It is clearly anti-Catholic force, from the Jewis apparent that the first negations have come at last to disappoint the financier to the Protestant historian, from the alien colony of tourists to first generation of sceptics. Only the old men, the valiant fathers of the the anarchic and alien refugee. "In this first set of countries," said Mr. Belloc, "you may safely take it that in spite of phases of indifference, in cause, still preach the economic salvation of mankind through the despoiling of ownership and the placing spite of the most violent anti-Catholic legislation, the mass of the f land and machinery into the hands population set down in statistics as of professional politicians. Collectiv ism has burst. And while generous nominally Catholic, will remain on minds of a younger generation the roll call of the Faith. The test are hurrying here and then to find a solution for our econo that you are right in so doing is twofold. First, that the actual numbers mic troubles, the Church will persistently present the normal of those who rigorously practise their religion has been upon the increase nstitution of property widely estab for now more than a generation. lished throughout the Christian state Secondly, by the test that the moas the natural economic habitat of ment anti Catholic forces appear to be winning, all national feeling begins to run again towards the Catholic side.

ANTICLERICALISM

NATIONALITY AND FAITH demonstrable product of the sixteenth the The second category is century schism, must at last return. category of those Catholic nations The same thing may be observed -some of them at some times with the institution of marriage. practice, every act, private or public, which wounds the family, so jars the be subject of gross oppression, others at other times treated with comparative leniency, or even left wholly alone—which have in common a technical or legal subservience, again, men are brought back inevit often an actual subservience, at the ably to the culture which we defend, best a social subservience to a nonand which happens also to be the only culture that has ever satisfied man Catholic power. Of such a sort are those parts of the Polish nation would not only certainly see the triumph of the Church amongst them. exist here, where mothers who work during the day may leave their babies knowing that they will receive but would see that triumph very quickly. Of these countries France was the leader and the type, and with every day that passes the under-

The light is spreading. If such disclosures go on, the average Ameri-can citizen will actually begin to believe that those benighted, papistical South Americans are occupied now and then with something besides siestas, bull fights and revolutions. But the old Protestant tradition will die hard.-America.

WHY I AM A CATHOLIC

I can not answer as an old time Democrat did, and say I am one be cause my father and grandfather were, says W. G. Hume in the current number of Extension Magazine, for my paternal ancestors were Pres byterians and my great grandfather was a Presbyterian minister.

I am a Catholic, first, because could not be anything else. By the process of elimination after investi-gating all other creeds the Catholic There was the intellectual factor of recognition, and there was the prac tical factor of culture. The intellectual recognition of the Catholic Church is the only existing relig on that possesses the mark or attributes of the one true Church founded by Christ.

Every earnest Christian must adnit .

First-That Jesus Christ founded ome Church.

Second-That the Church of which He was, and is, the head was to last for all time and therefore must exist on earth to day. Now, accepting my premises, the One Church of Christ can not be divided into many branches teaching different doctrines. Many good Protestants say that if we believe in Christ and keep His commandments, it matters not with what denomination we affiliate-unless-Oh, shades of logic-we are Catholics ! If Presbyterians are right, then Baptists and Lutherans are wrong, for each sect teaches different things ; and Unitarians certainly cannot be in-cluded in a Church of which Baptists and Episcopalians claim to be branches.

The usual arguments of many non-Catholics is something like this: "Yes, we admit that during the seven or eight centuries after Christ there was a Church which was founded by Him and which taught truly the things He told His apostles to preach. But in the course of time errors crept in and a large part of the Church became corrupt. Then the good members of this Church withdrew and united together to continue the early Christian Church and perpetuate Christ's original comnandments as laid down in the Bible.

Without admitting the accusation, I will acknowledge that if all Pro-testants had united together and formed one Church, and if all the members of this Church believed the there same things, their positions would at least be more tenable. In this respect the Greek Church has an advantage over Protestants.

Following their argument, how ever, there is on earth to-day one Church, one form of divine worship mankind, and to that doctrine, by an founded by our Lord Jesus Christ and only one. Which is it? If it is inevitable process of exhaustion, sincere men, in revolt against that hide the Catholic Church, which ous capitalism which is a direct and not Church did He found? Which of the many creeds and " isms " is the one true branch that perpetuates the early Church which is to continue until the end of time? Unless a Pro-In testant can answer this question positively and at least to his own human nerve that the toleration of satisfaction, he had no excuse for resuch acts is very brief, and, here maining what he is. The Episcopalians, I believe, are the only Protestants who seriously even claim a direct succession from the apostles, but they are obliged to race through the "Roman Catholic Church," and they themselves in so

And give us grace to say Like the repentant thief, "Have mercy, Lord, to day." Yes, help us to believe And hope—to love Thee, too; Lest we at last ourselves deceive,

Our failing faith renew. We do not ask to see, Enough that we may know The path that leads to Thee, The way that we should go Enough that Thou hast said Believe, believe in Me, And yet shall even raise the dead,

Cast mountains in the sea. As a rule, non Catholics do no seem to realize that if one acknowl-edges a Church of God through which He still speaks and teaches, that whatever His Church teaches is divine truth and, even if certain doc trines cannot be entirely understoo by men's finite minds, they must accept them, and Faith says "I believe.' On the other hand, however many of the devotions and practices of the Catholic Church help to strengthen our belief in her divine institution. I have always found that, even from a human standpoint, the more we study and investigate the Church the more we see how logical are her teachings. What is more natural and beautiful than to believe that the Mother of God was the ever Virgin Mary? The mind revolts at the non Catholic attitude oward the Blessed Virgin. Again, how can Christians dislike the crucifix emblem of Christ's death for sin ners? What a consolation to man-kind is the Sign of the Cross, the pledge of our salvation. Or take the sacraments, viewed merely as tem-poral benefits. Like a loving mother he Church takes us in infancy, and from the day the waters of baptism are poured over us she never relaxes her watchful care. She leads us gently along the path of life, ever ready with a shield in each emergency, and a balm for every pain. Are we wounded? She offers us the sacrament of penance, in which we may be healed. Then she strengthens us with confirmation and the Holy Eucharist. When we are grown and choose our state in life, there, awaiting our coming are holy orders or the sacrament of matrimony. And at the end, when the light begins to fade, when the weary spirit falters and we long at last for rest ; then, when death approaches and the demon of discouragement strives to claim us for his own, does our mother forsake us then ? Nay, she stands by our side gives us the Bread of Life, anoints us with holy oil, and she has led us from the cradle to manhood, and from youth to old age. she now leads us to the gates of that heavenly city which she has taught us to seek. Believing, therefore, that our divine Lord established a Church which exists to-day, I must either believe in and accept her teachings, or doubt the truth of Christ's own words.

So if you ask me why I am a Cath-lic, I answer: "Because I must olic, I answer: "Because I mu be either a Catholic or an atheist."

A FATHER FABER MEMORIAL

There are two tributes-no, there are three—to Father Faber, which many of those who love him must have pigeon holed. "Father Faber was a great loss to the whole Church but he is still doing a great work by his writings." That tribute from Pius IX, carries with it a hint of a The greatest liar that ever lived man untimely dead. Great men, the -but a perfect saint,—" they who speak the language of exaltation greatest, may have lived so long that their passing cannot be considered a great loss-they have said their say, will ever speak to incredulous ears they have done their deeds, their because night had already come before they houses of Nonconformists such the tomb. Faber, to vmns as dying at not much more than half the age of some of his contempor-ST. MARY'S ACADEMY aries, might still, had he lived, had lived to great purpose. But of him it might truly be said that into a Congregation de Notre Dame Newcastle, N. B. short time he crowded the emotion, HIGH-CLASS BOARDING SCHOOL FOR YOUNG LADIES the industry, the love of a far longer span of life. Hour for hour, nobody Ideal location, commanding a fine view of the Miramichi River and perhaps did quite so much-cen tainly nobody did more. For his was pre-eminently the gift of facility. If Newman said that "he never knocked anything off," Faber might have made a very different boast and with no disparagement to the use of his amazing powers. Had he begun to erase, he would have left a blank—with him mending would have meant no ending. That the resulting want of form here, or failure of exact taste there, has not less ened the right understanding of him, that the pinch of salt which we occasionally have to take the "obi-ter dicta" of "Father Fable," as he once sweetly called himself, is proved by the second testimony which comes to mind for quotation. ' I know no man who has done more to make the men of his day love God and aspire to a higher path of the interior life." That is the testimony of Cardinal Manning, who knew of what he spoke. Praise from him may rank to a Catholic Englishman as the most precious that could come from any of his fellows. Lastly, the very informal tribute of Mother Margaret Mary O'Halloran cries out to us with a note of human sympathy, What a man you are, what a man not descent, like that of Newman and many more of the Victorian converts, is noteworthy enough ; but we cease to think of Faber as the habitant of a parsonage—the son of an Anglican minister and an Anglican minister himself. He stands for something so much less local. He stands for something so much He stands for a largeness something so much less. that has hardly any bounds. The most spacious of oratories could not contain him. Hundreds of thousands of copies of his works have sold in French, German, Russian, Italian, Spanish and Flemish trans-lations. "None but a doctor of the Church could have written them. cried an Italian missioner, anticipa-ting indeed. "What wisdom, what cience, what elevation of mind !" It is this elevation-of heart rather than of mind-this essential spirituality which has raised the level of modern spiritual literature in England and in all the world. Nor is that influence on the wane. Manning, with a caution so little like aber, but so characteristic of himself, conditioned his praise when he spoke of Faber as affecting "the men of his day." The men of the day after have followed their fathers to the feet of Faber ; and gratuitous form of human error as prophecy has been declared to be, we are surely not too bold in picturing a great future multitude of readers for Faber's spiritual works. His hymns, whatever their defects, will be sung and said as long as that form of literature prevails, and we cannot imagine a nursery of the future in which they will not stir feelings as keen and as aspiring as those with which they were written. The political outlook of Faber, which was that of the Young England Party, has been justified by all recent legislation. Of his poems, apart from hi hymns, it was interesting to note when not long ago, Sir Montstuart Grant-Duff made an anthology, that Faber has a full presentation. do not cite his place in the "Oxford Book of Victorian Verse," for the simple reason that the in clusion of utterly worthless pieces in that collection robs of any signifi-cance a position, however, important in its pages.

The fiftieth anniversary of Faber's

leath has just been kept, and in June next year the centenary of his birth offers an opportunity, which is to be taken, for making some visible memorial in association with his name. We do not think that to this country will be confined all those who wish to take a part in the celebra-tion. In the United States many a man, out of his own experience, re-echoes the words of Father Hecker. "Not for several ages," declared the illustrious founder of the Paulists of New York, "has God given to His Church a teacher whose thoughts of ove and light will fall, like Heaven's dew, on a wider extent of that field in which the Son of God Himself labored." And though the Catholic ardours of Faber took him out of an environment in which he was born. making him as much a denizen of the skies as the prophet who was charloted thither, we shall not lack the sympathy of many an outsider in any effort to honor his memory Dogmatic Dean Stanley it was who said of him (ridiculously) that he was the only one of the Oxford converts who gained in force and character by his conversion. Even Bishop Samuel Wilberforce in a frivolous setting out to curse staved to bless

R. HUESTON & SONS Livery and Garage. Open Day and Night. to 483 Richmond St. 380 Wellington St. Phone 423 Phone 441 FINANCIAL THE ONTARIO LOAN & DEBENTURE CO'Y Capital paid up, $1,750,000. Reserve $14 0,000 beposits received. Debentuves issued Real Estate oans made. John McClary, Pres.; A. M. Smart, Mgr. Offices: Dundas St., Cor. Market Lane, London.

CURE that BUNION All the agony and torture of bunions will soon be forgotten if you use Dr. Scholl's BUNION RIGHT It straightens the crooked to -removes the your bunion or ealarged joint permanently instant relief. Guaranteed or mo for each. Write for Dr. Scholl's g on "Bunions." ALL PROP

The K Scholl Mfg. Co., 214 King St. W., Toronto

' Angels of Jesus " are daily and not vainly sung. All sorts of popular hymn books contain these and other specimens of Faber's religious muse. and the publishers who have encour aged by free permissions thus uncov enanted circulation have also tried. and with large success, to see that their text has been kept intact Father Faber's treatises bear mut l ation as ill as his hymns. right to be listened to till the end of his sentence-to be read with full context. That is surely the least return we can make to an author who has taken pains never to weary us. He never fails in his unction—a word on which Isaac D'Israeli twitted the "Romanis's" as a preservation of their own. And it is unction from on high, it is the need of the time, and the sure foe to formalism. Because Faber stands for the law, yet knows that the law kills unless the Spirit make it alive he too lives. That is the secret of his abiding strength and his abiding charm. He lets out the secret him self when he says of the readers of that most alluring of all spiritual treatises, "All for Jesus :"-" I am putting before them things which tend to raise their fervour, and to in crease their sensible sweetness in practical religion and its duties. I want to make piety bright and happy to those who need such helps as I do myself."-Tablet.

Such lives as these are living prayers by which, as Tennyton says, the whole wide world is every where bound by gold chains around the feet of God," God sees and knows. Daily graces are showered upon the world thorough these hid. den channels. You and I are con-stantly helped and strengthened by the good lives of people whom we do not know. Similarly, our lives, if we are earnestly striving to make them worthy of our Divine Master, are helping others.

ST. JEROME'S COLLEGE Founded 1864 BERLIN, ONTARIO

Excellent Business College Department. Excellent High School or Academic Department. Excellent College and Philosophical Department. 'clay-shuttered." In the Addres

RtV. A. L. ZINGER, C.R., Ph.D., Pres.

THREE

AUTOMOBILES, LIVERY, GARAGE

out, as every cultivated man knows, in the countries where Catholicism is really free and in the habit of perfectly open and untrammelled expres-sion. France is especially the arena. But still this Protestant English speaking and English writing world is so wrapped up in itself that we who stand in the midst of it must pay a particular attention to its character In these societies of my third cate gory, the Catholic Church, where it is not associated with nationality in the case, for instance, of Irish emigrants to England or of Polish emigrants into Prussia) the attitude of Catholics is confined, timid, and, if I may use the word, "starved." It makes converts, but not upon a large scale, or throughout the people. Its converts are drawn in comparatively small numbers from the middle classes, and it is curious to note how often the families of these converts fail in their allegiance to the Church They do things beneath the level of Catholic intelligence. I have even known some to take seriously the muddled stuff called Modernism. COMING TRIUMPH Summing up with regard to these three types, the lecturer said that those of the blind, and in Lima splendid independent countries which survived work is being done for children. There they have nurseries such as Help Thou our unbelief, kind. One may take higher intances," the lecturer said, how the first perceptions of philos phy will by a natural gravitation turn to the Catholic postulates of an intelligent and personal Creator of an immortal soul, of free will, and of shall not prevail against her." If a consequence following upon good One may descend to the lesser manifestations of truth, and how how the Catholic humor is found, at last, to be human, where the Puritan lack of it is inhuman; Catholic feasting and fasting the same, and the Catholic finesse with mysteries and the Catholic devotion to the dead. Better still, one may rely upon that ultimate factor, the Catholic love of arms, and be certain that sooner or later the Catholic tem perament must be physically victori-ous in the field. For myself, I find that my chief consolation. I say again, we are the heirs of all the arts ; ve are the guardians of all tradition. Using a purely temporal argument, that is the pull which should, or must, drag back to us the world which we made."-London Tablet.

HEIRS OF ALL THE ARTS

REVILED SOUTH AMERICA

" Americans have but a vague idea of the conditions in South America," said Dr. Rosalie S. Morton, of the Polyclinic Hospital staff, New York, on her recent return from a fourmonths' tour of the Latin-American Republics. I was very pleasantly surprised,"

she continued, " to find such excellent work being done in the hospitals of the countries I visited. Most of us have an idea that if we were in South Faith to such as these ! Is it pos-America and needed an operation we sible for such men to have been would have to come to this country, but this is not so. . . . I was particularly anxious to see what philanthropic work was being done for the blind, deaf and dumb, and lieve this or that. Of course they doing admit that during a certain period the Catholic Church was the true Church. "The gates of hell once the true Church, she is bound to be so still, otherwise hell has pre-vailed. If Episcopalians could show a true succession (which they cannot), how can they reconcile high and low church, one claiming to acknowledge the Real Presence, and the other denying it. Can Christ's Church be divided against itself ? The direct apostolic succession has always seemed to me the simplest and at the same time the most vital test of any Church's claiming divine authority. Strange to say, most Protestants admit the claims of the Catholic Church in this regard. One thing has always impressed me. There are, of course, exceptions, but in almost every case o which I have had personal knowledge this rule will apply. Lukewarm or bad Catholics are the ones who leave the Church, but our converts are good, earnest Protestants who are seeking truth and their eternal salva

Again, "By their fruits you shall know them." Look back through the pages of history and count, if you can, the mighty names upon the roll of the Catholic Church-just to mention a few-St. Vincent ?de Paul, St. Francis Xavier, St. Ignatius Loyola, Thomas A'Kempis, Fenelon, Michel-angelo, Raphael, Dante, Dryden, Newman, Manning, Spaulding. vou are !

wrong in their method of serving God ?2830 0 Protestants sometimes say : " I can orphans. Naturally I could not visit every city, but in Buenos Aires I they would become Catholic. Right found some very excellent treatment of the blind, and in Lima splendid Faith is not understanding, but be-

And it is as a man no less than as an author that we hold Frederick William Faber in memory. He was so great and so Catholic a man that we hardly class him by his county as we do almost all others. There something almost incongruous in calling this familiar of the heavens a Yorkshireman. It was the Civilita Cattolica that once noted "the ease with which he moves in the invisible world of grace, as if it were the tan-gible world of Nature." His Hugue-

and

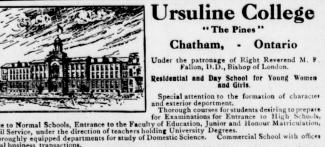

Beautiful grounds for outdoor exercise.

'O Paradise'

Ladies and Little Girls

Thorough Academic, Collegiate, Commercial and Preparatory Courses. Under the Direction of Teachers holding University Degrees. For Prospectus, apply to

Entrance to Normal Schools, Entrient of teachers holding University Commercial School with Children and Civil Service, under the direction of teachers holding University Commercial School with Children at the service of the school of Music and Iocal centre for examinations is Schools of Art and Expression are wide spread reputation. Schools of Art and Expression are wide spread reputation. Minim Department under careful direction. Recreation grounds comprise twenty-seven acres in one of the most beautiful and healthful localties in Western Ontario, about ten minutes drive from C. P. R. and G. T. R. depots. New buildings with all modern improvements. Private Rooms. General and Private Classes in Physical Traiping. THE MOTHER SUPERIOR.

Registration of resident students September 8, Classes open at 9.30