M'KINLEY AGAIN.

It is altogether probable that the Republican national convention which assembled in Philadelphia on the 19th inst. has ere this renominated Wm. McKinley for the office of president of the United States. McKinley's administration, whether through good fortune or as a result of his sterling qualities both as a man and executive officer, has been most successful.

The president is able to look back upon a term of four years in which his administration has scored one triumph after another. The unusual and general prosperity which has prevailed in the states, while due in a great measure to causes entirely outside the influence of legislative measures, will be credited to the administration. This is no more than just, as McKinley would certainly have been held responsible by the great masses of people had the country been subjected to a severe financial depression during his term of office.

A war in which great glory was achieved by American arms is far above the average when and immense additional territory brought under the American flag has been fought, the entire credit of which belongs to the McKinley administration.

The policy of expansion into which the United States was almost compelled to enter as a result of events growing out of the Spanish-American war has been approved by the people at large,

If the activity of the rection and a baker's dozen of Indian Boxers extends to the endangering of all American interests they must be protected. We shall exact a full and complete reparation for every injury that is done to us. Whatever may be necessary to assert the dignity of the United States and to protect its people will be done.-P.-The rate of sickness and death in Dawson is as small as in any other city of the same size in the world. This is due not only to naturally healthful climatic conditions, but to the fact that the community as a whole has been of observing ordinary sanitary precautions. Two years ago at this time typhoid fever was raging in Dawson to an alarming extent. The hospitals were overcrowded with sick and dying men their tales of woe to tell. The prevalence of the disease came about from the use of impure water, poor food and disregard of the simplest rules of health. Now that is all changed. Dawson's inhabitants as a whole are well cared for. We have a splendid supply of pure water and no alarm on that score need be felt. In other respects as well, conditions are favorable for the maintenance of an unusually high degree of public health and the records of the hospitals and the health office will serve to demonstrate that Dawson today and, undoubtedly will receive hearty and enthusiastic endorsement at the polls in November.

All circumstances combined have served to bring the president and his administration into high repute with the people, and the return of McKinley to the White House for another term of four years is as nearly a foregone conclusion as anything in politics. can be.

. NO ENTANGLEMENTS.

Another crushing blow to the praters about "imperialism" is lined by the administration for dealing with the existing trouble in China.

Minister Conger has been instructed to/ draw upon the naval force in Chinese waters for the protection of the legation and of such refugees as may find asylum there. He is not even authorized to take any action to guard the interests of Americ ns in the interior. Nothing is ordered that will engage us in the broil that is so clearly in prospect. The views of our government are expressed in the following announcement from Washington: "By adhering closely to its old time policy of abstention from interference with internal matters in China, and especially by refraining from entangling movements in connection with 12 years. Napoleon was sent as pristhe projects of other powers, the state department is confident month and live happily ever afterward with the old fulks." "You'll have to explain," said the to friend.

"Explain? There is nothing to explain. The old man is all right; the girl is all right, and I am all right; if you will promise to be the best man you'll be all right too !"

"So the stern papa relented, did he?" "Relent nothing! Say, you remember when I asked him last summer to give me his daughter he said it would be, a cold day when I got her? Well, when we had that heavy snowstorm I met the old man stuck in a snow drift and swearing because the street cars were not running. I reminded him of what he had said, called his attention administered in the policy out. to the condition of the weather at that moment and gently pointed out where a man went who didu't keep his word. Well, my nerve caught the old man, and I got the girl with his blessing. Cards will be out tomorrow, and the old man is going to do the proper thing." -Detroit Free Press.

Wars of the Century.

Although the existing war in the Transvaal has been protracted in an unusual degree, it is not the longest struggle in which Great Britain has been engaged during the century. Napoleon declared war against England in May, 1803, the previous war between the two countries having only terminated by the treaty at Amiens in October, 1801. The war of 1803 lasted until April, 1814, when Paris surrendered to the allies and Napoleon was sent as prisoner to Elba, where he arrived on the 4th of May. He escaped from Elba-in March, 1815, and recommenced the war, which finally terminated with Napoleon's defeat at the battle of Waterloo on the 18th of June, 1815, having lasted nearly oner to St. Helena, where he died in 1821.
