In Dread of Something

You can scarcely tell what it may be—Mysteria, Insanity, Nervous Collapse.
You can only throw off this depression when the nerve cells are restored to their normal state as by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Your digestive system has failed to supply proper nourishment to the nerves and you are compelled to seek aid from other sources.
It will take some patience and persistent treatment, but there is no way by which you can so certainly restore health and vigor as by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.
The best time to restore the nervous system is long before such a critical condition is reached. Such symptoms as sleeplessness, headaches, nervous indigestion, muscular weakness, loss of energy, failure of memory and power of concentration, irritability and discouragement tell of a failure of the nervous system and warn you of the approach of serious trouble.
Dr. Chase's Nerve Food 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $3.00. All dealers, or Edmundson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

The Heart of a Friend.

A heart that is glad when your heart is gay,
And true in the time of care;
That takes the trials of a fretful day
And doubts the joys that it declares.
A heart that can cheer your heart with its song
And comfort your hour of need;
A heart that leaves and faithful and strong,
Wherever misfortune may lead.
A heart that is yours when the way seems dark
And yours in sunshine too;
A heart that cares not for rank or mark,
But only the heart of you.
A heart that will stand when others shun—
The more that it knows its duty,
That would rather misfortune and fame than loss
Of a friend that is true.
A heart that will stand when others shun—
The more that it knows its duty,
That would rather misfortune and fame than loss
Of a friend that is true.
A heart that will stand when others shun—
The more that it knows its duty,
That would rather misfortune and fame than loss
Of a friend that is true.

The Duty of the Government Re Prohibition.

As we understand the Temperance situation at the present time the Province of Nova Scotia is under nominal prohibition.
In ten counties, the Scott Act, the ineffective Scott Act, prohibits the sale of liquor for beverage purposes and permits the importation for personal use in unlimited quantities. In eight counties, the City of Halifax excepted, the Nova Scotia Temperance Act prohibits the sale of liquor for beverage purposes. The Scott Act counties may repeal the Scott Act and then come under the provisions of the Nova Scotia Temperance Act.
Halifax is the key to the problem in the Province. So long as the Government endorses the License System in the City just so long will the Province at large suffer from the tyranny of the traffic.
It is to be wondered at that the Nova Scotia Temperance Alliance persists in its demand for Provincial and not partial prohibition.
The cry that the law could not be enforced in Halifax is absolutely childish. If the Government refuses to pass legislation for Halifax as for the rest of the province, the reason lies in the fact that the Government underestimates the intelligence of the people of Nova Scotia. The average elector in this Province knows that the Government which provides machinery for the enforcement of the Temperance Act in Halifax or Toronto or Lunenburg can do the same for Halifax.
If this is not done the reason is to be found not in the powerlessness but in the partiality of the Government.
The day is not far in the future when there must be a life and death struggle with the liquor traffic. When the Government is ready to enter the conflict we may expect to obtain Provincial Prohibition.—Windsor Tribune.

Intensive Farming.

It is now coming to be understood that a small portion of land, tilled to the limit of its capacity, is more profitable than a much larger area imperfectly cultivated and allowed to deteriorate. The standard illustration of this is the small farmer of France. The wealth of the French Republic lies largely in her peasant farmers. It was from the savings of this class that the French government was able to pay off the enormous indemnity to Germany after the war of 1870, in such a short time. The time will come in our western prairie, just as it has come in the Americas West, when our wheat lands will cease to yield the crops they now produce, year after year, without fertilization. There is no soil in the world so rich that it will stand annual nitrogenous depletion without becoming impoverished after a time, and when that time arrives the big farm is, to use a homely figure, 'a white elephant' on the owner's hands. Our farmers in the East would do well to try the experiment of intensive farming. If twenty or forty acres of property tilled land can be made to produce as much as one or two hundred acres in their natural state, it is certainly less labor to cultivate the smaller farm.

Political Unrest.

The political unrest not only all over this continent, but Europe as well, is reflected even in the smallest countries. Nova Scotia has a general election now on hand and Canada will soon have one as well. When the unrest is so marked as it is now, no one can prophesy with any certainty what will happen, but it is generally the case that under such conditions changes are made. The Liberals have been in power in this province continuously for the past 20 years. That is a very long time, probably the longest on record except in the case of Great Britain, which was a year or two longer.
It is always the case that governments get lax and unprogressive when a long time in power. They get the idea that they own the country. They are unresponsive to the spirit of progress. They rest on their laurels. Usually also they become corrupt, and if they do not they are sure to become lax in their ways.
For those reasons even the moderate men of the party in power, are not sorry to see a change, they know it is in the interests of the province. That feeling will have to be proved in Nova Scotia.
Much the same condition obtains in respect to the Dominion, but there, however, there are sharp lines of cleavage beyond what there is in this province. The Dominion administration was long since grossly corrupt. Even his friends in their hearts admit this.
Taking it all in all no man can say what will happen when the ballots are counted.—Dartmouth Patriot.

A True Home.

Probably nineteen twentieths of the happiness you will ever have you will get at home. The independence that comes to a man when his work is over, and he feels he has run out of the storms into the silent harbor of home where he can rest in peace with his family is something real. It doesn't make much difference if you own your house or if you have only one little room in that house; you can make that one little room a true home to you. You can people it with such moods, you can turn it into such a sweet fantasy, that it will be fairly luxurious with your presence and with your love.
Against this home none of you should always fret, each other with courtesy. It is often not so difficult to love a person as to be courteous to him. Courtesy is of greater value and a more royal grace than some people seem to think. If you will be courteous to each other you will soon learn to love each other more wisely, profoundly, not to say lastingly, than you ever did before.
A little three-year-old boy of my acquaintance accompanied his mother down town on a shopping expedition one afternoon, and while his mother was talking to a friend, William walked on a little ahead. He was stopped by an old man who was attracted by his bright little face, and after asking him a number of questions the old man said: 'Well, my young man, your life is all before you while mine is behind me.' William looked up questioningly and said: 'Turn around and let me see.'

Let the Past Sleep.

If you value your peace of mind, don't be always stirring up your memories of what you have lost in life. Let the past sleep; its opportunities will come no more to you, and you will not give you back what the years have stolen. Keep your thoughts on the present; that is yet your own, to do with as you will, and may a chance will come to you to help your fellows over the rough road. Here you will find redemption from all mistakes in the days gone by and through the shadowy future a star will shine to light you to joys unknown.

Neurotic Diseases in the Spring.

CAUSES REMOVED BY TONING UP THE BLOOD, THUS STRENGTHENING THE NERVES.
Neurotic diseases are more common and more serious in the spring than at any other time of the year. This is the opinion of the best medical authorities after long observation. Vital changes in the system after long winter months may cause much more than spring weakness, and the familiar nervousness and tremblings. Official reports show that in April and May St. Vitus dance, epilepsy and various forms of nerve disturbance are at their worst, especially among those who have not reached middle age.
The antiquated custom of taking purgatives in the spring is useless, for the system really needs strengthening while purgatives make you weaker. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have special action on the blood and nerves for they give strength and have proved not only many forms of nervous disorders, but also other spring troubles, such as headaches, weakness in the limbs, loss of appetite, trembling of the hands, as well as irregular pimples and skin troubles. They do this because they actually make new, rich, red blood, which means a return to perfect health.
Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $3.00 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

An Old Man Hanged.

At Butler, Missouri, they led Dr. J. L. Gartrell out on the scaffold. Around him were stern-faced men ready to perform their awful duty. On the trap stood an old man. His hair was snowy; his beard was long and white. He had lived two years beyond the span of life to man. Think of passing seventy-two years in this good world, and then, within sight of the grave-yard to feel the clutch of the law about one's neck and be hanged!
"Once he was a famous lawyer. He had held crowds spellbound by his eloquence. People used to say: 'Great man, that Gartrell; he can be anything he wants to be.'
He was elected a county judge. Then he was sent to the Texas Senate for two terms. He was a man of affairs highly educated, keen, intelligent. He loved just as other men do, did this hangman's victim. Eight children were born to him and there was not a happier family in the West. It doesn't seem possible that a human being would deliberately tip over the magnificent structure that had taken the best years of his life to rear. Dr. Gartrell did that very thing.
He trailed his good name in the gutter; he disgraced his sons and daughter; he disappointed his fortune; became little better than a tramp; and the explanation of his fall is found in four words—he became a drunkard.
The old man stood on the trap. The rays of the morning sun crept into the goosy yard and touched his wrinkled face and massive forehead. He didn't look like a murderer or a bad man. You would almost as soon suspect your own father of a crime as that patriarch of murdering a friend for a few paltry shillings. Yet he did it.
Listen! he is speaking. He is telling the white-faced crowd of his fall and the last words that pass his lips are, 'Whiskey did it all.'
The trap is springing, and J. L. Gartrell, patriarch, is shot into eternity.
For soreness of the muscles whether induced by violent exercise or injury, Chamberlain's Liniment is excellent. This liniment is also highly esteemed for the relief it affords in cases of rheumatism. Sold by all dealers.

A True Home.

Probably nineteen twentieths of the happiness you will ever have you will get at home. The independence that comes to a man when his work is over, and he feels he has run out of the storms into the silent harbor of home where he can rest in peace with his family is something real. It doesn't make much difference if you own your house or if you have only one little room in that house; you can make that one little room a true home to you. You can people it with such moods, you can turn it into such a sweet fantasy, that it will be fairly luxurious with your presence and with your love.
Against this home none of you should always fret, each other with courtesy. It is often not so difficult to love a person as to be courteous to him. Courtesy is of greater value and a more royal grace than some people seem to think. If you will be courteous to each other you will soon learn to love each other more wisely, profoundly, not to say lastingly, than you ever did before.
A little three-year-old boy of my acquaintance accompanied his mother down town on a shopping expedition one afternoon, and while his mother was talking to a friend, William walked on a little ahead. He was stopped by an old man who was attracted by his bright little face, and after asking him a number of questions the old man said: 'Well, my young man, your life is all before you while mine is behind me.' William looked up questioningly and said: 'Turn around and let me see.'

Let the Past Sleep.

If you value your peace of mind, don't be always stirring up your memories of what you have lost in life. Let the past sleep; its opportunities will come no more to you, and you will not give you back what the years have stolen. Keep your thoughts on the present; that is yet your own, to do with as you will, and may a chance will come to you to help your fellows over the rough road. Here you will find redemption from all mistakes in the days gone by and through the shadowy future a star will shine to light you to joys unknown.

ROYAL Baking Powder Economy

The manufacturers of Royal Baking Powder have always declined to produce a cheap baking powder at the sacrifice of quality.

Royal Baking Powder is made from pure grape cream of tartar, and is the embodiment of all the excellence possible to be attained in the highest class baking powder.

Royal Baking Powder costs only a fair price, and is more economical at its price than any other leavening agent, because of the superlative quality and absolute wholesomeness of the food it makes.

Mixtures made in imitation of baking powder, but containing alum, are frequently distributed from door to door, or given away in grocery stores. Such mixtures are dangerous to use in food. In England, France, Germany and some sections of the United States their sale is prohibited by law. Alum is a dangerous mineral acid, and all physicians condemn baking powders containing it.

The label of alum baking powders must show the ingredients.

Rules For Cooking.

If one could have a thermometer, it is so distracting when the cooking is to be marked, it is said if the letters are traced in pencil the ink will not run.
Another method is to put the garment to be marked over an embroidery hoop and hold it taut with the other ring.
When living anywhere that washing must be sent to the laundry, mark with the full name. The easiest way to do this is to overcast firmly to the garments
