SUPREME COURT.

Case of Importance to Insurance Companies.

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 1.—(Special)—The fall session of the Supreme Court opened to-day. There are only two cases to-day. There are only two cases waiting for judgment, Hildreth vs. McCormick Manufacturing Company for the Exchequer Court and the Canadian Pacific Railway Company vs. the Ottawa Fire Insurance Company. The last case is an important one, as it involves certain constitutional points upon which will depend whether or not companies acting under provincial charters can do business outside the province. Certain questions have been submitted to the court for answers in respect to this. After discussing some motions to-day the court proceeded with the Quebec list.

Swastika Contest.

Much interest is being taken in the Swastika story contest conducted this week by Stanley Mills & Co. Already a number of stories have been submitted, and the contest bids fair to being one of the most interesting features ever inaugurated by this popular store. The Swastika as an emblem is exceedingly popular throughout the entire world today. Swastika cluss and societies being found in nearly every city. The Swastika cross will be used extensively by Stanley Mills & Co. during their great Fall Managers' Sale, starting on Thursday next. Be on the lookout for it.
