TUESDAY EVENING, JULY 29, 1873

The "Regulations" Suspended.

Each once gave a cartoon in which Lord John Russell conspicuously figured, who was attired as a lad, with pinafore ill-besmeared with huge black patches of ink, and underneath it were the words, "Drat that boy! He's always in a mess." Substitute Egerton Ryerson, as chief of the Council of Public Instruction, for the head of the House of Bedford, and the truth of the picture would be as readily recognized to-day as it was a quarter of a century ago in England.

In a former issue we took occasion to administer a mild rebuke to the Guelph Herald, for its unwarrantable impertinence intermeddling in the newspaper affairs of this town. He does not take kindly to moral suasion, which leads us to conclude that his early moral training has been sadly neglected.

Our correspondent, like many other Guelph Conservatives, is disgusted with the Herald's peculiar style, but he has not made a happy selection when he brings forth such a paper as the Brantford Courier as "public prosecutor."

INCREASE AND MULTIPLY.—The St. Catherine's correspondent of the Globe is responsible for the following:—On Thursday last, a blue fly got into the ear of a carpenter named Edward Hudson, who has been engaged in the township of Grantham in building a barn for a man named George Cole.

CHANCE & WILLIAMSON.

Tory Journalism in Guelph.

To the Editor of The Evening Mercury.

DEAR SIR.—Enclosed I send you an article from the Brantford Courier of this morning, hoping you will give it an insertion, as showing to the Conservatives of this locality, the estimate that is formed in other places of their Pet Organ in Guelph.

An OLD CONSERVATIVE. Guelph, July 25, '73.

WILL HE REPENT?

In a former issue we took occasion to administer a mild rebuke to the Guelph Herald, for its unwarrantable impertinence intermeddling in the newspaper affairs of this town. He does not take kindly to moral suasion, which leads us to conclude that his early moral training has been sadly neglected.

He complains of our having copied from his columns without giving credit. If so we regret it, for if true, it places us in the same disreputable category with himself, only that we are no plagiarist.

A re-perusal of the Herald's former article leads us to the conviction that the writer must have been laboring under temporary aberration of mind. No sane person could wantonly give utterance to so abominable an effusion, more especially in a case where the very customary justification is resorted to for improper language—ill temper.

He threatens, in true Bombastes Furioso style, "if more (insults) are offered we shall feel called upon to hold the whole institution up to the scorn of all respectable journalists, and we'll do it, too." You'll do it when you obtain a new reputation for public and social morality; when the canker of your contemptible leprous disposition will have become human, and so far cleansed as to render you fit to associate with respectable journalists, you may then make the attempt, but you will first have to await an introduction. Your puny threats exhibit your childish vanity, but, little fellow, adieu! adieu!!

We had noticed from our exchanges that a squabble was going on between the Herald and the Courier, arising from some comments the Herald made upon some exceedingly coarse and unwarrantable personal attacks by the Courier upon the editor of the Expositor. The Courier turned savagely upon the Herald, which replied with its characteristic voluble pugnacity, bringing forth the foregoing retort from the Courier, in which it uses strong epithets to bolster up a weak case.

On Monday a little son of Dr. Aikens, of Toronto, was so severely scalded at Meaford that he died from the effects. Dr. and Mrs. Aikens are both in Europe. The parties for complicity in the cock-fighting at the Garrison Commons, Toronto, the other day, at the instance of the Society for the prevention of Cruelty to Animals, were heavily fined by the Police Magistrate on Monday.
