The Toronto Globe of Tuesday, 27th, speaks as follows of Robert Mantell, who appears at the Grand on Monday night:

"The initial performance in Toronto of Osborne's new romantic drama, "The Face in the Moonlight," presented by Toronto's old favorite, Robert Mantell, and his capable company drew bumper houses at the Grand Opera House both afternoon and evening yeasterday, standing-room only being the order of the day. The play is an unusually strong one, both in plot and incident, and has just concluded a lengthy and very successful run in Proctor's theater, New York, and the generous measure of appreciation meted out to it in this city yesterday is an indersation of the verdict of Gotham's theater-goers. Of one so well known to all lovels of legitimate drama but "Itle need be said than that he fully y inted his said than that he fully

To the request Mr. Mantell responded very briefly. Of the support rendered by the other members of the company the first place must be accorded to Miss Charlotte Behrens, who as Lucille Munior, Victor Ambrose's wife, sustained a varied and difficult part, the exactions of which she fulfilled on the whole with marked success. The entire company contributed towards making it a complete performance."

"By Wits Cutwitted."

At the Grand Opera House on Wednesday, Jan. 4, will be presented Edward Owings Towne's new comedy, "By Wits Outwitted." A strong claim is made for its originality and the opening of a new field in the line of dramatic composition. The comedy is of a high class, and in all cities where it has been presented has met with great success. The comedy story of "By Wits Outwitted" stands out in bold relief, the dialogue is terse and witty and far as the religious detection of the question is not a very pertinent one, because a sound adherent of a Church might be a very poor business man—one lacking that ballast, caution, conciliatory temperament that should be possessed by the chief magistrate of a progressive city. There need be no cavilling on the ground mentioned by our correspondent, however, if Ald. Gartsbore is elected mayor for 1893, as it is now generally conceded that he will be.

if Ald. Gartshore is elected mayor for Joona at it is now generally conceded that he will be.

The honors of the mayor's chair have gone the rounds pretty well. To go no further back than the last two occupants of the chair. Mayor Taylor was an English Churchman and Mayor Spencer is a Methodist. Mayor-to-be Gartshore, like his honored father before him, is a Presbyterian, so that there has been no claunishness nor attempts to run the city on the part of any of the religious denominations.

What is of greater importance to the taxpayers of London, however, is the fact that Ald. Gartshore has proved his devotion to the promotion of the best interests of the people. He has served an apprenticeship in the council that does him credit, and he has a thorourh grasp of public affairs, a level head and a spirit of determination, when elected, to serve all classes in the community fairly and honestly. In the carrying out of these principles of progress and of equity, indeed, will his record as mayor be judged.

By hard work for the citizens in the capacity of alderman, Ald. Gartshore has well carned promotion. That is the test by which the electors have sized him up, and it should stand him in good stead at the polls on Monday next. J. L. FITZGIAL 153 Dundas eet. PEONE EEC.
