ON WARPED INTELLECTUALITIES.

In this week's issue of The Christian Guardian the editor makes another effort to show that the religious de-nominations are justified in support-ing the law which exempts churches from municipal taxation. After beat-ing around the bush to the extent of a column the editor finally argues the point at issue as follows:

Now we will deal with the question of the exemption of church property from taxation. The World maintains that to exempt church property is to put extra taxation on those who do not go to church. It can be contended with equal clearness and force that to tax church property is to put extra taxation on those who do go to church. The individuals who form the church pay for their incomes and property like all others, but because they choose to have suitable provision for worship, and not have to pay extra taxes because of that worship. We claim that this just case is strengthened when the individuals who do voluntarily make such reasonable provision say to the whole community: This house of worship is open to all comers to the extent of its capacity.

As we credit the readers of The World with having average intelli-gence and with knowing that two and two make four and not five, we do not intend wasting their time with an argument to show the absurdity of the above line of reasoning, or rather want of reasoning. Sometimes a man argues a point so absurdly that he merely has to state his own case. The Guardian in this predicament in his argument on church exemptions. We therefore find it our duty to re-argument itself and make an observa-tion or two on the author of it.

An intellect that could arrive at the conclusion that in paying taxes the church worshippers would be paying double taxes is certainly a warped and job-sided intellect. If we were the original authors of the argu-ment we would hesitate to go out on the streets for fear of walking in circles, or tangents, instead of mak-ing the straight line. We should hesi-tate before entering a restaurant as we know very well we would begin eating the newspapers and looking over the table-mapping to find the re-sult of the ball game and cricket match.

We would not go to the theatre for fear the audience would catch us putting the opera glasses up to our ears. No, indeed! If our intellect was as much warped as that of our contem-porary we would at once apply to the Court of Chancery for a guardian. Men who can't reason along a straight line must be seriously handi-capped in the business of life. We have not time to analyze the Methodist denomination and show exactly the damage they sustain by relying on leaders and editors whose brains are either warped or confused. We put the opera glasses up to our ears. No, indeed! If our intellect was as much warped as that of our contem-porary we would at once apply to the Court of Chancery for a guardian.

THE GRAND TRUNK BELT LINE.

The five hundred thousand dollars invested by the Grand Trunk in what is known as the Belt Line could have been put to use in about as profitable a manner had this large sum been thrown into Lake Ontario. Of course it gave work to Italian laborers and others, and no doubt contractors made some little money, but this is not exactly what constitutes a reason for the purchase of this line by the Grand Trunk Company. The line was opened with flourish trumpets, a very cor-dial invitation was extended to the Board of Trade and members of the City Council to ride on its cars and see the resources of the line. These men of business, however, looked in vain for the resources, or for anything else. Here was a railway with stations, semaphores and other signals, and equipped to meet the demands of a large traffic, but with no people or houses along the line, where would the traffic come from? The late president must have seen through some one else's eyes when he saw money in the Belt Line. He certainly could not have acted on his own impressions, as he no doubt traveled over the line, and it is conceded that he is a man of brains and possesses a keen eye. The line has been a miserable failure from the day it was opened.

The new president and staff inspect-ed this "rag baby" a few days ago and at once ordered the line to be closed up, and so ended another chapter of the Trunk Belt Line.

THE REVIVAL IS SUBSTANTIAL.

In an article headed, "Our Reviving Business," in the September number of The North American Review, Hon. James H. Eccles, Controller of the Cur-rency, shows that the evidence of the new prosperity are to be seen every-where in the United States. The unusual activity that has become manifest dur-ing the present summer is not con-fined to a single line of business, or to one class of Hamilton, Sept. 4.—For months nothing has been heard of the Lord's Day Alliance in this city. Its inactivity was the most prominent feature of it, and it has been commencing to think it had dropped into oblivion entirely. During dog days the Sabbatharians compassionately refrained from inflict-ing resolutions upon the long-suffering public, but they are to the fore again with the shades of autumn and lengthy resolutions may be looked for. On Friday night a meeting will be held in Wesley Church, at which addresses will be delivered by J. A. Paterson and A. E. O'Meara, barristers of To-ronto. It is said the Alliance will en-deavor to prosecute the steamboat and railway companies that have been the improvement in the business world is not an ephemeral character, but is genuine and substantial.

TYPHOON'S DEADLY WORK.

Hundreds of Lives Lost and Hundreds of Jap Villages Laid Waste.

Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 4.—A destruc-tive typhoon swept across the coast of Japan yesterday, causing the loss of hundreds of lives and the destruction of hundreds of villages. The storm was the most severe since 1890, and it is estimated that the loss of life was in the neighborhood of 10,000. The damage done to property was also enormous. The typhoon was the result of a low pressure system which moved up the coast of Japan from the south.

A Great Railroad.

Not only does the New York Central Railroad, along the banks of the great Hudson, claim one of the most picturesque routes, but it also ramifi-cates into the most fertile and most productive territory which will attract a great number of visitors. The road is the result of the efforts of the late Mr. Vanderbilt, and it is now the property of the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad Company. The road is the most important in the world, and it is the only one which connects the great cities of New York and Chicago.

Local Settings.

Mrs. Emily Baird of East Toronto was fined $5 by Judge McDougall yesterday for assaulting a man. The man was a member of the Methodist Church, and he was assaulted by Mrs. Baird while he was in the church. The judge found that Mrs. Baird was guilty of the assault, and he fined her $5. The man was released without bail.
