Moving Day is one of the most disagreeable experiences of those who fill natured croakings of a few habitual fault-finders.

Perhaps the most difficult and delicated duty that is under the anxious consideration of the Councillors, is the division and appropriation of the provincial road grant, which is conspicuously inadequate to meet requirements in that important public service. The grant itself is small; and we are sorry to learn that a considerable portion of it is prepledged to liquidate a debinourred in building the bridge over Allen's Creek, last year.
