GIVE YOUR HEART TO IT .- The follow ing is from an address to young men, with native ability and good conduct, means succes. I will venture to say that this—as a rule, we can trust—is always the story of the young man who begins life with no advantage of position or patronage, and makes his way to a good place. He gives his heart to what he has to do—not half the time, but all the time; not grudgingly, but gladly; and not merely for the sake of a salary, but because he loves to be at it, and makes the work in good measure its own reward.—It shall come to pass, if you take hold like this, that men will say you have genius for what you take in hand; but you will know that one of the fine qualities in a genius for anything is an observing genius for anything is an observing use with a sauce. love for it, and the power of intense White Mountain Ash Cake .- Or
