

For the Guardian.

FASHION.

The fashion of this world is folly,
Is nothing but an empty show;
All tends to grief, and melancholy,
To want, to misery and woe.

Those who trust to earthly treasure,
Are trusting to a glittering toy;
That for a moment gives false pleasure,
But will at last, their peace destroy.

O were we like the flowers that grow
Lovely, yet neither toil nor spin;
To live as humble, meek and low,
As spotless, and as free from sin.

Man gives himself unceasing trouble,
In searching after happiness;
But like a vapour, or a bubble,
It all turns out mere emptiness.

There's nought on earth that we can trust,
Our only hope is in the Lord;
He who hath made all out of dust,
He surely ought to be adored.

This pilgrimage even at the best,
Can no refreshing good afford;
The only solid place of rest,
Is to be present with the Lord.

Few are our days and full of evil,
We spend them oft without a thought;
And labour hard to serve the devil,
For all our pains he gives us nought.

YOUTH'S DEPARTMENT.

LITTLE EDMUND.

Be Good, little Edmund, your mother will say,—
She will whisper it soft in your ear,—
And oft times repeat it, by night and by day,
That you may not forget it, my dear.

And the ant at its work, and the flower-loving bee,
And the sweet little bird in the wood,
As it warbles a song from its nest on the tree,
Seems to say, "Little Eddy, be good."

"Be good, says the Bible"—that volume of love,—
And the wisest are bound to obey,—
For the truths that it teaches will lead us above,
When death calls the spirit away.

For as sure as the brook to the river doth run,
And the river to ocean's broad wave,
This rule, if well learned from your cradle, my son,
Will prove your best wealth at the grave.

BENEFITS OF SABBATH SCHOOLS.

A merchant in New York wanted a person to tend his store. A boy applied for the situation. "What recommendations do you bring?" said the merchant. "I have none, Sir." "What friends have you to be responsible for your conduct?" "I have none, Sir; I am a stranger here." "What book is that in your pocket?" He gave it to him—it was a copy of the New Testament, with a certificate on a blank leaf written by a Sabbath School Teacher in England, stating that as he had been a punctual diligent scholar for several years, the Testament was given to him as a Reward of Merit. "This," said the merchant is recommendation enough. I will engage you to tend my store." He served faithfully for several years, and was afterwards a respectable and successful merchant.

A little girl was going to her Sabbath School, when as she passed some ragged children, one of them threw some dirt upon her. She brushed it off, and took no notice of it. Before she went to school in the afternoon, she requested her mother to give her a piece of cake, but would not tell what she wanted it for. As she passed the ragged child again, she gave her the cake. The child said, "How came you to give this to me. I threw dirt on you this morning." "I did it to make you love me, and then you won't do so again." "You are very kind, I thought you was proud of your fine clothes." "We are all kind in the Sabbath School—won't you go there with me?" "I am ashamed to go, I am so ragged." "No matter for that—you will be as welcome as any of us. Come and I will ask my mamma to give you some of my clothes, that are too small for me now,—they will just fit you." "Well, I will go."
