

Thank You, Sir.

"Having finished my Latin course according to your method, I wish to tender you my heart-felt thanks for the attention and the patience which I have received at your hands. I have sought to follow faithfully your method and feel that by doing so I have acquired a knowledge of Latin which otherwise I never would have done. I shall be writing on the matriculation examination in May of this year, and I have not the least fear as to the result at present. I am busy with the authors,—making good progress. As to the method itself, I consider it worthy of the highest praise. It is indeed excellent, and the study of it has been, and continues to be a real pleasure. I believe the method will accomplish all you claim for it, if people will but give it the trial which it certainly deserves."
