

Communication in education

A second principle which links to an educational perspective is that the communication process is a simple one which can be understood by both laymen and experts.

3. Functions for educational communication are those which relate to the exchange of information between teachers and students, between parents and teachers, and between teachers and the community.

Section 1.1

Communication between teacher and student

It is the privilege of one educational agent to have the other as his or her audience. This is the basis of the educational process.

A third dimension of communication is the relationship between teacher and student. This is the relationship which exists between two people who are communicating with each other in a particular situation.

Section 1.2

Communication between teacher and parent

The fourth dimension of communication is the relationship between teacher and parent. This is the relationship which exists between two people who are communicating with each other in a particular situation.

The fifth dimension of communication is the relationship between teacher and student. This is the relationship which exists between two people who are communicating with each other in a particular situation.

5. The fifth dimension of communication is the relationship between teacher and student. This is the relationship which exists between two people who are communicating with each other in a particular situation.

6. The fifth dimension of communication is the relationship between teacher and student. This is the relationship which exists between two people who are communicating with each other in a particular situation.

7. The fifth dimension of communication is the relationship between teacher and student. This is the relationship which exists between two people who are communicating with each other in a particular situation.

8. The fifth dimension of communication is the relationship between teacher and student. This is the relationship which exists between two people who are communicating with each other in a particular situation.

Section 1.3

Communication between teacher and community

It is the privilege of one educational agent to have the other as his or her audience. This is the basis of the educational process.

9. The fifth dimension of communication is the relationship between teacher and student. This is the relationship which exists between two people who are communicating with each other in a particular situation.

Section 1.4

Communication between teacher and parent

10. The fifth dimension of communication is the relationship between teacher and student. This is the relationship which exists between two people who are communicating with each other in a particular situation.

11. The fifth dimension of communication is the relationship between teacher and student. This is the relationship which exists between two people who are communicating with each other in a particular situation.

12. The fifth dimension of communication is the relationship between teacher and student. This is the relationship which exists between two people who are communicating with each other in a particular situation.

13. The fifth dimension of communication is the relationship between teacher and student. This is the relationship which exists between two people who are communicating with each other in a particular situation.