

"You shall have it, sir," he said at last. "I'll do it!"

A week later, a man hurried through the dark night with a burden in his arms.

He reached the river. Unmooring a boat, he rowed out into the stream. Half an hour later he came back

This time he carried no burden.