"Madam Butterfly" at the Royal Alexandra. The Aborn Opera Co., under the direc-tion of Milton and Sarsent Aborn, which will present Puccini's masterpiece at the Royal Alexandra during the present week, arrived in Toronto last night from New York. No other American managers have done so much to popularize grand opera in English as have this enterpris-ing firm. Not only have the Messrs. Aborn given the public grand opera in English on a most elaborate scale and with singe s of the first quality, but they have steadily adhered to their original plan of maintaining the popular price, that is the best seats at $1.50. They have they lately took over the Majestic Thea-tre in New York, where in competition with the Metropolitan Opera Co. they have enjoyed a very big success-th pre-senting ersend opera in English et nomilar senting grand opera in English at popular prices. It is a matter of interest that almost all of the important roles in Madam Butter-fly, which they present at the Royal Adexandra this week, are taken by artists who were members of the Henry W. Sav-age Co. when this popular work was first given in America. An important member of this organization is Miss Ellen James, a Toronto girl. Miss James will appear in the contraito role of Suzuki. The produc-tion of Madam Butterfly, which the Messrs. Aborn have brought to Toronto is the one they had made for their pre-duction of Madam Butterfly in English at the Boston Opera House last spring. The company is likewise the same in all particulars.

er presentation of "St. Elmo," to be given at the Grand this week. The play represents an innovation in that it pre-sents a departure from the ordinary lines of drama, being rather a play depending upon many refinements of acting not usu-ally called out in plays offered to popu-lar priced houses. The story of Mrs. Augusta Evans Wilson's, long familiar to readers, contained so much that was dramatic it is wonder that the writer was not persuaded years ago to permit an adaptation for the stage. The story plays much upon the sympathy and the dramatization does likewise, and the in-terest is constant. Martin Alsop, as St. Elmo, is in all respects equal to the role. He has both strength and reserve neces-sary to the portrayal of the character. His interpretation of the dual adture of St. Elmo is said to be very well done. Rollicking Girls" has been a real success, as shown by the enthusiasm of its audi-erce. The musical numbers are called "real hits." Th tunes are bright and the comedy full of snap. The company is a very large once and includes a chorus of selected show girls, who can sing, dance and be entertaining and give tone and strength to the ensemble numbers. Fif-teen new and original song hits are among the things that "The Bollicking Girls" can brag of, besides a brilliant stage setting and gorgeous costuming. This attraction opens at the Gayety Theatre this afternoon.
