THE EXHIBITION.

The Exhibition of 1897 is a thing of the past. Each year since the inception of the Exhibition the management has been criticized with more or less severity for alleged shortcomings. The exhibition still remains that the Exhibition continues to attract immense crowds to Toronto, and to draw a much larger attendance than any similar attraction on this continent. Toronto must zealously guard its great Industrial Exhibition.

The Tax Exemption Convention has been an eminent success, not so much because of the number of delegates present or of the work done during its two days' session, as because of the permanent organization that has been formed, and of the beneficial results that are likely to accrue from it. The decision to hold a convention of municipal representatives annually was probably the most important feature of the convention.

Henceforth we may expect to see many of the anomalies of the Municipal Act disappear. The creation of the villainous exemptions in the Assessment Act. Although no vote was taken on this question, there was little ambiguity among the delegates as to the feeling of the people throughout the Province on this important question.

Exemptions must go. The convention yesterday said as much. Furthermore, the municipalities must be deprived of the option of bonding manufacturing. The bonding system is a positive evil and should be prohibited. Let industries gravitate to whatever place the conditions are naturally most favorable. The World is glad to see that the delegates offered strong opposition to the assessment of two-acre blocks in cities as farm lands.

This amendment to the Municipal Act was put through on the snail. It would never have got into the act if the body that was organized yesterday had been in existence two or three years ago. The convention voiced public opinion as opposed to the exemption of the railways of civil servants. If the new municipalities must be deprived of it, it will not be long before they will be removed. There are other subjects that the new municipal organization will find it profitable to discuss. These include the question of good roads, the municipalization of public services, municipal insurance, and a score of other important subjects.

THE WAY THEY TALK.
Canada has to get down and take what the Big Neighbor to the South chooses to give.

Saginaw, Mich., Sept. 10.—Walter S. Eddy, a large lumber manufacturer, returned yesterday from a trip through Canada. Mr. Eddy was assured by leading lumber operators and others in Toronto and Ottawa that the Canadian Government will take absolutely no interest in the lumber trade.

He said: "The Canadian Government realizes that a course of that kind would be a serious confiscation of property and they would not dare do that. They would be hurting their own backs. Mr. Eddy must market their lumber and sell it to us, with the practical understanding that no prohibitive tariff be placed on it."

TO BE A BROTHER.
Washington, D.C., Sept. 10.—The Secretary of the Treasury held a letter to the Collector of Customs at Flatbush, N.Y., that stemmed leaf tobacco exported to Canada and then imported into the United States is not a manufactured tobacco within the meaning of the internal revenue law and, therefore, is not subject to the tax of six cents a pound assessed on manufactured tobacco. The tobacco will be admitted free of duty.

subject, that paper says: "Mr. Chamberlain was careful to point out the necessity for care to prevent entanglement in the most-favored-nation clause, which affects nearly the whole trade of the United Kingdom, and cannot well be got rid of by denunciation. To avoid awkward questions it is desirable that offers of special advantages should be made to this country nominally, and not generally to such countries as may choose to comply with certain conditions."

There should be no difficulty in following the advice here given. The Government has already been obliged to expunge from the section given above the words "when imported direct therefrom," which really struck a blow at the shipping interests of Great Britain. It is to be hoped that they will take the earliest opportunity of debating the whole reciprocal tariff and substituting for it a provision distinctly discriminating against, and taxing at a higher rate, all foreign importations.

In that case we shall be sure that England and the other members of the Empire will not lag behind Canada in generosity and enterprise, and will have sufficient intelligence to imitate Canada's example, and recognize it as the best policy for welding the Empire together.

"WHERE MERCHANTS MOST DO CON- GREGATE."

If the great wholesale houses are the points which indicate the state of trade in a country, there is no doubt that there is a prospect of good times before us, for, judging by what I heard, but more by what I saw, in the shipping room of one of our largest warehouses yesterday, business appears to be in a good way. It was in the immense warehouse of John Macdonald & Co., where, through the kindly courtesy of the man, I was permitted to see the various departments and sections which supply both city and country trade, that I was able for the first time in my life to form a fair idea of what "wholesale" trade really means.

This wholesale house is one of the oldest and best known in the Dominion, and was established in 1849 by the late Senator Macdonald; an interesting fact in this connection is that since its origin it has held the name of the firm intact, thus making it the only wholesale house in the Dominion, which can lay claim to such distinction. The length of the warehouse, which is divided into east and west wings, is deep twenty feet, its width 110 feet, and its height 112 feet; it is in five flats and has an enormous basement, and when one notes that every available space in each of the five flats of this immense warehouse is filled with new goods each season, some idea may be formed of the trade which passes through the house of this well-known firm.

Each of the buyers, who I noted, has each his own office, visits the manufacturers in the Old Country and on the continent, and returns with the goods, which are shipped from the warehouses here to the various retail merchants throughout the provinces. We have all an idea of the business done in a retail department store, where goods are sold by the yard and by the pair; but here everything is on a gigantic scale—whole pieces of woolen and cotton materials and dozens and hundreds of yards of goods.

As a rule, the goods are sold by the yard and by the pair; but here everything is on a gigantic scale—whole pieces of woolen and cotton materials and dozens and hundreds of yards of goods.

Hill and the Directors.
An amusing scene occurred at one of the entrances to the Grand Stand a couple of days ago. A director of the Industrial Exhibition Association, his wife and sister, were going to see the fireworks. They were going to take reserved seats in the Grand Stand. The director procured tickets for the ladies, but thought his badge would be all right. The ticket taker demurred, and refused to let the director pass without a ticket. Manager Hill stood near. The director called him over to settle the dispute. Manager Hill sided with the ticket taker, told the director he had no right to a seat without a ticket, and planted him self squarely in front of the director. "Do you know who I am?" asked the director. "Yes, I do," said the manager, who assumed his usual air of proprietorship of the whole circus, "and you can't pass without a ticket."

The director took his seat, but he was fuming. It transpires that the director is also an alderman and a member of the Board of Control. Ratepayers of Toronto will watch with interest the manner in which the director will carry out the duties of the Industrial Association in the Council. He knows how to do it, and he has plenty of opportunity.
