THE RESULT.

The Liberal party has been sustained, but with a reduced majority. They now have 32 seats, against 24 held by the Conservatives and 5 held by Independents. Five elections are yet to come off. The Liberals have a clear majority of 34 over Conservatives and Independents together. Leaving out of consideration the Independents, the Liberals have a majority of 39 over the Conservatives. Giving the Liberals the benefit of the 5 Independents, they have a majority of 44 over the Conservatives. Their smallest possible majority is therefore 34 and their greatest possible majority is 44. This estimate does not take into account the five elections yet to be held. If the Conservatives were to win these five elections they would be 29, if the Liberals were to win them they would be 49. When the elections are all over the Liberal majority will fluctuate between a lowest possible of 29 seats and a highest possible of 49. The last election in the House showed a majority of 40 for the Liberals. The decrease in the Liberal majority ranges anywhere between 10 and 30 seats, the fluctuation being dependent upon the complexion of the 5 Independent members and the 5 held elections. If we strike a mean between these two extreme possibilities, the Liberals will have a decreased majority of 20.
