Last evening the London Literary Club met for the fifth time since organization, the subject under discussion was unique in that it was a poet who introduced the subject.

"Poetry is the youngest and divinest of the arts," said the Rev. Mr. Norwood, laying his thesis before the members of the club. He followed up his statement by tracing the development of the arts from the beginning of time to the first appearance of poetry, show, and should be more of the distinct of the arts from the beginning of time to the first appearance of poetry, show, and should be first appearance of poetry, show, while not like in Advertiser:

MAY USE WELLINGTON STREET FOR AUTO PARKING

The board of works last evening took the question of parking automobiles nd will reach a decision shortly. The suggestion was made that the notors should be parked on Clarence motors should be parked on Clarence street and Park avenue. In city hall circles this is not accepted as the proper thing, as the street is narrow and on the direct run of the fire department, as pointed out by Ald. Moorhead. However, Wellington street, with the Federal Square adjacent, could be used to good advantage for this purpose, and it would not be surprising if the council brought in a recommendation to use this.
