Italian Army Headquarters, July 10.—(By the Associated Press)—Insistence by the German admiralty upon the Italian naval expedition for the destruction of the nets in the Straits of Otranto, and for the entrance to the Adriatic, and for an attack on the allied naval forces were responsible for the departure from Pola of the two Austrian dreadnoughts which were torpedoed by the Italians in the Adriatic on June 10, according to information from prisoners taken by the Italians from the Austrians (Vienna admitted the loss of the Saint Istvan). They were unable to say what the extent of the damage to the former was, but declared it was certain she was badly crippled.

STRIKE SITUATION IN TORONTO AND ELSEWHERE

Toronto, July 11.—The general labor situation in Toronto is still unsettled and full of the most serious possibilities. The machinists at the Russell Motor Company refuse to return to work until the company reinstate several workmen recently dismissed. The employees of the G. N. W. Telegraph Company avowed a strike this morning only through the receipt of a telegram from S. J. Koenigsberg, the president of the International Union, asking that they defer action until his arrival in Toronto; the civic strikers are still waiting upon the action of the city council, relative to their meetings.

The machinists are to hold a meeting on Sunday for a general discussion and action on a long-talked of strike for higher wages.

The strike of the employes at the various knitting mills remains unchanged.

The prospects of a general strike of railway shovmen and other railway men is also causing great concern here.

Telegram.

Ottawa, July 11.—Throughout the afternoon and evening the government was in close touch with developments in regard to the threatened strike of G. N. W. telegraph operators. Senator Robertson said last night that, while an agreement had not been reached between the company and the men, he was in hopes of a settlement.

"Propositions for a settlement have been submitted from both sides," he said, "and while they are not in absolute agreement, they are close enough together to lead one to hope, with confidence, that a strike will be avoided."

Chicago, July 11.—S. J. Koenigsberg, president of the International Telegraphers' Union, said today he would go to Canada in a day or two to confer with Senator Robertson.

A KAISER'S COMPASSION

(Boston Herald.)
It would be pleasing, if it were possible, to credit the German emperor with a compassionate disposition which he occasionally affects. People would think so much the better of him if a man he had the tenderness of heart which he professes, though it were overvalued and trodden down by his own idea of duty as divinely appointed sovereignty or war lord. But are his professions sincere? Is it true that his "heart bleeds" as he looks upon the slaughter and havoc wrought by his army in France and Belgium? Some how it has come about that whenever he hangs out a signal of pity it is taken as a warning to look for indirectly and representation. His favorite war correspondent reports that while inspecting the devastated Marne region the Kaiser said:

"When I see such horrors of war rendering thousands of people homeless and converting flourishing stretches of the French country into hideous deserts, the thought is forced upon me: What suffering and misery France might have spared herself and her people if the peace offer of Dec. 18, 1916, had not been so readily accepted by the Allies. It is that the sobbing of a sorrowful heart or the dropping of crocodile tears is not the matter by the truth about the alleged offer. The German government, with the concurrence of Austria-Hungary, Turkey and Bulgaria, sent notes to the Entente Allies stating that 'the four allied powers propose to enter into negotiations for peace,' but that the 'proposals which they will submit' were, according to the German government, 'of an order and character that would be tantamount to a permanent establishment of a lasting peace.' But there was no proposal in the identical form which had been made by the Entente Allies were simply sounded to see if they would jump at the bait. The German government is on the basis of the Allies was to sign the German invitation as a 'sham proposal' and a 'war manoeuvre' to denounce Germany's treatment of Belgium and her ally. The German government refused to consider a proposal which is empty and insincere. Then it was that President Wilson asked the allies to state their terms, whereupon the Allies did so very plainly and in considerable detail, whereas Germany evasively repeated the suggestion of a meeting of belligerents' delegates for an 'exchange of views.' What, then, can we conclude regarding the emperor's most recent expression of grief but that it is hypocritical and misleading? Perhaps the easiest way to appreciate his character is just to look back at this telegram of his which was sent to President Wilson early in September, 1914.

The Belgian government has publicly encouraged the civilian population to take part in this war, for which it has been carefully preparing. The cruelties committed in the course of this great struggle, by women, even by priests and doctors and nurses, have been such that my generals have been obliged at last to have recourse to the severest measures to punish the guilty and to hinder the blood-thirsty population from continuing to commit these abominable crimes. Several villages and even the town of Louvain have had to be destroyed (except the very beautiful town hall) for our defence and the protection of my troops. My heart bleeds when I see that such measures are rendered inevitable, and when I think of the numberless innocent people who have lost their homes and contempt for the stupidity.' Yet the Kaiser has not changed.
