be informed upon the matter discussed, to read the speech attentively:

Mr. Ross (Middlesex) said:—The House would have noticed that the line of argument, if argument it could be called, pursued by hon. gentlemen opposite was to point to items of increased expenditure as the present Administration, without at all crediting them with such decreased expenditure as was equally well substantiated by the same authority.

HE EXPECTED BETTER of hon, gentlemen—some of whom, at least, seemed to approach the question with professions of candour and fairness. The hon, member for Niagara (Mr. Plumb) was particularly anxious to fasten the charge of extravagance on the present Administration, while, at the same time, without any hesitation whatever, he justified the enormous increases which took place in every Department of the Government during the seven years of the old Administration. Not a word of censure could he utter against the extravagance of his own party, and not a word of censure could he utter against the extravagance of his own party, and not a word of censure could he utter against the extravagance of his own party, and not a word either to excuse or justify even the smallest increase by the present occupants of the Treasury benches. In dealing with the Public Accounts, he (Mr. Ross) proposed to examine them

FULLY AND IMPARTIALLY and, instead of giving the totals of increased to examine them

FULLY AND IMPARTIALLY and in the first place, he before the House. In the first place, he

the relative

MERITS OF THE TWO ADMINISTRATIONS before the House. In the first place, he found that the increased expenditure for all purposes during the seven years of the existence of the late Administration amounted to 73 per cent, or to an average of 10 per cent. per annum. During the last three years he found the increased expenditure of the present reckless, extravagant and corrupt Administration—as they had been told it was—was only one per cent. in three years, or one-third per cent. The cost of the Per cent. The cost of the Per cent. The cost of the Per cent. In seven years by the late Administration, and 23 years by the late Administration, and 23 howed an increase of 9 per cent. Under the present Government. In INDIAN GRANTS, the increase, although not without justification, he supposed—he did not condemn the per cent. In the management of the per cent. In the management of the per cent. The cost of the per cent. In seven years by the late Administration, and 23 per cent. In the per cent. In the per cent. In the per cent. The cost of the per cent. In the per cent. In the per cent. THE CIRCUMSTANCES OF THE COUNTRY NOW were very different to what they were some years ago, and if they could show that, with increased obligations, necessitated by opening up new territory in the west, and by the management of large public works which had been begun by their predecessors, and which the present was less than the sunder the old Administration, they on the one hand, justified themselves for any increased expenditure was less than justified themselves for any increase by the altered circumstances of the country, and, on the other hand, justified

THE ECONOMY OF THE FRESENT GOVERNMENT by showing that, under such altered circumstances at a much smaller ratio, if it increased at a much smaller ratio, if it increased at all, than under the old Administration. Let hon, gentlemen recollect the fact that the averge extenditure is constant.

at a much smaller ratio, if it increased at all, than under the old Administration. Let hon gentlemen recollect the fact that the average expenditure

UNDER THE OLD ADMINISTRATION was ten per cent. and that the average under the present Administration amounted to but one-third per cent. per annum. Let him deal with some of the matters in detail, as set forth in the balance sheet appended to the Public Accounts. Let him first take up the charges for debt and subsidies, and it would be found that a large increase in the item of interest; an increase for which the country had a right to require an explanation at the hands of the present Government. But the explanation was easy. His hon, friend from Niagara had justified the ordinary expenditure of the country, as much because it was the result of the management of the old Administration as for any other expenditure of the country, as much because it was the result of the management of the old Administration as for any other the present of the country, as much because it was the result of the management of the old Administration as for any other the present of the country, as much because it was the result of the management of the old Administration as for any other the present of the country and the would next call the attention of the House to matters in which there had been a decrease.

We shall give the remainder of Mr. Ross' Speech in next issue. of the old Administration as for any other cause; but the expenditure in the matter of interest was face of this statement. It would be found that under the late Administration, in the increase in seven years was 49 per cent., while the present Administration, so 'reckless, corrupt, and extravagant," had effected a reduction of 8 per cent., or a total of $71,492. Take up the next item—the item of ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE. Under the late Government there was an increase of 58 per cent. in seven years; under the present Government an increase of only 23 per. cent. Presently he would refer to that increase and the cause of it.

THE ITEM OF POLICE showed an increase under the late Administration of 147 per cent. in seven years; under the present Administration the reduction in three years had been 80 per cent. And yet this was extravagance. Take up the management of Fishermen's Rock.

The penditure for public works. He found that, during the last three years, they had expended $21,677,036, on public works chargeable to capital account; that expenditure was necessitated by the public improvements which the country required to be perfected. It was justified by the fact that these public improvements were for the development of the resources of this country, and if any further justification were needed, they could have it from hom, gentlemen opposite in the fact that the greater portion of these public works had been begun by themselves, and had been carried on by the present Administration, not from choice, but necessity. But, while he called the attention of hongentlemen to the large increase in the item of interest, let the House not forget another fact, that the another fact, that the RATE OF INTEREST HAD BEEN VERY LARGE.
LY REDUCED.

If the present Administration had been obliged, in the interest of the public service, to go to the English market and borrow money, was it or its supporters to blame for this, if the necessity had been imposed upon it by the previous Administration? Even if that necessity had not been imposed upon it, if it went there to borrow money, it was its duty to obtain it at as cheap a rate of interest as was possible. Now,

NOW, Just this, that the average rate of interest of the present Administration was less by onehalf per cent, than the average at which the preceding Administrations were able to borrow. This item of interest alone represented the sum of $700,000 per annum, and if that were capitalized according to the admirable system of arithmetic practiced by hon. gentlemen opposite, it would be found that it represented the sum of nearly $18,000,000. That was to say that, at the present time, we were able to use in the management and construction of the public works, $18,000,000, for which, honour than to get up a talse requsition paid by the present Administration with that paid by their predecessors, we were practically paying no interest at all. Leaving the matter of interest and He must have something to do or he will NAPAN BAY.

he found that the present Government were managing a debt $24,000,000 greater than their predecessors, managing also a larger Sinking Yund than the late Government managed, with $54,795 less per annum. He found, moreover, that the average of their premiums and discounts during seven years was $37,883; that the average premiums and discounts paid by the present Government during the last three years was $24,081, or $13,000 less. Leaving that department of the Public Accounts, and coming to what was perhaps the most important department,—the ordinary expenditure,—he would present a few facts for the consideration of the House.

COMPARATIVE REVIEW OF THE ORDINARY EXPENDITURE.

He would take up the items one by one, and hon, gentlemen would notice he did not omit from that catalogue a single item except census, which appeared on the local content. Three doses will prove that it is just what you want.
