

It is May it is May !

And the flowers obey

The beams which alone are more bright than they ;

Yet they spring at the touch of the sun,

And opening their sweet eyes see by one,

In a language of beauty seem all to say,

And of perfume—'tis May, it is May !

It is May it is May !

And delights that lay

Child's and such a d' beneath winter away,

Break forth again o'er the blinding snow,

And soften, and soothe it, and bless it whole,

Oh ! thoughts more tender than words convey,

Sing out—It is May, it is May !

He who with a treacherous memory reads carelessly, carries water to a stream.

By reading we converse with the dead; by discourse with the living; the former enriches, the latter polishes the mind.

"Those who outlive their incomes by splendour in dress or equibage are well said to resemble a twinkling fire, which shines by that which destroys it."

Good-will, like a good name, is got by many actions, and lost by one.
