The CENTRAL BUSINESS COLLEGE of TORONTO

Among the educational institutions in Canada organized and conducted as a private enterprise, and providing special courses of training for the benefit of young men and women, it is well known that the CENTRAL BUSINESS COLLEGE of Toronto occupies a leading place.

From the records of the school we can show that this College was organized by its present Principal, Mr. W. H. Shaw, in August, 1892, over fifteen years ago. It began operations in a modest way, enrolling during its first year but one hundred and fifty-five students, who were cared for by a staff of three teachers. Now it shows an annual enrolment of over fourteen hundred and a staff of twenty-four members.

This remarkable growth can be attributed more largely to the modern methods which prevail in our school, to the thoroughness which characterizes the work of every department, and to the constant endeavor of the Principal and every member of the staff to see that all students receive such careful personal supervision in their studies as to best ensure good results, than to any other causes.

The total number of students who have passed through this college, leaving their names on its register, is now above the ten thousand mark, and with this force of representatives scattered throughout the various provinces of the Dominion, aiding in the conduct of the commercial enterprises of our country, sounding the praises of the College, and sending their friends to enjoy the training which gave them a successful start, it is no surprise to find this school the strong, well equipped, well organized institution it is to-day.

The College is in session throughout the year, and is meeting with great success in locating its graduates in good positions the moment they are ready for appointments. The records show very many calls from business firms which could not be supplied for lack of material.

The Winter Term is now open and will be followed by the Summer and Autumn Terms without any break for holidays until December 25 next. Any one interested in business training should write the Principal, Mr. W. H. Shaw, for a copy of the handsome new catalogue just issued. Address 395½ Yonge St., Toronto.
