

Revue Progress

The first general meeting for Red 'n' Black Review was last Sunday evening in Memorial Hall.

The highlight of the evening was an announcement by John "Ally" Short, P.R., that party arrangements for the cast were in the way.

Normal auditions for the show will start on Tuesday in Memorial Hall from 7 to 9. Following these rehearsals will be held from 7 to 9 on Thursday as well as from 3 to 6 on Sunday.

Barry Cooper, the Musical Director for the show reports that the band still needs drums. Any interested trombone, trumpet and sax players please contact him at the Yearbook Office any time.

Just 7 weeks away this year's show, is being held November 25-27 in the Playhouse.

Producer-Director Phil Stephenson said that he was encouraged by the turnout at the organizational meeting. He has high hopes that Tuesday's auditions will yield fresh talent for the annual review.

Letters to the editor can be delivered by sliding them under the door of the brunswickan office or by addressing them to: Brunswickan, UNB Campus Mail. No postage necessary if mailed in residence mailbox.)

Plaque Unveiling

Mrs. N. A. M. MacKenzie, wife of the seventh President of UNB, will unveil a plaque at MacKenzie House in ceremonies set for 5 p.m. on October 14. Dr. MacKenzie, after whom the House has been named, will be present.

Following the ceremony, Dr. and Mrs. MacKenzie will dine in McConnell Hall with the residents of MacKenzie House.

After dinner, at about 6:45 p.m., all students will be invited to join those of MacKenzie House to hear a talk by Dr. MacKenzie. He will discuss campus residence problems and promises.

Photo Contest

The Brunswickan and Yearbook are jointly sponsoring a photography contest, with cash and merchandise prizes for candid and posed pictures. The size of the prizes will be announced later, but Brunswickan staff photographers will be awarded double the prize if they win.

First prize is estimated to be as high as $50 for a Brunswickan staffer. The object of the contest is to encourage students to take quality pictures for the Yearbook and Brunswickan.

Photographers, experienced or otherwise, should write to the Brunswickan for further details.

New Yearbook Editors

JOHN SHORT

BARRY COOPER

John Short and Barry Cooper have been appointed co-editors-in-chief of the UNB yearbook, Up The Hill. They will fill the vacancy left by Bob Burt, who did not return to the University this year. An organizational meeting is to be held in the Tartan Room on October 13 at 7:00. Short and Cooper commented that they have devised a "new and different" theme for the 1966 yearbook. "We need new and different people to work in this organization during the upcoming year," said Short Sunday.

The new staff includes Richard Ozon and Cathy Sullivan, but needs a substantial number of additional staff members if it is going to succeed in producing a yearbook. The staff is responsible for trying to get the 1965 yearbook to its readers, in addition to preparing the new book.

"We have planned a complete reorganization for this year's edition," said Cooper. "Ideas and suggestions regarding these changes will be welcome. Mainly, we need help, and soon." "Solid shot", remarked Short.

Senior 'Dance' Next Week

The Senior Class executive, after meeting with the class presidents and directors of Red 'n' Black, have decided that a senior class dance was financially feasible in the light of the cancelled Fall Formal.

The dance is being held for more than just social reasons. Past senior classes have relied on the profits of Red 'n' Black for their graduation expenses, as well as receiving a small grant from the Student Representative Council. Last year, Red 'n' Black was presented at the Playhouse, and expenses, especially for sound and lighting, was particularly high. The S.R.C. did not have a spring budget and nobody realized the seriousness of the situation until mid-May — one week before Epocaenia.

The Class of '66, however, does not bear any financial responsibility for these activities and is concerned only with its own expenses. The dance will involve a $2.00 per couple admission charge (seniors and their dates only) to cover the costs of this dance and hopefully to raise funds for the spring. Single admissions will be available also. No such charge will exist for the spring Senior Class party. Those same high standards of decorum that have prevailed in past years will be observed at both the fall and spring dances this year.

How much money do the seniors need this year? — Roughly $1300. The spring dance costs approximately $550, graduation about $450, and the gift from the Senior class to the University $300. With construction of the new Student's union building to begin next year, there are a number of needed gifts which can be provided. Seniors are requested to attend this dance and support their class in order that the problems encountered in the past can be eliminated.

Russian Course

An extension course in Russian is to be given this year by Mr. H. W. Bird of the Classics Department. Emphasis will be placed on the oral aspects of the language, with extensive practice in set phrases.

Books for the course will be available through the Bookstore.

The first class was held Wednesday, October 6.
