The Selling Problem

It has been said that any man can manufacture goods. The difficulty in business is to The difficulty in business is to sell the manufactures when ready for the market. Likewise it is comparatively easy to breed good stock. It is quite another matter to sell it at satisfactory prices.

The breeder of dairy cattle, who has only recently begun, and has, say, two bull calves for sale, is confronted with a serious problem, when he at-tempts to move them. Nearby reighbours, not infrequently, cannot appreciate the value of his stock. The local market is his stock. The local market is slow in demand, and will not market for such stock. It is reached through the live stock columns of the Farm and Dairy. A one-inch advertisement in three advertisement in these columns costs only 98 cents.
