Questions and Answers.

Veterinary.

Fatality in Calves.

Five weeks ago one of calf's hind legs got stiff, and it died inside of 24 hours. To-day another calf with the same symptoms died within 10 hours. J. P.

Ans.—The symptoms indicate black leg or black-quarter. There is no successful treatment for the disease. Prevention consists in keeping your cattle away from infected fodder or inoculating with anti-black-leg preparation, which, with instructions and necessary instruments, can be procured from the Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, Ont., or manufacturing chemists. It is seldom that cattle over two years of age suffer from the disease.

Pigs With Cough.

My pigs commence to pant and cough, soon get worse, and die. W. G. H.

Ans.—It would require a careful post-mortem to ascertain the cause of death. The symptoms indicate either lung worms or infectious bronchitis, either of which is seldom successfully treated. Treatment consists in shutting the herd in a close pen and burning sulphur so long as you can stand the fumes, then opening door or window to admit air. Treatment can be repeated in about ten days. It is usually wise to dispose of the whole herd and thoroughly disinfect the premises before introducing fresh stock.

Lump in Teat Heavy Breathing.

1. Cow has a small lump in one milk duct. It does not interfere with milking yet. She is nearly dry. Can this be successfully treated while she is dry? 2. What is good for shoats that breathe heavily? W. W.

Ans.—1. This can be successfully treated only by an operation by a veterinarian with an instrument especially designed for the purpose. Local applications do no good. It is usually considered wise to leave alone until the growth interferes with milking. It will be wise not to breed her again, as sooner or later the growth will cause serious trouble.

2. Purge with 2 to 4 ounces raw linseed oil, according to size. Feed lightly on laxative food, allow plenty of exercise, and keep in comfortable, well-ventilated pens at night.

Miscellaneous.

Concentrated Lime Sulphur Wash.

Will you kindly let me know whether lime-sulphur mixture can be made in concentrated form, to be diluted when used, and if so, how? J. O. R.

Ans.—Lime-sulphur solution can be prepared in the concentrated form by using 100 pounds of sulphur and 50 lbs. of lime to 40 gallons of water. One is not obliged to use this quantity, but these proportions have been found nearest correct. The technique of preparing this solution should receive some attention. Some makers mix the sulphur to a thick paste and put it into a small quantity of water, say, about 15 gallons. When this is hot the lime is added and the slaking mixture well stirred. After this becomes a paste the remainder of the 40 gallons is added and it is boiled for one hour. Others take about 15 gallons of water and add the lime to it when it is hot. The lime is quickly followed by the dry, pulverized sulphur. The slaking of the lime assists in incorporating the sulphur into the mixture and in making a better solution. It should be stirred frequently, and when the boiling is done it should be made up with additional water to the 40-gallon mark. This solution should be tested with an hydrometer before being used as any two batches are seldom exactly alike. As a general thing, lime-sulphur solution made in this way tests between 1.240 and 1.280. With a strength of 1.240, one gallon of the solution is mixed with 6½ to 7 gallons of water for spraying dormant wood, with 25½ gallons of water for the second application, and with 29 gallons of water for the third application.
