Many Steamboat Men En Route South—The Amur is Due.

Skagway, Oct. 24.—E. R. Peoples has been appointed receiver of Geo. L. Rice & Co.'s property on the application of creditors. The Pack Train saloon and restaurant and other property are included.

EX-Collector Ivey is here and speaks to a mass meeting tonight. He goes to Washington to labor with congress for Alaskan needs. He insists that Governor Brady must be disregarded.

Yukon steamboat men are arriving in great numbers to go south for the winter.

Less than three hundred tons of freight remain at Whitehorse for Dawson.

The Amur is due today with mail and the last Yukon passengers for the season.

Machinery and men leave today for the Engineer mine on Taku Arm, owned largely by local people and in Dawson. They will put in a big plant to work the property. It consists of a very large deposit of low grade free milling ore. Mining engineers in Atlin say half a million dollars of new money will be invested there next year in hydraulic and other machinery. The output this year is in excess of one million. There is not sufficient labor to do the work this winter.

Dummies in War

That "all is fair in love and war" is an old maxim, and one in which certain fighting men in Colombia firmly believe.

During the recent revolution in that country the rebels, finding that they had not enough sentinels, devised a simple plan for convincing their opponents that they had all the sentinels they needed.

Procuring several blocks of stone, they placed them in such positions that they resembled human beings and then they equipped the figures, one with a rifle, another with a military cap, another with a cloak, until they looked at a distance exactly like soldiers.

This ruse, it is said, succeeded admirably. The government troops were convinced that the rebels were amply supplied with sentinels and were only surprised that, no matter how often they fired at them, ever at close range, the number never seemed to decrease.

GOOD NEWS

After years of experimenting and the trying of many formulas it has at last been discovered that any and all kinds of rheumatism are curable. Cribbs, the Druggist, has the formula and has manufactured a large stock of the remedy, which he is selling, in order to introduce some, at virtually outside prices. A trial of one bottle will convince you of its merits.

Special to the Daily Nugget. Toronto, Oct. 24.—The four-year-old child of Isaac Francis, Toronto, was struck by a train yesterday and lost an arm. The child got up, ran home to his mother and told how he had lost his arm. Physicians say it is an unparalleled example of nerve.

Insured Against Twins

One pair of twins is not much of a burden to any family, however needy it may be, but a second pair often proves somewhat of an encumbrance, especially if it comes within a year or two after the first.

A political economist in England recently became impressed with this fact and decided to find a remedy. Consequently he organized a company the object of which is to insure parents against twins. Any young married couple may purchase a policy from this company, and in that case may rest assured that it will never find it difficult to provide for any twins or triplets that may be born to it.

The company does not pay any money when only one pair of twins is born, but it pays a handsome sum on the arrival of any subsequent pair.

Most of its policy holders are said to be men who could not easily keep the wolf from the door if their wives presented to them two or three pairs of twins, but who are now wholly indifferent as to the number of their offspring, since they know that the more twins they have the more prosperous they are likely to become.

Salisbury's Long Joke

Many years ago, Lord Salisbury, late Prime Minister of England, was a journalist and occupied a room in a newspaper office in company with Mr. Charles Williams, who later became a war correspondent.

The two were warm friends, and as a token of their friendship they treated each other to a pint of pale ale every day, Salisbury paying the bill on the odd days of the month and Mr. Williams on the even days. In time, however, Salisbury went into politics and became Marquis and Prime Minister and Mr. Williams was obliged to drink his ale in solitude.

Squirrel Outwits Cat

Squirrels evidently understand the cat's limitations, and take advantage of the knowledge for their own protection, and sometimes, apparently, for their amusement. Last Friday I saw an exhibition in Central Park that led me to this conclusion.

Grimalkin, with lowered body, was creeping along on the Park wall near Sixty-seventh street, when she saw a squirrel sitting on his haunches, enjoying a peanut, the gift of a Park visitor. The cat slid into the grass, and hiding as far as possible by flattening herself against the ground she planned an attack on her unsuspecting desired prey.

Mr. Squirrel was not long unsuspecting, for he soon discovered his stealthily approaching natural enemy and darted up the nearest tree, but only far enough for a position of advantage, and then viewed the situation.

WEATHER WARMER.

But Little Ice Running in the Klondike.

The threatened cold snap has apparently passed, according to the records of Sergeant Major Tucker. A few days ago a minimum temperature of 7 above was reached whereas for the 24 hours preceding 9 o'clock this morning the coldest that was registered was 16 above with a maximum temperature of 30. The Klondike has been comparatively free of ice today, the fogs being small and very flaky. The temperature of the Yukon remains the same and it is not cold enough yet for it to begin the making of ice.

Room for 500,000,000

Some time ago a movement was making among certain politicians in the east looking toward a revival of the old "Know-Nothing" or "America for Americans" party. An attempt was made to enlist the sympathies of the independent politicians of both leading parties.

National legislation was proposed in the form of a stringent measure restricting immigration and applying severe educational tests to the privileges of naturalization and the franchise. "American Party" was for a "fence" to be erected around the United States, with native born sentinels at every post or port.

"Put none but Americans on guard," was the cry.

The movement was, of course, doomed to failure, but it is not generally known, even among the most strenuous of the party, that a castic utterance of the late Colonel Robert G. Ingersoll contributed largely to the overthrow of the leaders' plans.

In full confidence of receiving Colonel Ingersoll's sympathy and support, a committee invited him to express his views on the necessity then existing for the restriction of immigration. Colonel Ingersoll surprised the Americans with the following characteristic letter, now first printed—

"Mr. Dear Sir,—To be frank, I do not believe in your doctrine. I do not believe that America belongs to Americans—it belongs to the world. If foreign nations endeavor to give us their convicts and paupers, or to empty their hospitals on our shores, then we should object, but so long as the peasants of Europe wish to better their condition, and for that purpose voluntarily come to America, they are, so far as I am concerned, perfectly welcome.

In Hands of Mob

Glenns Falls, N. Y., Oct. 4.—The business section of this city was completely in the hands of a mob tonight as an incident of the strike on the lines of the Hudson Valley Railway Company.

Cars have been operated for the past few days by non-union men without molestation by the strikers, but tonight a rally and mass meeting of the union was called and prior to the gathering 3,000 delegates paraded the streets.

When the strikers reached Warren street they met a trolley car and at once captured it, taking complete possession. The next four cars met on the street were won over in the same manner.

The conductors and motormen were pelted with stones and several were so seriously hurt as to make it necessary to take them to the hospital. Those of the conductors and motormen who were not bodily harmed were spirited away.

The police, who were brought out on a hurry call, succeeded in rescuing three of the motormen and placed them in jail for safety.

At a late hour the mob is almost uncontrollable. The whole police force is out trying to keep order, but it is greatly feared that the cars and other property of the company will be destroyed before morning.

The police are practically powerless in the face of the mob. The name of one of the non-union motormen who was badly injured is Currier, of Brooklyn, formerly an employe of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company. His condition is critical.

Sheriff Dill has been summoned to Glenns Falls and said over the long distance telephone that he would again have a company of the Second New York National Guard called out. The troops were dismissed last Thursday when it was thought that the situation had reached the point where the militia was no longer necessary to maintain order.

In Finland a novel form of vapor bath has recently become popular. A person who proposes to enjoy it lies down at full length in a hammock, which is suspended over a large bath tub filled with ice cold water. An attendant then throws into this water some hot bricks, whereupon a vapor arises and envelops the person lying in the hammock.

For some minutes the attendant allows him to remain exposed to the vapor and then, after removing the bricks, he gives the hammock a jerk and the gentleman in it comes plump down into cold water.

Those who have tried this method of bathing say that the sensation is quite novel and that the sudden plunge into cold water really invigorates one.
