WRITES HOME

Harry Stevens, of the Canada Flour Mills Co. Gives Interesting Account of His Southern Trip.

The following interesting letter explains itself:

Fort De France, June 30, 1902.

The Canada Flour Mills Co., Ltd., Chatham, Ont.

Gentlemen,—The S. S. Madiana sailed to St. Pierre on her way here, shutting her speed off to almost to a standstill, and we had an excellent view of the ruins and of the smoking volcano. The trade winds, which at this season of the year are always from the southeast, blew ashes on our clothes, for a distance of three or four miles and the smoky smell was noticed by all. Arriving at Fort De France all passengers and the mate, third mate and third engineer, made arrangements with a colored captain to take us to the ruins in a steam tug. Among our passengers was Mrs. Wood, of Barbados, who was anxious to come along.

Fort de France, the capital of the island, being a native of Quebec, could keep up posted of their conversations and we nearly lost to getting aboard the boat from the small row boat. I never wish to sail with such a desperate crew of men again.

But our crowd understood each other and knew what to do to be necessary.

The shore is very tropical in appearance, many nice cocoanut and banana trees all along the beach.

Arriving about one mile from the southern extremity of the city could see the dividing line, buildings on one side wrecked, cocoanut trees with fire and gas and a few feet south vegetation perfect and houses intact. The house containing the woman, who had the pipe in her mouth, was pointed out. It was the pipe in St. Kitts.

Many pieces of fine mahogany furniture were washed up here from the wave from the second eruption, 20th May. Our boat had a family of four into Carbet from Fort De France. There were also other people, including small children, running along the beach.

Arriving at St. Pierre, the boat yanked the boat yanked at four looters in the eastern part of the city, and they took to their heels in good shape. Quite a number have been shot for looting since the eruption, and the country is filled with that class of people.

Arriving on shore the streets running parallel with the shore were not as bad as the streets farther up, owing to the heavy rains washing them. Rain has been felt every day since the eruption, and has been exceedingly heavy downpour of it. Going into the city farther up I went into the church which held so many people at the time of the eruption, the clock was registered the time of the calamity as 8.10 and removed, and the building is not more than 15 feet high from the ground on any of the walls.

I got some souvenirs here. I located the Martineau Bank, which must have been a magnificent structure. Its entrance to the bank was protected by a great gate and one of the rods was hung a huge stone, which had fallen from one of the buildings, and the rod must have been four inches in diameter.

This will give you an idea of the intense heat there must have been. The convent was up on a hill, and I had not time to go near it. In one house were the bodies of two people, apparently in bed. We also noticed other bodies on the street, and human bones, although the ash from the volcano must have buried them and a great many have been burned to clear up the scene.

The rivulet that was fed by the volcano and ran through the city is dried up, and the sides of the mountain look as We're outspoken about this suit. There isn't such another being sold in Ontario for the price.

Some store may sell equal cloth—we're doubtful of it—and some other store may give you equal trimmings or making, but as for all three together—why we couldn't do it ourselves with any body else's equipment.

This is a gentlemanly suit. You'll look in vain for any sign of readiness inside or out.

though a knife had hacked into it from top to bottom. Vegetation is very rapid and banana trees three feet high are growing amongst these old ruins. Many scientific men from the States have been here, and I had the pleasure of meeting Dr. Hovey and Professor Jaggar on board ship.

Dr. Hovey has made four trips to the volcano and Prof. Jaggar is arranging to visit the mouth of the crater. Dr. Hovey told me he met the prisoner who gave that story regarding the very serious condition of health at the present time. This man seems to be the only one who escaped death in the city proper. The crater's opening is from 1-2 to 3-4 miles across and the distance is 4200 feet above the city as against 4454 before the eruption.

Prof. Jaggar says a scientist of St. Pierre school, named Lovess, was one of a commission to investigate Mt. Pelée before the eruption and the report to the governor was that there was no danger. Acting on this, the governor ordered a number of soldiers to go through the city to assure the people there was no cause for alarm.

But the governor refusing to allow the people to leave the city is denied. The governor lost his life. It is thought, while in a row boat in front of St. Pierre. Everyone here appears to have lost relatives there, one person reports 89 relatives lost, and one even reports 111 while I met some who lost all their family. The agent of the D. S. Line here told me he lost two brothers, and two clerks in the two brothers.

He knew Salvat and Louis Degez and says both families were wiped out. The bank lost all their papers, but are not much poorer, as their circulation of bills was large and no one left to claim deposits while their money was safe.

Fort De France is 15,000 population and quite a nice town, but not as different, in interest, than the other islands. It is noticeable. Hardly anyone talks English and this place is regarded the head of the island, that has a population left of 15,000. The capital is very large and draped white and black inside. The statue of Josephine is erected in a large park, being fitted up. About 1500 soldiers kept getting aboard boat from the small row boat. I never wish to sail with such a desperate crew of men again.

Perhaps she is sixteen. Suddenly she seems to lose strength, her beauty fades because her strength fails, her eyes lose their lustre. How her spirit droops! It alarms you, but all this may be corrected quickly. Get her Ferrozone, it is a nerve tonic, it aids the stomach to do its work. Appetite! she'll eat anything and digest it, too. ## ROYAL MUSKOKA NOW OPEN

Guests Are Arriving Daily at the New Summer Resort.

The opening of the new Royal Muskoka Hotel on Lake Rosseau, Muskoka Lakes district, for the season of 1902, has been a source of satisfaction to the proprietors, and the reservations that have been made up to the present for accommodation at this resort assures the success of the venture. Guests are arriving daily, and by next week, hundreds of people will be enjoying the beauties of Muskoka with the advantage of sojourning in one of the best summer hotels in America.

Among the guests at the hotel now are prominent people from Buffalo, Chicago, New York, and other American cities, as well as many Canadians.

The Ontario Government, in conjunction with the Grand Trunk Railway system, is continuing the policy inaugurated last year of restoring the Muskoka lakes with parent bass.

The first carload was deposited in Lake Rosseau, June 20, and a finer lot of bass have seldom been seen. Last year 10,000 fish were transplanted into the Northern Lakes with much success.

The fishing this year in the Muskoka Lakes is good, some excellent catches having been made, the bass weighing from two to four pounds, and pickerel from two to eight pounds.

MILEAGE TICKETS

From Seven to Ten Million Miles a Month by Passengers of New York Central.

Mileage tickets are used very generally by persons who travel at all regularly in New York State. The liberal conditions under which these tickets have been issued induce almost every family to purchase a mileage ticket, so that very often a person will make a trip on a slight excuse, having in the house the means of traveling without at the time paying out any money.

It is estimated that there are used of New York Central mileage books alone from seven to ten million miles per month. Notwithstanding the fact that the act of the legislature of New York obliging railroads to issue mileage tickets is unconstitutional, the New York Central still continues to sell them under the same liberal conditions as before. Perhaps this is one of the reasons for the steady increase in the passenger traffic of the New York Central and its leased lines.

People appreciate low rates for travel and liberal arrangements under which the low rates can be secured. They dislike red tape and want to avoid it as much as they can. The direct, straightforward two cents per mile mileage ticket suits them exactly, and practically everybody on the Central has one.—From the Buffalo Commercial.
