BOURBON CLAIM TO SPANISH CASH

Half Brother of King Alfonso

Appeals to Rome for

Father's Money

New York, Feb. 27.—Don Louis de Bourbon, self-asserted half brother of King Alfonso of Spain, has forwarded a formal petition to the Pope and the Sacred College of Cardinals at Rome, requesting that the Spanish ruler be summoned to a hearing before the papal court in which de Bourbon's claims for a share in the estate of his father, King Alfonso XII, would be presented.

The petition was sent on de Bourbon's receipt of a request from the Sacred College that he formally present his claim, based upon the papal ecclesiastical laws. Don Louis seeks the inheritance on a claim that he is the eldest son, and the late Spanish ruler, through a morganatic marriage, and that he is two years older than King Alfonso.

Don Louis says his mother, who lives in Paris and is a member of the French nobility, has consented to appear in his behalf at the papal hearing.

"I do not seek the crown of Spain," he asserted, "but I do seek my just share in my father's estate and recognition of my royal privileges. I also am doing this to vindicate myself from the recent statements from the Spanish Embassy at Washington, which branded me as an impostor."

The executive committee hopes to bring together a week or two next, in the club's mountain camp on Mount Falcon, overlooking Denver, two hundred of America's leading publishers, editors, artists, writers and managers. At this meeting the executive committee will account for its stewardship and turn over the property to the board of regents, who will then appoint a new executive committee. If fifty memberships are subscribed without delay, the clubhouse and mountain camp will be opened next May.

Thirty years ago Colonel A. K. McChesney, feeling keenly the conditions prevailing in the profession of journalism, made an effort toward a similar organization. In 1915 Henry Waterson, writing to John Brisson Walker on the same subject, said: "This movement has been too long delayed. If it could be carried through, it would be a noble and beneficent work."

H. H. Kohlhaas, writing from New York Jan. 24 to one of the members of the committee, sent his fullest commendation. "It is a good work," he said. "I hope it will succeed."

FROM THE PEOPLE

KISSED BY FORCE

To the Editor of The Gleaner,
Sir: I am a girl 19 years old and have been keeping company steady for four months with a boy 21. I think the world and all of him and do not like to do things that he wouldn't wish me to do. We were invited to a skating party last night, but as he was working from 4 to 12 he couldn't go, so the boy who was giving the party took me. Now this boy wanted me to go with him a long time ago and is always after me, but I do not care very much for him. He brought me home last night, and when he said good night he put his arm around me and tried to kiss me. Of course, I did my best to get away from him, but he forced me and kissed me three or four times. Should I ignore him in the future, as I came in the house without saying good night again? Do you think I should tell my boy friend about it, as he always kisses me good night and I don't like to be thing that somebody else has kissed me without his knowing.
Yours,
BERVIE.
Woodstock, N. B., Feb. 28, 1923.

HEARTLESS FLIRT

To the Editor of The Gleaner,
Sir:—I am 18 years of age, but contrary to the general belief about girls of my age, I have no intention of taking my love affairs seriously. This is where the difficulty lies. I do not wish to have a "steady," to have one boy to take me out, never a change, to keep going with him as long as I can stand him or at last marry him to create a little excitement. I want a change. So here is my problem: For some time I have been going out with a quiet, unromantic boy. Now, I find that our companions always couple our names together. We are "in the rut." Lately several other boys have asked me to go out with them. If I go friend No. 1 is offended and I regret to say, is my friend no longer. Then merrily I should have to start with friend No. 2, going with him until he drops out for similar reasons, and tell everyone that I went with him only for "the good time, and so that I would not have to pay my own way." Suppose I refuse friend No. 2, and go with another, and eventually be pronounced a heartless flirt; or to stick to one boy all the time with the dire results before mentioned, besides losing new invitations. Please do not say I am hard to please and fickle. I am not. I consider this a common problem of the 'teen age girl. 2—criticize my English. 3—Is it possible to read by my letter what my future occupation should be? Yours,

A MODERN GIRL.
St. Stephen, N. B., Feb. 26, 1923.

LACK OF RESPECT

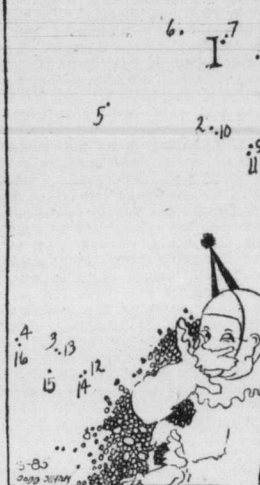

To the Editor of The Gleaner,
Sir:—I would like to say a few words to Twilight Creepers. It is not proper to kiss them, or to hold their hands, even if their parents are foolish enough to offer no objection. It shows lack of respect. As often as you think you are welcome. You should not keep them out after eleven o'clock unless it is a very special occasion. It would be silly to use such endearing names promiscuously.
Yours,
S. A. R.
Marysville, N. B., Feb. 27, 1923.

SHOULD KNOW BETTER

To the Editor of The Gleaner,
Sir:—In answer to Spottie and Duffie, I would say that you are old enough to know better. 2—You are, unless properly chaperoned. 3—You are old enough to wear simple evening frocks. 4—It depends upon the boys. 5—Read some good wholesome novels by reputable authors. 6—You should not allow a boy to kiss you unless you are engaged to him. 7—Cloth of silver is decorative enough of itself and is prettiest made simply, slightly draped, perhaps; small flowers made of silver shot with a pretty shade would be nice as a girdle. 8—Mildred, mild-speaking; Dorothy, gift of God; Harriet, head of a house; Isobel, consecrated to God; Frances, free; Marion, bitterness. 9—No. 10—Of the modern writers: Gene Stratton Porter's books, such as Anne of Green Gables, or Pollyanna, also any of the standard authors. Yours,
G. M. C.

WHEAT MARKETING SYSTEM FOR WEST

Regina, Feb. 27.—By unanimous consent of the House, Premier Dunning's wheat board resolution, giving the government a mandate to cooperate with the Federal and Provincial Governments in the establishment of a wheat board for 1923, and with further assistance of the farmers' organizations to evolve a co-operative wheat marketing system for subsequent years, was carried in the Saskatchewan legislature yesterday.

Recently a research expedition headed by the Earl of Carnarvon unearthed from the tomb of the Egyptian King Tut-ankh-Amen, who died 3,000 years ago, many priceless and no doubt some useless treasures. Pharaoh's couch, chairs, treasure chest, boxes of mummified food, etc., were found. One thing is certain that if Pharaoh's couch were for sale it could be owned by just one person. Listen! Each and every man can (without digging up Egyptian soil) enjoy the comfort of the wonder of this our generation—"The Van Heusen Collar." It has the appearance of a starched collar, the comfort of a soft collar. Van Heusen Collars will not shrink, will not wrinkle, will not wilt, requires no starching, no chemicals, no artificial stiffening and has no rough edges. The price is FIFTY CENTS each. For sale by J. H. FLEMING, The Haberdasher.
