acting to by the collapse of the walls and fifty crushed to death. Those in the streets saw the houses sway back and forth and the walls of brick structures crack. The report also said that twenty five or thirty people hal lost their lives at Point a Pitre, twelve houses of brick in Guadeloupe had been demolished and scores of others cracked and seamed by the shocks. From Antigus, the Madiana steamed to Montserat, arriving there on May 2. There too, a state of terror existed:

That town was rocked like a brat at sea on April 3. Six houses were destroyed but no lives lost. The island, before the earthquake, had not been noted for the piety of its people, but while the Madiana was in that port meetings were held at short intervals in all of the churches which were crawded with worshippers.

The inhabitants finally believed that it was on account of their iniquities that they had been visited by earthquakes, had been resided for the procession had been the street of the procession had been demolished and seamed by the shock tariff are the allost archiefs.
