Great Conference.

What People Are Saying About the Great Gathering at Edinburgh.

Very eulogistic opinions are being expressed about the great World Missionary Conference which has just terminated in Edinburgh. "The most important of these gatherings, which were held in the spacious Assembly Hall of the United Free Church of Scotland, seem to have owed much to the remarkable personality of the young American whom public opinion designated to the chair," writes the Times in a leading article.

A Master of Assemblies.
"Mr. J. R. Mott is henceforth to be recognized as a born master of assemblies. Himself the product of Cornell University, he has learnt to know men, and to be known, in almost every academic centre in the world."

"It is said that during a vigorous and outspoken discussion about the Congo he looked quietly through his hymn book and then as quickly announced: 'We shall now sing the last two stanzas of hymn No. 36.' It was Carlyle's splendid version of 'Ein feste Burg,' and at once those who had been most fierce in their denunciations, and those—a Belgian among them—who avowed their belief that on the Congo the tyranny of death is past, were singing with all the deliberateness of Scottish hymnology—

"And though they take our life,
Goods, honour, children, wife,
Yet is their profit small;
These things shall vanish all,
The City of God remaineth."

A Wonderful Unity.
"But the wonder of the Conference is not in its outlook or its purpose," writes Dr. R. F. Horton in the British Weekly. "No, the wonder is in the compact, solid, businesslike combination of all these varied elements into an organism; a brain, a voice, which seems to be actually filled and used by Christ through the Holy Spirit."

"Here all nations and all churches (except, alas! the so-called Catholic Churches, Eastern and Western) sit side by side, with no conscious barriers between them. They speak as one, they pray as one. In this amazing assembly, so vast that the eye can hardly take it in, so orderly that there is no confusion, so harmonious that it might have been drilled and prepared beforehand, an Anglican Bishop is sitting side by side with a Non-conformist minister; a black man is sitting by an American pastor, an Anglican monk or nun is sitting by a Chinaman in native costume, a Japanese or Korean, in European dress, with gold spectacles, is sitting by an equally civilised Finn, or German, or Dane. All ranks of all nations are united; English and Scotch noblemen have seats in this House of the Lord; the Archbishops of the English Church address these representatives of all Protestant churches as brothers."

Missionary Spirit Not Dead.

"If," says the Scotsman, "there are any who have cherished the idea that the missionary spirit is dead or dying in the Churches of Christendom, they have had a thorough awakening. Three of the largest halls in the city have been crowded daily for the space of two weeks with audiences eager to hear what a company of twelve hundred delegates have been eager to tell. A Continuation Committee has been appointed for the purpose of giving form and energy to the future giant action of the Reformed Churches on the outside mass of heathenism and barbarism; the World Conference that has just closed is to be the first of a long series of councils of war held for the advancement of the Kingdom of Peace."

A Great World-Force.

"No man who has watched the Conference in Edinburgh through the newspapers, or has personally noted its characteristics, can have failed to realize that, notwithstanding that it was necessarily a partial Conference, he was looking on at the operations of a great world-force," writes the Guardian in a leading article.

"To a very large extent, indeed, it has been an American Conference, revealing to some for the first time the fact that no nation is taking so large a part in the evangelisation of the world at this time as the United States. The vast majority of the Conference were, moreover, in communion with each other, divided by no definite lines of doctrine or policy. We refer, of course, to what in the United Kingdom are called the 'Free Churches.'
"There can be no doubt whatever that this is the greatest and most aggressive evangelising force in the world to-day, yearly conquering, in the name of Christ, new regions, and consolidating their work under the leadership of very able men who are devoting every energy, from the noblest of motives, to the Missionary cause. Their Missions so far outnumber all Anglican Missions that we become almost a negligible quantity."

The "Guardian" and Nonconformity.
"There must have been present to Churchmen other facts which could not be gainsaid," adds the Guardian. "Without the Catholic belief in the Church, its Orders and Sacraments, here were men and women who had won to Christ tens of thousands of all races of men, had formed them into communities, had established them upon the Scriptures, and had changed their hearts, having given them the new Christian motive and the vision of Christ in a personal and experimental religion. Such results have been tested by persecution unto death and have survived. Ideals of education definitely Christian have been realised in many lands, and on a scale and level far above most—but not all—of the achievements of the Anglican Church. In the same manner the level of the training of workers at home and for the Mission field has been seen to be far higher and the curriculum far wider than most of the Anglican ideals. The result of the Conference therefore has been a mutual benefit. Every High Churchman must have returned from the Conference a more convinced High Churchman, but with an added experience in many directions, above all with a deepened respect for Christians not in communion with him, but who are worthy of the highest respect for their character and influence in the cause of God."

The Missionary Problem.

The following summary of the Missionary problem was put out at the final meeting in a Message of the Churches:
"The next ten years will in all probability constitute a turning point in human history, and may be of more critical importance in determining the spiritual evolution of mankind than many centuries of ordinary experience. If those years are wasted havoc may be wrought that centuries are not able to repair. On the other hand, if they are rightly used they may be among the most glorious in Christian history. But it has become increasingly clear to us that we need something far greater than can be reached by any economy or reorganisation of the existing forces. Just as a great national danger demands a new standard of patriotism and service from every citizen, so the present condition of the world and the missionary task demand from every Christian and from every congregation a change in the existing scale of missionary zeal and service and the elevation of our spiritual ideal. There is an imperative spiritual demand that national life and influence as a whole be Christianised, so that the entire impact, commercial and political now of the west upon the east and now of the stronger races upon the weaker, may confirm and not impair the message of the missionary enterprise."

A Broken-Down System.

This is a condition (or disease) which doctors give many names, but which few of them really understand. It is simply weakness—a break-down, a failure of the vital force that sustains the system. No matter what may be its causes (for they are almost numberless), its symptoms are much the same: the more prominent being, sleeplessness, sense of prostration or weariness, depression of spirits and want of energy for all the ordinary affairs of life. Now, what alone is absolutely essential in all such cases is increased vitality—energy.

VITAL STRENGTH & ENERGY

to throw off these morbid feelings, and experience proves that as night succeeds the day this may be more certainly secured by a course of the celebrated life-reviving tonic.

THERAPION No. 3

is a more powerful and reliable tonic than any other known combination. So surely as it is taken in accordance with the printed directions accompanying it, with the shattered health be restored.

THE EXPIRING LAMP OF LIFE

LIGHTED UP AFRESH.

A new existence imparted in place of what had been entirely worn-out, "used up," and valueless. This wonderful medicine is purely vegetable and inorganic, is agreeable to the taste and suitable for all constitutions and conditions, of either sex; and it is difficult to imagine a case of disease or debility, which will not be speedily and permanently relieved by this new-fangled, life-reviving tonic, which is destined to cast into oblivion everything that had preceded it for this purpose, and to reconstruct the vital elements.

THERAPION

is sold by all chemists and druggists. Price 1/6 per bottle. 9 and 45, St. John's Street, London, W. The word THERAPION is written on the bottle. Beware of cheap imitations. It is a registered trademark of the Proprietors, Messrs. J. H. & Co., Ltd., 9 and 45, St. John's Street, London, W.

Governor Takes Trip.

His Excellency Sir Ralph Williams, accompanied by Lady Williams, Miss Dean, Mr. Gale and Secretary Fitzherbert, goes in the cruiser Fiona for a trip to the Labrador Coast and will sail shortly. Mr. Geoffrey Williams, His Excellency's son, who is in the rubber business in British East Africa, is on his way here to visit his parents on a lengthy holiday and will make one of the party.

Was It Stolen?

Mrs. A. Rice, who resides on Freshwater Road, on Saturday evening placed $15 in a purse and then put it in a drawer in a bureau in an upper apartment of her house. She went to get the money yesterday morning and was surprised to find it gone. Who took it she does not know. It is thought that one of the many boys who congregate there got into the house and stole the cash.

Home Rule's Position.

Mr. T. P. O'Connor, writing in Reynolds's Newspaper on the Veto Conference, says:—

"I do not know how the idea has germinated, but the idea is very prevalent that the Conference may come to an agreement, not merely on the Constitutional issue, but also on Home Rule. One of the ablest members of the House of Lords asked me the other day whether I had directed my mind to the possibility of such an outcome from the Conference. I answered that I had, but that, personally, I had been unable to find any ground for any such hope of such a blessed consummation."

And yet, of course, if the Unionist leaders were able to take a statesmanlike view of the situation, that is what they would certainly settle at the Conference, if they settled nothing else. I believe that many of their rank and file are of the same opinion. I have held for years that the conciliation of Ireland is the greatest of all English and Imperial, as well as of Irish, interests, and conciliated Ireland would be a greater protection to England—and to the Empire than forty Dreadnoughts, in addition to those we have already."

Bad Affair at Bell Island.

We learn from people who arrived from Bell Island via Portugal Cove yesterday, that a serious affair occurred at the Island, Sunday afternoon, in one of the shacks at the green in near the mines. Some of the men had obtained and consumed considerable liquor, and a row occurred during which a woman, who was in a delicate state of health, was badly hurt and was rendered unconscious, in which condition she remained from 4 p.m. till past 10 at night. A man named Leo Moore fell through a window and had his right arm terribly cut. The main artery was severed and he lost such a great quantity of blood that he was rendered extremely weak and lapsed into unconsciousness. Dr. Guthro and Rev. Fr. McGrath were summoned to the place, and Const. John Morrissey was also on the scene when the affair had been reported to him. The Dr. gave every attention to the woman and the man. It is believed that the woman will pull through all right, but the doctor has serious misgivings about Moore who, when our informants left yesterday, was in a serious condition. The affair caused a great sensation on the Island, and Const. Morrissey and Sgt. Cox are thoroughly investigating it.
