

A BAKING SUCCESS WHICH YOU CAN DUPLICATE IN YOUR HOME WITH BEAVER FLOUR

All this talk about Western wheat flours being "pastry" flours, is just plain talk. Anyone, who knows anything about wheat, knows that Western wheat flour cannot and does not, make as good Pastry as "Beaver" Flour.

Western wheat has what the bakers call strength. It makes a big loaf of bread—but the bread is spongy and lacks flavor. Ontario wheat, blended with spring wheat, makes the ideal bread and pastry flour.

The bakers of Toronto and London—the experts at the agricultural colleges—and thousands of homes in Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime Provinces—have proved that "Beaver" Flour is superior to any Western wheat flour, and is equally good for Bread and Pastry. Try it.

A REPLY TO DR. GRENFELL.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Although it is some time since Dr. Grenfell replied to a letter of mine concerning the case of the travelling sick, I am, even at this distance and late date, desirous of answering his criticisms. It was, originally asked of the Government that better accommodations be afforded on the passenger steamers to and from places like St. Anthony for those requiring medical attention, and, in the case of infectious diseases, that isolation be provided for the protection of the other passengers.

Dr. Grenfell admits the danger of infection in the case of consumption and cancer, but declares that their menace is less than I had suggested. Since there is danger, a question of degree is of no import. We are not concerned with the percentage of sick involved, but with the actual peril of contamination on account of the policy of non-isolation now in vogue. Since Dr. Grenfell admits the element of danger, we need discuss this point no further, but proceed to find remedies for the situation. I am surprised to hear a medical man of his experience belittling the perils of these diseases when here in the United States a movement is on foot to isolate travelling consumptives to such an extent as to require special trains for their use.

Dr. Grenfell is striving to better the condition of the people of the North. His efforts are unselfish and his motives are the best; yet he should not resent criticism when other eyes see, however imperfectly, room for improvement. We attribute nothing ulterior to his acts and motives, and we hope that ours will be construed just as highly. Nevertheless, in the matter of wharfs and conveniences for the landing of the sick, I fail to understand his attitude. We saw the Prospero twice at St. Anthony resort to the use of small boats to transfer sick people to and from the hospital because of the presence of the Cluett at the dock. Dr. Grenfell states that it is of no interest to the general public whether his supply ship should have been at the wharf at that time, and yet in a preceding paragraph he declares:—"Many cases coming to hospital suffer more during the transference from their homes to the ship and from the ship to the hospitals than they ever do lying aboard in the steamer cabins." We agree with him, and again we ask why the Cluett was in the way.

Quite a lot of turnips are now offered for sale in town. The prices asked are $1.50, $1.30 and $1.20. The demand appears to be not equal to the supply.

Mr. John Brazil arrived from St. John's by Saturday afternoon's train in charge of the remains of his niece Miss Jessie Carson, who died at the Assuage Asylum, St. John's, on Friday. This young girl who was in her 20th year, had just returned from Labrador in apparently good health, when she was suddenly stricken with insanity and had to be conveyed to St. John's for treatment. The funeral took place this afternoon.

We are sorry to hear that diphtheria has made its appearance in the home of Mr. Edward Parsons, M.H.A., his little daughter Gertrude being the sufferer. We hope to see her out in a few days fully recovered.

The severe frost of yesterday and last night will no doubt play havoc with the potatoes and turnips still in the ground.

Miss Jessie Brown, of Montreal, is spending the winter with her aunt, Mrs. R. Luffman. Miss Brown is a daughter of Mr. Philip Brown, formerly of this town, but for years living in Montreal.

Miss Tapp arrived from Boston last week after spending six weeks visiting friends in that and neighboring cities. Her tour was very much enjoyed.

Miss Mitchell, of Broad Cove, is in town on a visit to the Misses Noel at the Rectory.

Mr. George Makinson, formerly of Harbor Grace, and Miss Laura Josepha Butchart, of London, Ont., were married on Oct. 6th, at the residence of a brother of the bride, Mr. William A. The R. M. S. Carthaginian, 9 days from Liverpool, reached port at eight o'clock last night. During the latter part of the voyage strong winds and heavy seas were experienced which retarded progress. The ship brought 15 packages of mail matter, 450 tons of cargo and the following solon passengers:—Rev. and Mrs. Colley, J. Strangand and Mrs. Bartlett. The Carthaginian sails again to-night for Halifax and Philadelphia.

BACK FROM NORTH.—The S. S. Sigona arrived from the northward last evening. She was as far as Fogo. The weather was the roughest for the season.

A young man named McCue of Fox Hr. P. Bay arrived by last night's train for the Hospital, where he will receive treatment for injuries sustained by an accident at Fox Hr. yesterday. He was driving through the Hr. on horseback, when the animal, being unshod, slipped on some ice that had made the previous night, and threw the rider off and fell over him, breaking one of McCue's legs, and causing other serious injuries. He was picked up by persons who saw the occurrence, and was immediately taken in a boat to Placentia where Dr. McKendrick attended him. The doctor ordered the injured man to the Hospital, and on arrival by last night's train, McCue was taken thence in the ambulance.

On the Stairs.

Little Tips and Notions for Beautifying One's Home.

"Do you like it?" asked the young bride. "Now tell me honestly, if you have found a fault anywhere."

"The matter referred to the furnishing of the new home."

"It is charming!" I genuinely exclaimed. "But why did you miss the staircase?"

Nine out of every ten housewives neglect the appointments of the staircase. The hall is catered for in the ordinary conventional manner, and yet the staircase—through which all must pass to the upper rooms—is, as a rule, given a floor covering, and left to its own devices.

The following hints may enable you to give an air of individuality to your home, and, at the same time, form an interesting feature of your household.

Have your staircase paper of the same shade as that in the hall. Certain women cling rigidly to the dado and frieze type of design. Neither is becoming. A self-colored paper, or a good striped design, matching the hall wallpaper is much smarter.

In White or Cream.

Do away with those dark-brown sidings at the side of the stair carpet. White or cream enamel is much more effective and bright. A little extra work certainly in the keeping clean, but soap and water, a polisher, and an occasional touch with the enamel itself, will bring its own reward.

Many staircases are inclined to be dark, so let your paper be of the sunniest yellow tint to remedy this defect.

Let me tell you of a staircase that looks particularly pleasing. The paint-work is all of cream enamel, the wallpaper of peacock blue, the stair carpet of a corresponding shade. On a line with the head, all the way up the staircase, are quite small oblong pictures, of equal sizes, with black, polished frames. The pictures are small replicas of some of the most famous paintings, and no visitor passes that staircase without pausing to admire both the pictures and the effect.

The little window on the first landing is hung with dainty cream casement curtains with a peacock blue border, and an artistic blue bowl of fresh flowers can always be found on the window-ledge. You can imagine the charming and restful effect of such a scheme. It was not expensive either. The pictures can be bought at a shilling (or eightpence at the most) each, and the colour scheme is but a matter of taste. Black and white etchings of dogs form another striking point in the staircase of a dog lover.

When Anything Does.

Have you ever experienced a shock after ascending a presentable staircase to find that, after the first landing has been reached, all interest ceases, and the sid of "anything will do" pervades the rest of the ascent? Don't shroud those upper landing windows in old lace curtains, and artificial plants which deceive no one. A dainty muslin curtain and a fresh plant makes an enormous difference in the effect.

It is the trust economy to purchase the best quality stair carpet within reason, and, if possible, a good felt underlay. This latter, however, can be substituted by newspapers, carefully and evenly laid, old newspapers materially prolonging the life of a carpet.

Always purchase one yard more stair carpet than you actually require; this will enable you to lift the carpet up a few inches as you relax it from time to time, and so give the pattern equal wearing.

All little points these, but just take a look at your staircase, and see if one or two of these hints would improve it.

Simply have the wide pocket-effected hips and show a clinging fashion about the hem.

There is a loose sac outer garment that shows little of the new and eccentric silhouette. This loose, semi-fitting coat rivals the short, dapper cutaway coats.

The new tailored suits have waistcoats; sashes, all possible modifications of the tunic, side lines and seams and trimmings of embroidery, buttons and fur are prominent.

Favorite shades are rich dahlia, garnet and currant reds and brilliant myrtle, bottle and bronze greens, browns in a golden hue. Sabie and seal browns rival taupe and elephant gray.

The smartest waistcoat is a bright sulphur yellow pea de chamouis. It is extended in a straight line from a low waist to the chin with bullet buttons of gun-metal. The loose, rolling collar stands higher than the coat and frames the face.
