MUCH ADD ABOUT NOTHING.

Sensational Stories from Dublin Spoiled.

The Alleged Fenian Attempt to Blow up the Castle was Probably a Gas Explosion.

DUBLIN, Dec. 31.—The financial office of Dublin Castle has been wrecked by an explosion.

The disaster is said to have been caused by dynamite, and the Fenian party, as usual, are credited with bringing about the explosion.

As a fact nothing definite is known as to the real cause of the wrecking of the department referred to, though the wildest rumors are afloat.

DUBLIN, Dec. 31.—The authorities and others who know the facts display much reticence in furnishing information regarding the explosion at Dublin Castle, but the latest details that can be learned show that the affair has every appearance of being the act of some miscreant or miscreants seeking revenge for personal or political reasons.

It is known that the explosion occurred in the cellar, and that the explosive used was dynamite or nitroglycerine. The damage to the castle was much greater than was at first stated, the splinters of the two floors above the cellar were blown to pieces, the heavy beams in some places being torn into small pieces.

The furniture in the office beneath the Privy Council chamber was completely destroyed. It was a fortunate thing that no one was employed in making the improvements had quit work and were at dinner.

The chief of the office was also in charge of the explosion, and the main cause of the explosion occurred.

The Ancaster Murder!

Preliminary Examination of the Suspects.

Douglas Makes a Statement Similar to Goosey's.

Both Men Assert that Bartram Fired the Fatal Shot—Sensation in Court.

HAMILTON, Ont., Dec. 31.—The Police Court was crowded to the doors this morning when the preliminary trial of the prisoners accused of the murder of old John Heslop in January last took place.

Police Magistrate Cahill presided. Among those present were J. W. Nesbitt, C. C., counsel for Lottridge; County Crown Attorney John Crowar, Mrs. and Miss Heslop, Detective Greer, County Constable Hunter, of Brantford, and Samuel Goosey, the Indian who made a confession in Brantford. The case opened at 10 o'clock, when John Lottridge and George Douglas were charged with the murder of John Heslop. Lottridge pleaded not guilty.

Douglas then stood up and said: "I plead not guilty. I was present when the murder was committed but I did not fire the shot. John Bartram fired the shot."

This statement—which was made by Douglas of his own free will on being asked that a free pardon would be granted him if he was not the real murderer and if he made a confession—created a big sensation in court, and Lottridge seemed to be very much agitated at the turn that affairs had taken.

The evidence of witnesses was then taken. Mrs. Heslop was the first witness. She told all she knew in connection with the murder of her husband and all that had occurred on the night of Jan. 27. Miss Heslop followed her mother, and her evidence was in a great part a corroboration of the former witness. Thomas Young, hotel-keeper, Middleport, was the next witness, and was still on the stand when the court adjourned for lunch.

The confessions of Samuel Goosey and Douglas have both been sworn to. They are much the same and in brief, they tell how Lottridge and Goosey were outside the Heslop residence and Douglas and Bartram on the inside when the murder was committed. The shooting, they both affirm, was done by John Bartram.

Some very important evidence was given just before the adjournment for lunch. It was given by Thomas Young, an aged man from Middleport. He told how Douglas had, in conversation with him (witness) and Mrs. Young, detailed the story of the murder. Young said Douglas told him that Lottridge drove the rig; Goosey smashed in the door at the Heslop residence, and Douglas and Bartram went inside. Old Heslop struck at both men with a chair, then Douglas knocked the old man and Bartram shot him.

The witness was cross-examined by Mr. Nesbitt, but his evidence was unshaken.

Mr. Young was the next witness and corroborated the evidence given by his husband. Samuel Goosey, the Indian, then went into the box. He swore that Bartram, Lottridge, Douglas and himself went to the Heslop house about 2 o'clock on the morning of the murder in a wagon supplied by Bartram. He said that he saw Douglas with a stick and Bartram and Douglas went inside; he heard the noise inside, but did not know who fired the shot; Bartram and Douglas came out shortly after and the witness saw Lottridge and Douglas. Lottridge took the wagon; Bartram walked home, and witness and Douglas did not get any of the booty.

Mr. Nesbitt cross-examined Goosey in a very severe manner, but his evidence was not shaken.

The confession of Douglas was also of his own free will, on promise of pardon. He said that he was present when the shooting took place, but he remained silent. Douglas and Lotridge were committed for trial.

A TOPIC FOR TOPERS.

The Analyst Says Alcohol Addictions are Worse than Alcohol.

OTTAWA, Dec. 31.—Dominion Analyst MacFarlane issued a bulletin of alcohol, having examined 680 samples, all from retail dealers. He says that the samples are not grossly adulterated and mostly by water or colorless matter. He found occasional doses of amylo-alcohol or fusil oil, but none of methyl-alcohol.

He says that 30 pages over details he concludes: This investigation leads generally to the following conclusions:

1. That the opinion held by many regarding the injurious character of the substance called spirits or distilled liquors for various purposes is destitute of sufficient foundation. Some of the essences, etc., used by blenders or compounders taken by themselves may be said to be injurious, but the quantities are so minute in the retailing product that they cannot be considered to have any worse effect on the human system than the dilute alcohol which they are mixed.

2. That in many cases liquors are sold under the designation of brandy and gin which in fact are nothing more than imitations of the real thing.

A Warning to Sensationists.

New York, Dec. 31.—H. E. Titus & Co., brokers, announced today. Mr. Titus mysteriously disappeared a few days ago. The failure was caused by a sensationalist in Wall street.

The office and freely expressed his conviction that the failure was a dishonest one, and that the creditors had been swindled and deceived.

He said he knew a number of his friends who were losers to the extent of $50,000. He had been endeavoring to make a settlement for several days but had been put off on pretence of absence. He went to the office the day before and disappeared.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Dec. 31.—One of the National Transit Company's immense oil tanks at Osborns Bluff, ten miles east of here, holding 30,000 barrels of crude petroleum, exploded shortly after 4 o'clock this morning. The inflammable substance was ignited through the carelessness of an employee.

St. Johns, N. B., Dec. 31.—The steamer Houghton, the winter boat between Eastport and Calais, was burned to seaward's edge last night. The crew had a narrow escape. The Houghton was valued at $15,000. This is the fifth boat of the line that has been burned.

St. Thomas, Ont., Dec. 31.—The loss by burning of the M. C. freight depot last night will not prove so heavy as at first reported. The main part of the building in which the offices were located was completely gutted, but the papers and records were saved, though in a damaged condition. There was very little fire in the building, and the contents of the bonded warehouse were not damaged. Damage to building estimated at $1,000, covered by insurance. Total damage about $1,500.

THE TELLTALE CENSUS.

Stagnation of Population in the Maritime Provinces—A Large Explanation.

OTTAWA, Dec. 31.—George Johnson, Dominion statistician, has issued a third census bulletin. It deals with the population of the three Maritime Provinces, figures being given by county, counties and sub-districts. Of the counties this group 16 show decreases and 20 slight increases in population. Taking the three Provinces together, the population increased 13.5 per cent in 1881, compared with 1871, and barely 1.2 per cent in 1891, as compared with 1881. Mr. Johnson explains this decrease by saying: "The causes for this decrease are: (1) Decay of early marriages; (2) increase in the number of illegitimate children; (3) the effect of increasingly complex conditions of life; the second is due to the spread of education, which enables females to become better wage-earners, and therefore, less interested in marriage. But the reduction in the average family does not account in the whole for the stagnation of population revealed by the census returns. The population has remained in large numbers in previous decades in the present census. Provision for ascertaining the extent to which there has been an inter-provincial distribution of people has been made. The analysis is not yet complete, but it is shown that the people of those Provinces have gone during the past ten years in an increasing degree to the western portions of the country. The stagnation in the Maritime Provinces is due to a natural movement west. It is also accounted for by an increased aversion to agricultural pursuits. Other causes no doubt have contributed to the stagnation."

A BISHOP'S ROMANTIC HISTORY.

Kidnapped and Exchanged for a Horse—Sole Cause of the War in Tobacco—Crazy, Useful Career.

LONDON, Dec. 31.—Right Rev. Samuel Adaji Crowther, D. D., Bishop of the Niger Territory, a native of Africa, is dead.

London, Dec. 31.—Crowther, whose death is announced to-day, had a romantic history. He rose from a state of servitude to the episcopate. The dead bishop's original name was Adaji, and his family lived in the village of the Yoruba, about 100 miles inland from the Bights of Benin. In 1821 Adaji was carried off by the Eyo Mohammedans, and was exchanged for a horse. He was again exchanged at Sierra Leone in 1822. In 1825 Adaji was baptized, taking the name of the evangelical vicar of Christ's Church, Newgate street, London, Rev. Samuel Crowther. In 1829 he married Asano, a native girl who had been taught in the same school as he was. He was then for some years school master of Bekeetown and subsequently accompanied the first Niger expedition. Later on, upon arrival in England, he was sent to the church in London, where he was employed as a catechist. He was subsequently consecrated the first bishop of Niger Territory, West Africa, on June 29, 1864. In May, 1880, the council of the Royal Geographical Society awarded a gold watch to Bishop Crowther in recognition of services he had rendered to geography.

The Buffalo Express Wrecked.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Dec. 31.—The fast Buffalo express, leaving Philadelphia at 7:30 last night, was wrecked near Londonderry. The train ran into an open switch, supposed to have been turned for the purpose of wrecking the train and blocking the express cars. The engineer and fireman were seriously injured.

The Mexican Rumpus

MONTREY, Mex., Dec. 31.—The news was received here late last night that Gen. Lorenzo Garcia, in command of the troops in the field in the northern part of Mexico, had been murdered by his command, and that the entire force, numbering several hundred men, had gone over to the side of the revolutionists, crossing over into Texas, and a battle was fought near Rio and Carrasco. The command of Gen. Garcia was composed principally of convicts sent to serve with the soldiers. They are desperate characters, and are nearly all secret sympathizers of the revolutionary movement.

A HEAVY LOSS. Gen. Garcia was one of the most prominent and efficient officers in the Mexican army, and his death at the present time is a serious blow to the Government. Governor Reyes and the military authorities here are much disturbed over the situation on the frontier. The garrison here has rushed all its available troops to Naiva Loreda, from which place they are distributed all along the right bank of the Rio Grande.

MRS. OSBORNE'S DISGRACE.

Her Cousin Says She Has Written Confession of the Guilty Woman.

LONDON, Dec. 31.—Mrs. Hargreaves, in an interview to-day, spoke in affectionate terms of Mrs. Osborne, who took her jewels and used her for libel. She said Ethel, as she continued to call her, had been her dearest friend. She presented her with several valuable trifles on the night of her leaving Torquay, after the visit which they had enjoyed so much. When she discovered the loss of her jewels she had not the slightest suspicion of Ethel. It was the identical night that Mrs. Osborne had been which first produced in her mind a thought that Ethel was connected with the disappearance of the jewels. She was not aware of the startling disclosures which put an end to the trial until Sir Charles Russell made his speech in court abandoning the case. For three months before the trial began detectives dogged her steps and worried her incessantly.

Mrs. Hargreaves said that the jewels were now lodged with the banker, Coutts. The cabinet which formerly contained them had been smashed. Besides the pearls Spink & Sons secured two diamonds, which had informed Ethel were worth 800 guineas.

The statement that Mrs. Osborne had made no confession is untrue. Major Hargreaves, who was present at the interview, drew from his pocket an explicit confession, which, he said, he and his wife would not allow to be published; they would only use it if the slanders against them should continue. The confession, they said, was drawn up by Capt. Osborne and Mrs. Osborne's brother, and contained a promise to pay the costs of the trial, restore to Spink & Sons the money they had paid for the jewels, admitted everything and begged that the names be maintained in privacy for decades in the present census. Provision for ascertaining the extent to which there has been an inter-provincial distribution of people has been made. The analysis is not yet complete, but it is shown that the people of those Provinces have gone during the past ten years in an increasing degree to the western portions of the country. The stagnation in the Maritime Provinces is due to a natural movement west. It is also accounted for by an increased aversion to agricultural pursuits. Other causes no doubt have contributed to the stagnation.

$10,000 ON THE PLATE.

A Surplus for the Congregation of the Church of the Holy Comforters.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—The little Protestant Episcopal Church of the Holy Comforters in Humboldt and Delevoise streets, Williamsburgh, was enriched on Sunday by the gift of $10,000 from a donor who desires to remain unknown. The church originated from a mission started by the women of St. Ann's Church on the Heights, and the building was erected under the guidance of Dr. J. H. Darlington. Dr. Charles R. Baker of the Church of the Messiah also became interested in the work. There was no money for a pastor's salary, and the pulpit was supplied by the Rev. Dr. Baker, who preached on Sunday night. An envelope containing a check and a slip of paper was found on one of the plates after collection. The check was for $10,000, and a few lines on the slip of paper said that the money was intended as an endowment fund to pay a permanent pastor. The gift was in memory of the late Dr. Noah M. Schenck, who was for many years pastor of St. Ann's and the donor made a condition of the acceptance of the gift that the name signed to the check be kept secret.

His Dream Came True.

OTTAWA, Dec. 31.—John Campbell, of Renfrew, tells of a strange dream which his father, the late Peter Campbell, sr., had some time before his death, and which he thought was a prophecy. Mr. Campbell dreamed he would die on Christmas night, and so certain was he of his death on that night that he told his family he would die at the time he did.

Lord Stanley's Successor.

LONDON, Dec. 31.—In political circles there is some talk of the likelihood of Lord George Hamilton succeeding Lord Stanley of Preston when the latter leaves Canada. Lord Hamilton ten years ago was remarked as one of the most promising young men of the Tory party, but he never fulfilled the promise. He owes his position in the Cabinet largely to his family and social connections. Another statement, less credible, names Lord Wolseley for the post.

A Cure for Constipation and Headache.

Dr. Siles Lane, while in the Boston Mountains, discovered a root that, when combined with other herbs, makes an easy and certain cure for constipation. It is in the form of dry roots and leaves, and is known as Lane's Family Medicine. It will cure rice headache in one night. For the blood, liver and kidneys, and for clearing up the complexion, it does wonders. Druggists sell it at 50 cents a package.
